ALL THIS ON

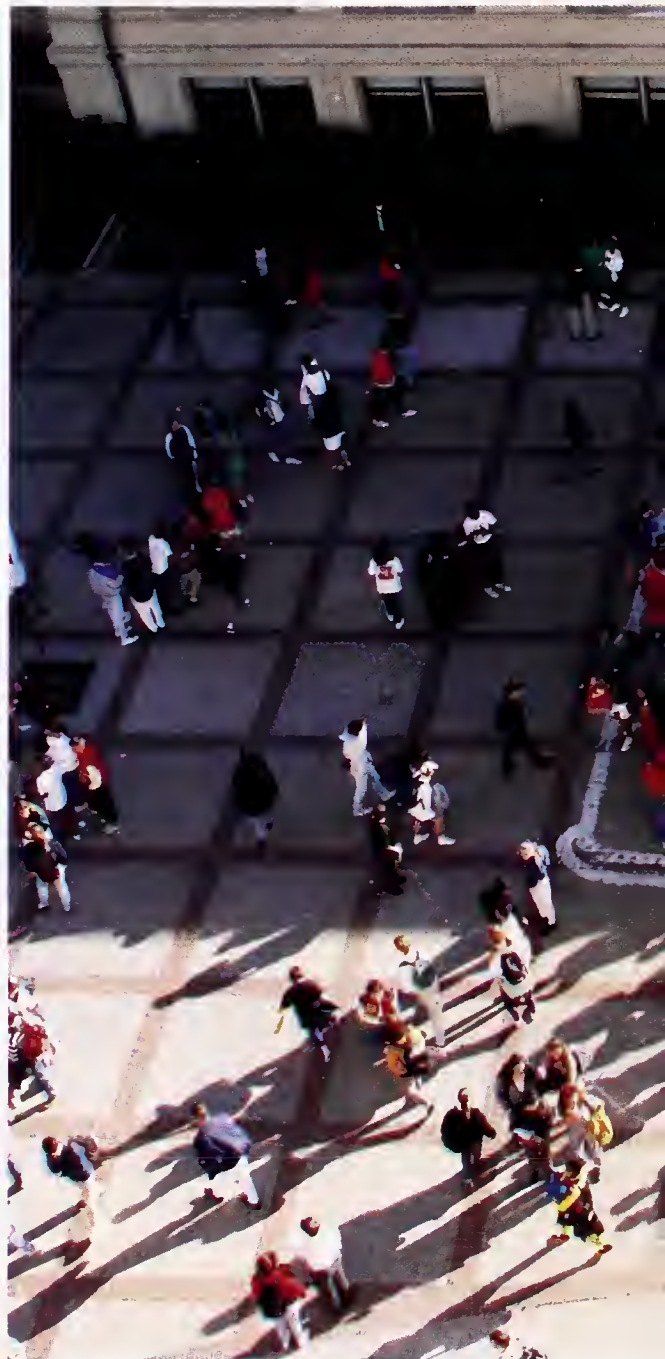

Once 'Pon A Time, in a town by the Bay
A Pauper, A Prince, and A Clown came to play
They danced and they frolicked and all the day through
They looked for a place that the three of them knew
"There, then, I see it," the Pauper exclaimed
Pointing to Avenues, Telegraph named
"Not I, my friend, no, I can't stand the place,"
Said the Prince pointedly, cov'ring his face
"In yonder building I've done many tricks,"
Pointed the Clown to the Berkeley Rep bricks
Frown'd then the Pauper, who said with a tear,
"Can't afford tickets, I've never been near."
"By jove, I've got it," the Prince he cried out,
Gesturing t'wards the CAL Campus, devout
"Nay," sulked the Clown, sitting down for a rest
"I went to Stanford and majored in jest."
Yet off to the Westward a few buildings stood
That Princes and Paupers and Clowns could call good
A spot in all Berk'ley where crossed cultures meet
And to think that they saw it on Milvia Street.

Adam Affonso and Molly McGrath compete for cutest smile.

It was a strange sight to see. A man was dressed like a bee. Prancing like a fool, all around the school; I'm glad this man is not me. When doesn't the calm, collective pool of students at Berkeley High find this not surprising? During the Spirit Week! Just these two words conjure up visions of students dressed in an assortment of strange and unusual clothing; everything from togas to bell-bottoms and a unique variety of red and yellow apparel.

This year's theme days included Twin day, 60's / 70's day Halloween, Pajama day, Toga day, and Red and Gold day. It was full of great fun and games for all, except maybe for those who accidentally wore their Tacky outfit on Pajama day. The awards this year were a good measure of class spirit. The Seniors dominated by taking the Spirit Cup, the Golden Broom, the Cup O' Soup, and Best Attendance. The juniors concentrated their efforts on their spectacular float, which portrayed a platoon of yellow jackets claiming a new world, and thus easily won the Float Cup. With their amazing dancers the sophomores surprised the whole school and won the Oscar Cup. After a display of incredible athletic abilities the class of '93 took the Olympic medal too! The freshmen had some organizational problems and didn't win any cups, but hey, you've gotta start somewhere.

No matter who wins or loses, it's still the best week of the school year (after winter break of course). These special days provide rare moments of school unity, humor, and laughs for everyone. The abundant colors and smiles can be seen as one leafs through the following pages. The spirit of Berkeley High is evident.

The class of '91 demonstrates why they're #1.

HOW DO YOU COPE?

Seniors are falling asleep in their classes. There is a crowd of about 200 people waiting to see Ms. Hunter at all hours of the day. Everywhere in the hallways and in classrooms you can hear people using those mysterious words- SAT's, transcript, interview...all because its that time again- college applications. And for those poor juniors who will be going through all this next year, here are a few ways this years crop deals with it all...

ADAM'S EXCELLENT ADVENTURE

Adam Affonso was born in Salinas, California and began acting when he was in third grade to satisfy his large ego. At the age of thirteen he moved to Berkeley to live with his mother. There, he got an agent and began acting professionally. In his sophomore year he moved to Los Angeles and got a few jobs, including two Quantum Leap episodes, McDonalds, Levi's, and Fruity Marshmallow Krispies commercials, and a part on the short lived series My Two Dads (oh what a loss). He is currently working on his grades (good luck) and concentrating on his own public access T.V. show in San Leandro called "What's Adam Thinking". In the show Adam and friend play many characters, including Vinal V and Elwood Keller in an episode called, "Two White Boys from Compton." They are also working on a new short starring Arnold Schwarzenegger and Spike Lee called "MO' BETTER BODY".

After graduating he wants to attend UCLA film school, and join the thousands of other actors trying to achieve fame. He would like to do anything and everything related to the film industry except hosting the "NEW NEW (NO, THIS TIME IT'S REALLY NEW) NEWLYWED GAME." He hopes within ten years something will pan out. Adams role models include Jack Nicholson, Dana Carvey, Michael Keaton, that Doogie guy, Tattoo, Bruce Willis, Paul from the Diamond Center, Juan Valdez, Jim Morrison, Molster, Arnold Schwarzenegger, the guy who plays Anton Jackson, and last but not least, the whiny guy in "Aliens".

HOW EMBARRASSING

Its ok, you can admit it. We've all had that awful moment when we slipped and fell in the hallway, or tripped going down the stairs, or came to school without any clothes on(?). So to make you feel better about your humiliating experiences, some members of the class of '91 share with you their most embarrassing moments...

"I was on the bus on the way to school one day in my new skirt that had buttons all up the back, and as I was sitting all the buttons came undone. I got off the bus and walked to the front with my underwear showing, and I didn't even realize it until this guy stopped me and said that my skirt was open..."

-Anonymous

When I ran for office and at the end of my speech I played the Beatles 'Revolution' and it was supposed to be at the part where they say 'everything's gonna be alright' but instead it said 'you can count me out.'"

-Dan Packard

"Freshman year it was raining and I slipped on the slope in front of hell of seniors."

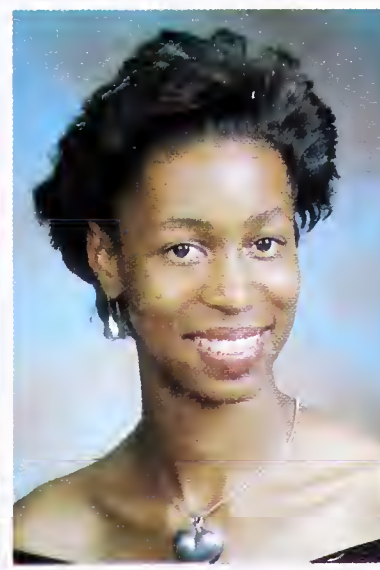

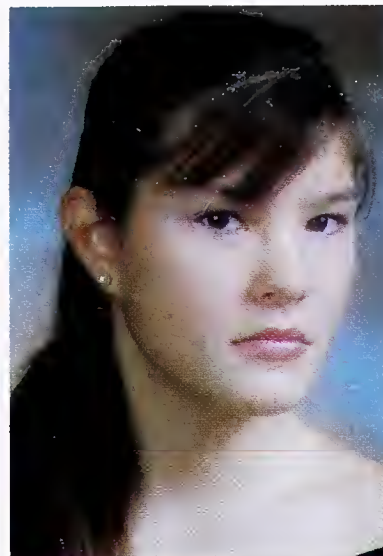

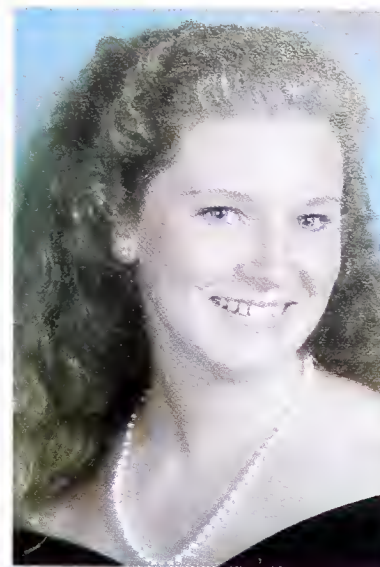

-Drumond Threat

"On toga day some freshman walked up to me and said 'I didn't know freshman could wear togas.'"

-Ariel Vigo

"Mr. Aldridge was subbing for my English teacher in tenth grade and he made me do ten push-ups in front of the class because I swore and everyone counted off and I turned soooooo red...from fatigue?"

THE MAGIC TOUCHÉE

Geoffrey Donaker, a native of Berkeley, began fencing at the age of thirteen. His mother enrolled him in a fencing class because she thought he needed an extracurricular activity. In January, 1988, he qualified for his first Junior Olympics in Cleveland, Ohio. Geoff did not do very well. In his own words, "I got stomped."

After the 1988 Junior Olympics he became much more serious about fencing, and began to fence with the Cal team. Since then, he has competed in several fencing competitions, placing in the top twenty. This year he has done especially well. He placed 5th out of 45 competitors in the under 19 division of the Pacific Coast Competition and qualified to go to the Nationals in Salt Lake City, Utah. In division two of the Nationals he placed 15th out of 140 competitors. In the Junior National Circuit he placed 4th out of 75 competitors. In a year, Geoff hopes to be fencing at Stanford with the help of his coach. His parents have been very supportive and have provided him with everything from equipment to plane fares.

Fencing involves a great deal of skill, coordination, and a lot more conditioning than people think. Geoff enjoys fencing as a sport, and he likes being part of a team. Through his fencing, he has had the chance to make friends with people from all over the country. While he is not planning to pursue fencing as a career, Geoff hopes to continue fencing for enjoyment throughout the rest of his life.

WAVES OF MUSIC

If you have ever walked into the A building as a lost soul searching for inspiration, you might have found a snazzy jazz beat welcoming your ears. If this has happened to you, you were in the presence of a true musical talent. Kito Gamble has brought to Berkeley High a better appreciation of the piano.

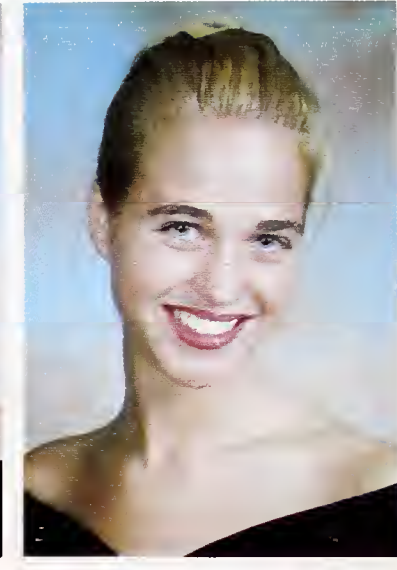

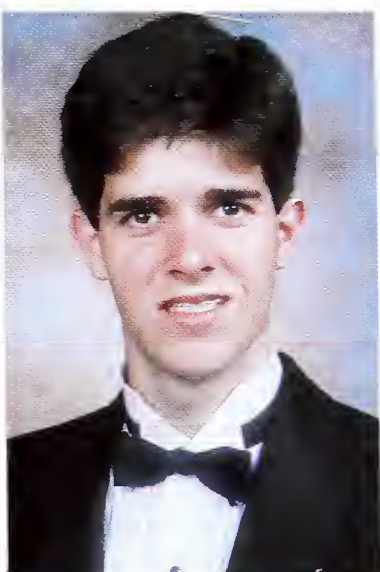

Born in Pittsburgh, California on February 1, 1973, Kito has lived with music all her life. Her mother is the famous singer, Faye Carol. Her father, a piano teacher, has been teaching Kito music since she was 3. She is grateful that he put so much effort into his teaching her when she was young. Now these early lessons have become as valuable to her as the ABCs.

Kito started her career with a concert in the Great America Music Hall when she was 10. It was her youth and talent that impressed everyone, especially considering the complexity of the piece she played, "Blue Moon." From that day forward she has performed in such places as Kimball's East and West, Yoshi's and the Fillmore Street Fair. She recently appeared at the Monterey Jazz Competition, winning the best player award and a scholarship to Berklee School of Music. Through her performances, she has met such people such as Billy Higgins, Kenny Kirkland, and Albert King, who she met during one of his performances. When King's piano player could not play, he asked Kito to take over. She impressed him, and they became good friends.

After hearing Kito play the piano for but a few minutes, it is obvious why the media eagerly recognizes her talent. It makes her one of a kind. Kito wishes to follow her career in music and is right now searching for a college to fulfill her musical and academic goals.

THE CAT IN THE HAT

The Cat in The Hat, the sly, upbeat feline who we have all come to love, is the focus of this senior spotlight.

He was born in Anytown, U.S.A. Growing up in Anytown was hard on the little kitty, and he barely survived on green eggs and ham. He moved to Berkeley in the ninth grade where he has clawed his way to the top of the litterbox at B.H.S. He is a popular student, and he told me his favorite class is World Wide Foods where he has prepared such delicacies as red fish and blue fish. With his friends Horton Ears A. Who and Yertle Da. Turtle, he formed the anti-Grinch club which is active during the Christmas season.

But, perhaps his greatest achievement is the "Thing" which picks up toys at the speed of 0.0000954 seconds. He invented it accidentally after mixing various chemicals in Mr. Choulett's chemistry room. With his friend, Lore Ax, he created the "Please don't chop down my forest" club which gained national attention from such famous figures as Robin Hood and Snow White and the Seven Dwarves. He says his favorite memory of B.H.S. so far was when he streaked across the courtyard with the other Senior men, eh, boys, but nobody recognized him. His favorite class was Human Anatomy and Physiology until he saw his ex-girlfriend go under the knife. He refuses to discuss it as it is a very touchy subject.

After high school, he plans to go to little boy's and girl's houses everywhere and pick up their toys for them, but he charges a hefty rate of $5,000 per hour.

BERKELEY HIGHS FAVORITE FORWARD

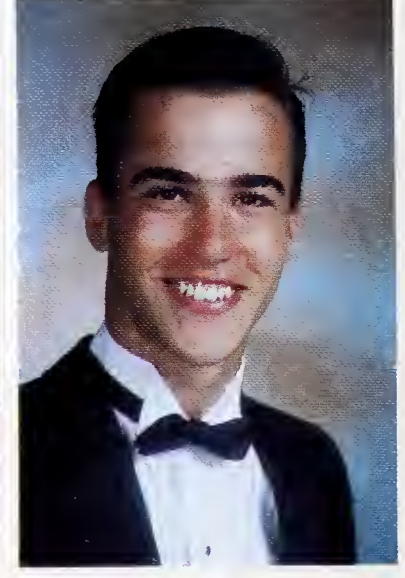

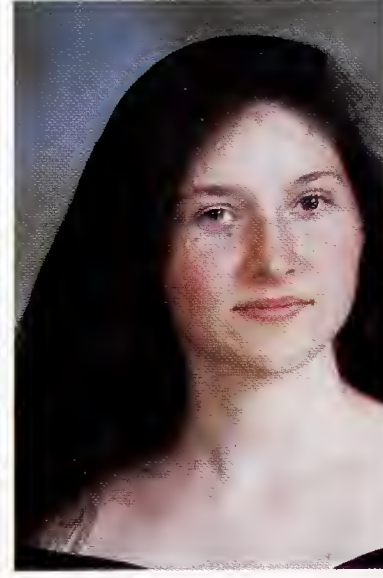

She likes rap music, rythm and blues, and jazz. When asked if she has a boyfriend Tanda replies, "...yeah..." with a shy smile. But Tanda Rucker is no ordinary student. She's also a superior athlete. Last year as a forward she helped lead the BHS Womens Basketball Team to victory in the California State Championships.

Tanda began playing basketball on a YMCA team at the age of eight. It was her father who gother interested insports; "Everything he played I played." Although bowling and softball are also among her interests, Tanda concentrates on basketball because of it's social and academic opportunities. She believes basketball will open doors for her both in college and employment.

Encouraged by her family, she continues to play and excel. On the court Tanda displays a focused and disciplined style. She is competitive and strives to do her best. Herbert Miller, her coach and friend of 8 years, has taught Tanda to get along with her teammates, accept defeat, and to thouroughly enjoy the game. He has given her enthusiasm and a positive outlook on life.

Now, in her senior year, Tanda is grateful that she chose basketball as her sport. It has given her a sense of self-determination, and of pride. In the future, she hopes to receive a scholarship to a four year university, where she will pursue her interests in biology. With all her talent, Tanda is definitely on the road to success.

WHERE DO I START?

There is one thing that everyone at Berkeley High can agree on- the fact that our school... well, could stand some improvements. As they happily finish their last year at our illustrious learning institution, a few seniors took the time to record for all time their least favorite things about Berkeley High...

"They turn on the heat in the spring."

-Drumond Threat

"Getting jumped by 50 sap-ass wanna be thugs who don't have the courage to do it on their own."

-George Hoglund

"The Spanish department."

-Dan Packard

"We have to turn in all our college stuff years in advance because the counseling center is so understaffed."

-Margaret Treadwell

"The administration."

THE GREAT SYLDO SEARCH!

Senior SYLVESTER WONG, affectionately dubbed "Sylldo the Dolphin Man" by his peers, is lurking somewhere in this CLUB-DAY scene.

Can you find him and his six buddies, all of whom bear large question marks(?).

Other goodies to locate:

a dolphin, a paper clip, a goose, no tea, Mr. Steinert (sorta), The Bennedetto Twins, John Allen's dreads, Coffinbone - the 70's Skate Stud, Bart Simpson (dead), both Spocks, a popsicle, yourself.

Lit Mag

"I'd tried them all. American Lit class, Yearbook, even Jacket, but there was no place to really let myself go," laments Iskandar Najmuddin, "Then I found LitMag!" Iskandar says all this with a grin (and no, he's never been on the Jacket) but somewhere in there he's communicating an important idea. People need to express themselves creatively, and in the rigid environment of high school there are none too many outlets for such expression. That's why the Berkeley High School Literary Magazine prides itself, year after year, on being a showcase for the blossoming literary and artistic talent of the student body. The annual issue, "In Other Words," is repeatedly ranked superior by the National Council of Teachers of English, and receives high acclaim in the community. It is composed of short fiction, poetry, illustrations, and photographs, picked carefully by the staff from among hundreds of submissions.

"The staff is great this year. I think it's the best I've ever had," muses Francis Gallegos, the staff supervisor for the LitMag, "The magazine this year is going to be wonderful." We bet it will.

"Where the hell did I put that elephant?"

"I don't care what you say...oitnvcoirety is not a word."

ASU

The Asian Student Union is a true example of an active club at Berkeley High. One of the school's oldest and largest student-run organizations, it is committed towards bringing all Asians of Berkeley High together in harmony. Their club motto, "unity and diversity", reflects the wide range of ethnicities among the members. As well as their weekly lunch get together, the Asian Student Union, headed by president Bruce Chang, sponsors many activities such as potlucks, picnics, bowling nights, fundraisers, a New Year's dance, and a possible ski trip. This year they also designed a calendar representing many cultures to sell. Nonetheless, being a member of the ASU is not all partying (believe it or not), for they sponsor the school-wide Day of Remembrance, which is a commemoration of the Japanese-American internment, and the Asian Heritage Week assembly, which showcases many different aspects of Asian cultures.

"Well I happen to think that boxers are more comfortable."

"I caught a Mackerel this big...I swear, but it, uh...got away."

Uh....Bruce?

Fall Senate

The members of this year's Fall Student Senate have all proven to be exceptionally qualified as the leaders and representatives of the Student Body of Berkeley High School. The eight student senators began the year by laying out a plan of issues and problems that they wanted to tackle and hopefully solve during the upcoming year. Their first step was one that would help the Senate of the future become more effective and responsive to the needs of the Student Body. Peter Coffin and Eric Ariyoshi worked on Student Parking (or the lack thereof), while Sean Smukler, Avram Wild, Peter Coffin, and Justin Pritchard prepared a Student Poll - Teacher Evaluation. Peter Coffin worked on issues concerning the illegalities of Berkeley High's mandatory P.E. uniforms. Rachel Garlin, Jake Dorman (our student rep for the school board), and Justin Pritchard wrote the biweekly Student Government reports in the Jacket. Despite the overpowering majority of seniors in the Senate, all the members were able to work together perfectly, even during Spirit Week. The accomplishments of the Fall Senate were progressive and praiseworthy.

"Pardon me, but do you have any Grey Poupon," asks Justin of the startled Tanya.

The Fall senators: Dave Benedetto, Eric Ariyoshi, Peter Coffin, Justin Pritchard, Tanya Henneman, Sean Smukler, Rachael Garlin. Not pictured: Avram Wild.

Petah chews on his finger...(Oh come on Molly - can't you think of a better caption?)

Spring Senate

"I am committed to making Berkeley High a better place," was the campaign promise most candidates made and one that all of the senators kept. The Spring Student Senate gained two new members, both of whom were underclassmen, including one freshman, Felice Botts; the rest of the Senate was, as usual, a majority of seniors. But this wasn't one of the Senate's problems, as each senator was dedicated to working and representing the entire student body. And so they did. Sean Smukler, Justin Pritchard and Tanya Henneman successfully completed the Teacher Evaluations that were begun in the fall. Peter Coffin, Sean Smukler, Rachel Garlin, and junior representative Becky Husband worked on student parking. Peter Coffin continued work on Berkeley High's mandatory P.E. uniforms. Rachel Garlin initiated a recycling plan for the whole school. Meetpaul Singh planned to create a multicultural museum by the end of this school year. Too many people are unaware of the power that the Senate holds. They basically run Spirit Week, and have control over decisions that affect the student body. As a matter of fact, the Senate has power to declare war on another country...just kidding!

 Rachel Garlin and Felice Botts both contemplate life and the bug crawling across the table (not pictured).

 Meetpaul Singh manages to hold himself up through the great power of his fingertips.

Leaders of the Cheer

Cheerleading

If you have ever been to a Berkeley High football or basketball game you have probably noticed a bunch of girls jumping up and down on the sidelines. These are the dedicated Cheerleaders of Berkeley High. They cheer on our athletes in rain, shine, sleet, or snow. The Cheerleaders are the talented few who can articulate complete sentences while leaping through the air, and who keep our spirits soaring high at rallies. The cheerleaders choreograph all of their own routines and spend a great deal of time putting the routines together. They have been doing more dancing this year, and the Pommers and the Cheerleaders have not separated into two squads. Head Cheerleader Emily Storey says, "It's fun going to games and you get to know all these people that you wouldn't have known otherwise. We have to spend most of our time together - its like a big family."

They've got legs (sha la la) and they know how to use them (doo wah diddy).

"We use Crest!"

"So Emily, how do you feel about the new routines... Emily? Hello? EMILY!"

And They Danced

Pomming

P-O-M-M-E-R-S. What does that spell? Pommers! Obviously, but what does that mean? Who are the Berkeley High Pommers? Well, they perform dance routines at halftime to entertain the fans. Dance routines which they choreographed themselves, and worked on for days, and days, and days. They also cheer on our teams in moments of distress and glory. They are by our side at rallies, keeping our spirits high and making us jealous because they dance so well. But pomming is not all fun and games. It takes a lot of time, energy, and devotion. Tanya Henneman, head pommer, has done a good job this year organizing the pommers and leading them in the boogie to success. "Pomming is a lot of work and dedication, students don't always realize. You learn how to work with different personalities and attitudes. It's definitely an interesting experience."

 Together they leap, divided they fall.

 Four hot babes in skimpy outfits.

 "No pomming," says Dwana, "I have a headache."

Hell on Wheels

Bike Club

Berkeley High has clubs. Lots of clubs, including the Bike Club. However, the Bike Club, with over 60 members, is one of the most popular at Berkeley High. Presided by Dave Benedetto and Ben Sosin the club has weekly rides on Saturdays and Sundays as well as one day excursions and 3-5 day tours along the California coastline. Despite their slogan, "Hell on Wheels", the club is very charitable. The first annual Mammoth Cycling Challenge was started and held this year by the club to benefit local charities. Repair classes are also given to help members get a better understanding of their two-wheeled toys. A toast to success for the Berkeley High Bike Club.

Those bikers and their beloved bikes

Matt huffs and puffs his way to school (or is it away?).

Ahh... a fine view indeed.

We All Live In A Yellow Submarine

Sea Explorers

The sea scout ship REVENGE is a sixty-two feet Long Range Cruiser with ten crew members. The Sea Explorers is a group of young men and women who take cruises around the bay and on some occasions, like the summer, we go on long cruises lasting up to fifteen days. On such cruises we meet up with other sea scout vessels, go waterskiing, and relax. Between the months of March and May we have what is known as the Regatta Season. We compete against other sea scout crews in events such as the rope climb, boatswain's chair, and pulling boat. At the completion of each regatta there is usually a bitchin' dance.

This is the back of their shirt.

The magnificent explorers of the deep blue sea.

The bridge of their glorious vessel.

Don't Pawn My Queen

 Adam gets an attack of back pains while Dave and Andrew concentrate on their game, and Peter sucks on his cigarette.

Chess Club

This mentally malicious and psychologically souped-up group of chess-playing pitbulls meets once a week and after school to play their games, learn all the tricks of the trade, and tell their tales of board matches, both victory and defeat. Why after school? "We need silence, damn it," says one insistent, if not annoyingly idiotic member. Another member believes that it "allows my psyche to roam the uncongested, dark, mysterious halls, searching for some answer that would aid me in my next move of total destruction. Ha ha ha ha ha ha ha ha ha ha ha." Advice for next year's enlistees: wear a helmet (and bring a shrink).

The uh... organized and, ummm... sophisticated (?) Chess Club.

The winner takes all, plus Matt (oh boy!).

I Don't Wanna Grow Up

 Awwwwwwwwww.....!!!

Lego Club

"Fire!" shouts the spaceman up in the grey castle turret. The fire station receives the call from a satellite dish and sends a brand new red fire truck ($7.94, plus tax) to the scene. It hums over the green plastic streets, passing knights in armor, gas stations, space stations, yellow houses, and all sorts of stuff. Will the fire truck make it in time? Will the spaceman be tragically engulfed by the flame? Relax, this isn't a real life situation, just a Legoland simulation. With Legos the young at heart can use their imagination, and creative and constructive skills to their highest potential in a seemingly endless capacity. That is what this club is all about.

Dave (dude with the cap) and all his little munchkin friends.

Arrgghh - we really need to have a conference.

FOLLOW THE Class-

This year the class officers were as busy as ever, organizing and fundraising for their appropriate classes. The freshman class got the ball rolling with a raffle to benefit the local community. Throughout the term the freshmen class was known for it's group efforts and reliability. The sophomore officers focused more on providing entertainment for their class, such as planning events like picnics and a trip to Raging Waters. When asked what she liked the most about being an officer, sophomore Rachel Lyons replied "It's fun!" The junior class officer's schedule was quite full this term. Included in their extensive list were the

Freshmen:

Corey Samuel, Anya Fuchs, Adam Ganes, Misti Hassen, Felice Botts, Sarah Peterson, and Sam Dorman.

Sophomores

Nicole Marsh, Jessica Polsky, Rachael Lyons, Kristen Loken, Bo Pak, Caroline Barkin, Devon Lindow, Rebecca Meyer, and Vasey McClory

Juniors

Dixie Ching, Rachael Olson, Rebecca Husband, Ajuah Helton, Corrine Kennedy, Rickey Noley, Nina York, Alexis Hunter, Iskandar Najmuddin, Kerry Mar, Megan Lindow, Claire Johnston, and David Oden.

Seniors

Jason Brand, Monique Woods, Josh Aroner, Stacey Graggs, Emily Becker, and Melissa Parker.

Leaders

-Officers

Bowl-a-Thon, the Hoop-a-Thon and the Junior Prom. "It's cool to represent your own class and help elevate it's spirit," remarked Junior class officer Corinne Kennedy. The class of '91 officers probably had the toughest spring agenda. Besides planning fundraisers and the usual events like the Senior Prom and graduation, this year the seniors also had to deal with the new restrictions on the actual graduation itself. In general, all the officers did a great job this year and proved themselves worthy of their elected positions. And we hope in the following years they continue to do so.

Freshman

Sam Dorman, Eric Johnson, Corey Samuel, Sarah Peterson, Josh Lorber, Adam Ganes, Anya Fuchs, Robert Kariakin, Thomas Ritter, and Julian Liu.

Sophomores

Kristen Loken, Caroline Barkin, Bo Pak, Sarah Wells, Amorea Patrick, Rachael Lyons, Laura Wallis, Helen Purdue, and Tasha Henneman

Juniors

Corrine Kennedy, Iskandar Najmuddin, Nina York, Kerry Mar, Rachael Olson, Sharon Gee, David Oden, and Rebecca Husband.

Seniors

Jason Brand, Monique woods, Josh Aroner, Stacey Graggs, Emily Becker, and Melissa Parker.

Burning Down the Taos

TAOS

Once a year, history teacher David Eichorn takes ten BHS sophomores and juniors to the Global Peace Realities and Youth Leadership Conference in the beautiful setting of Taos, New Mexico. They join thirty other students from around the country to discuss all sorts of issues, from political to personal, and from global to local. Some of the topics the conference focused on this year were world hunger and the rainforests. Although everyone had a great time, and made new friendships, the Berkeley students felt dissatisfied with the general flow of the conference, as it was not useful and what they did learn was from the other students.

Kacy and Joanna think, "Is that what we're supposed to eat?" while Jake smiles at the photographer.

The group pauses for a photo in front of the Taos Pueblos.

"Momma don't let yer babies grow up to be psychopath cowboys."

Don't Stand So...

Close-Up

Destination: Washington D.C., the Capital of our Nation and the seat of power. And it was fun. At least that's what the 17 Close-Uppers who went to Washington said. They stayed for a week, touring the monuments from the Supreme Court to the lawns of the White House. The tour was not limited to the great monuments, however. The poor sections of Washington were given attention along with the wealthy. Some lucky students met Congressman Ron Dellums, while the other lucky ones went to a C-Span broadcast. The trip was put into perspective by Dellums who told the students, "Remember as you walk along, this all belongs to you."

Seven members of Close-Up pose with our congressman Ron Dellums.

Yes, and it's another group picture... in front of the Capital!

Ballz, Bikos, and Balances

 No, they're not juggling, they just threw their balls up in the air to show off.

Juggling Unicycles

When you think of flying balls, clowns riding on top of one wheeled bikes, and all around fun with your hands; you think of the circus, right? Wrong! You think of Berkeley High where the almost famous Juggling Unicycles Club resides. What makes this club so famous? Is it their amazing ability to defy gravity with round bouncy things and balance themselves upon a scaffolding of one wheel? Well, they can do that too. But the real reason that this club has gained so much appeal is their overwhelming sense of fun. It's easy, it's fun, and most importantly you can annoy your neighbors and local policemen by unicycling to school everyday.

Jolly Jimmy just jokes and juggles. (What happened to the rest of his balls?)

Another goober - I mean group - picture. (Psst - look at Jimmy's and Nathan's noses).

Deutsch Club

 Presenting Shonnon and Peter (in the corner) - our fearless and crazed co-presidents.

German Club

When we asked Co-Presidents Peter Coffin, Shonnon Llamas, and the rest of the club's vice presidents what they thought the German Club is all about, they answered,

"Wienerschnitzels and wooden shoes,
Porsches and german brews,
Sprockets and Häagen Dazs,
Dankeschön and Saint Nicholas,
Ms. Rowland or Die Frau,
the Berlin Wall and Löwenbrau,
Frankfurt, Darmstadt, and Munich,
And Inga that fine German chick,
Dumkopf and Oktoberfest,
O.K., O.K., you can figure out the rest!"

Ingo ist mein freund.

Peter gasps as he realizes that his hands are permanently glued to the heads of Ophira and Tri.

Some try to copy, but

Jacket

Despite having their office cut nearly in half, this year's Jacket staff maintained the quality, reliability, and respectability that we have come to expect from this paragon of integrity. The Berkeley High Jacket, the only regularly published, free publication at Berkeley High besides the bulletin, was led by Editor-in-Chief Ty "Me up and we'll have some fun" Alper and their staff advisor Terry "Duran" Doran. This year, the Jacket produced several sixteen page issues for the first time in Berkeley High history and won several prestigious awards from the American Scholastic Press Association and Columbia University.

"I would compare our staff to the Oakland A's. We combine power, speed and strength and we get the job done, but we, however, didn't choke in the World Series," said one eloquent staff member. "The Jacket is one small newspaper for Berkeley High but a huge step forward for the United States media industry," said Alper. Alper's right hand man was News Editor Jason "Name" Brand. Brand, despite his physical inadequacies, put out the best news section west of Orinda, with help from editors Jake "Hotel" Dorman and Justin "The nick of time" Pritchard. The sports department, while winning several awards from the Oakland Tribune, covered all the sports at Berkeley High School with humor, dedication, controversy, and overall excellence. Sports editor Adam "Shame" Epstein was aided by his notoriously flaky associate sports editors Jonathan "Tanda" Zucker and Seth Melamed "Ali". All of the interesting campus life stories were published under the direction of features editors Sara "Door to door" Bibel "Salesman" and Erika "Hot to" Trott. Sam "I am" Ernst and David Merrill "Lynch" were in charge of the opinion and editorial pages, which featured such renowned columns as Singing In The Sludge. On the one day that the business staff showed up, they raised enough money to (barely) print the paper every other week and sometimes even weekly. The Jacket photo editor was Jed "Of the class" Jacobsohn.

News editor Brand summed up this year's Jacket staff when he said, "Some try to copy, but boy do they look sloppy."

In a rare moment of tranquility at the Jacket office, Robin and Jon gaze into each other's eyes.

Ahhh- yes, it's the Jacket staff in all of its...glory?

The head editors and founders of the Ben Davis posse stare off into the sunset.

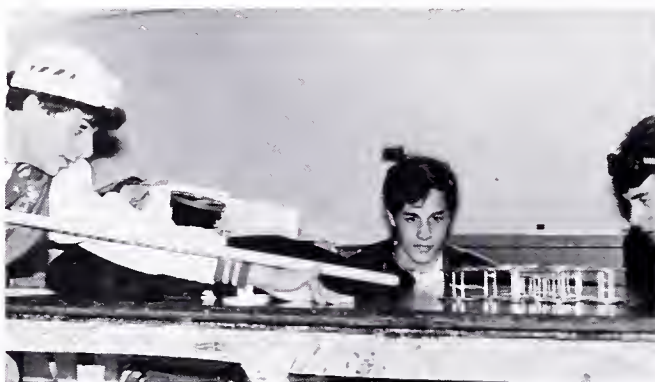

Milliard Vanilliard

Billiards Club

Many a club fills the yearbook at Berkeley High. There are serious clubs, political clubs, fundraising clubs, hardworking clubs, and many, many more. Then there's the Billiards Club. What the Billiards Club lacks in function, it makes up in purpose - to have full-blown, wild and passionate, no holds barred, can't touch this, plain old fun. This is a task that the Club doesn't take passively. You'll find this dedicated group every other Saturday at the Underground at Cal, playing pool, trying to achieve, to strive, for their meaningful and rewarding goal - to have fun. It's a tough job but someone's gotta do it.

 Andrew and Matt watch Dave intently since they have nothing else better to do.

 It's those brainy billiards players. (Lame caption by JLW - happy now Molly?)

G F Catering Co.

Eight periods a day, and lunch, you can find Barbara Wilder in the Good Food Cafe kitchen coaching her students. The Good Food Catering Company is a branch of the Good Food Cafe, and was created to offer students, fifty percent of whom are disabled, a chance to cook and earn money. Besides charging for their food, the catering company asks for a fifteen percent tip which is then split among the students. They are known in Berkeley for such delicacies as Carrot Cake and Sweet Potato Pie. Try them at your next dinner party!

 Next time, only put a dab of chili powder, not four spoonfuls!

 "Ewww - gross, I hate cleaning out the sink."

Changes

 Them again. (No @!%$#! candid were taken!)

Delta Club

Delta means change. For example a change in temperature, reactions, or in grades. The club brings together a group of students to help each other in the science classroom. Although this club may seem to be a bunch of nerdy students mulling together talking about boring things like depletion of the ozone layer, a new Aids vaccine, and how our energy problems can be solved, it really is a bunch of students who are concerned about the world they live in. So check out this new club and maybe you too can have better understanding of what you are taught for two periods a day. It might even make a change in your science grade. We hope.

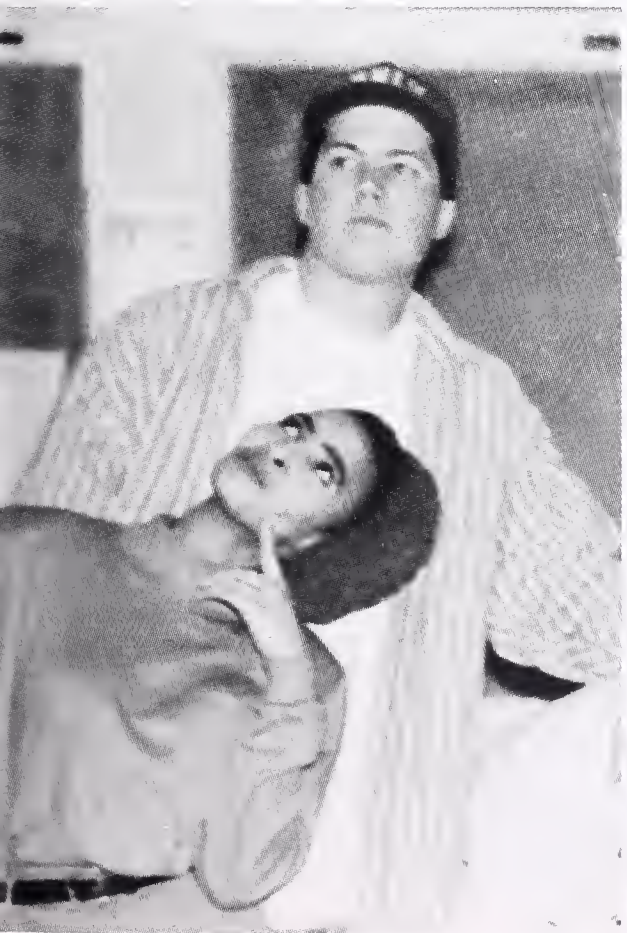

What's wrong with this picture?

A land of peace, order, and sheer beauty unmatched by anything on Earth. This radiant world convinced enough of the divers at Berkeley High to form the new club Marine Adventure Divers Floundering In SH_2O . They are planning group dives to lower the price, help educate water enthusiasts on all water sports, print a SCUBA newspaper, and inspire non-certified divers to become certified. If you have no fears of putting your head underwater and enjoy breathing through a hose, then this club is for you.

CSF

There's a new phenomenon sweeping Berkeley High this year. For the first time in eons people are attending CSF meetings. Believe it! The new presidents of the California Scholarship Federation, seniors Miya Nabeta and Elizabeth Riles, and vice presidents, Jeannie Lee and Abby Wilson, have set out to revolutionize and reform CSF. One of their new policies is that members must attend three out of four meetings in order to become a sealbearer at graduation. (And you know how good that looks on your Yale application.) The leaders are also trying harder than ever to raise money for the annual trip to Disneyland. Members are encouraged to work for fundraising enterprises such as bake sales and candygrams. This year's goals include making CSF meetings seem less like study periods and more social, with fun activities that people are eager to participate in. The club wants to encourage smart people to have fun with other smart people, and to make being in CSF an honor, and a reward for attaining good grades and excelling in school.

Members of CSF make their annual migration to that place where they go.

Key ~~9/11~~ Club

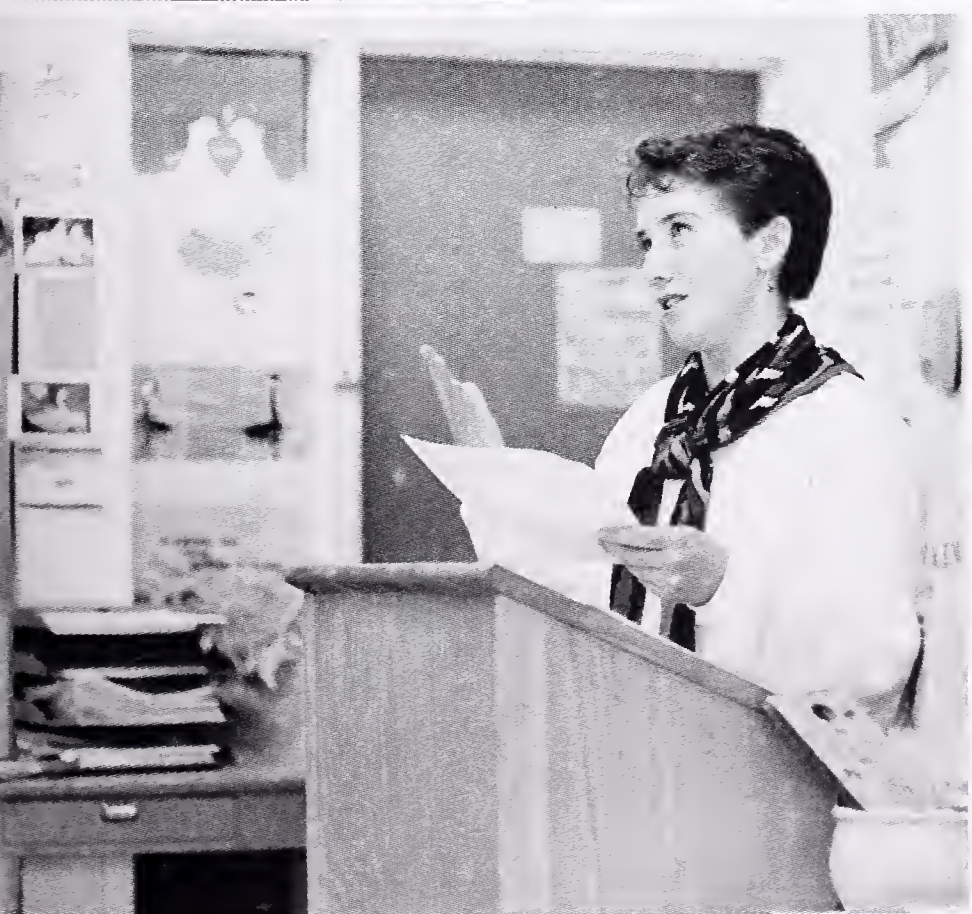

Key Club

Okay, so what does the Key Club do? Well they give out candy on Club Day... Oh yeah don't they have something to do with the Winter Ball? The Berkeley High Key Club is part of a larger international organization that fundraises and donates to a charitable cause. This year the Key Club volunteered at the Special Olympics and sponsored the annual toy drive. A new project the club undertook was to grant a dying child's last wish. For each dollar donated a dream came one step closer to reality.

But perhaps the Winter Ball is the Key Club's biggest project. It takes a lot of effort and a great attitude. The club hopes to raise over $2,000 and use the proceeds to buy blankets and clothes for the homeless.

This year Sophie Aissen, President of the Key Club, has tried to change the club's image. The 50 member club is ethnically and sexually diverse, representing a variety of ideas and backgrounds. The purpose of the Key Club is to improve the world we live in. We all wish them huge success.

 Sophie explains the art of Key Clubbing.

French Club

This year the French Club was under the fearless leadership of Anna Broemel and Sara Bibel, whose love of the language was demonstrated by the fact that they both dropped the darn class. After an exciting and adventurous start the club dwindled to it's usual level of involved apathy. The club considered changing its name to the Film Society to drum up interest and membership, but ended up sticking with Le Club Francais. Activities of the club this year have included theme dinners, French videos and films, including "Cyrano de Bergerac." They hope to soon have a picnic where they will attempt to improve on their conversational skills.

Z Place to Be

Z Club

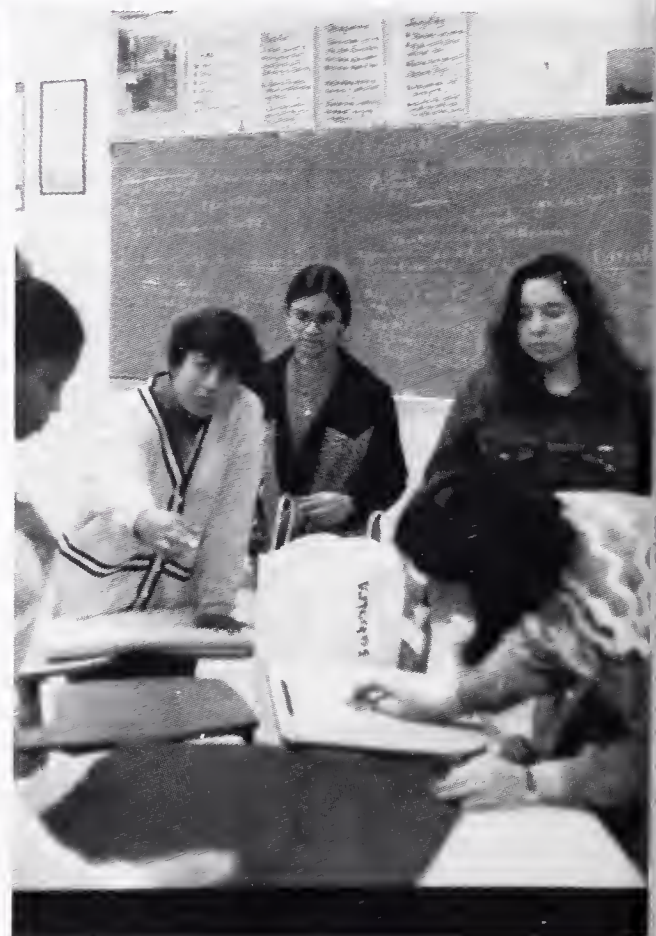

The Z Club of Berkeley at BHS is affiliated with the Zonta Club, an organization which provides community services. The Z Club at Berkeley High serves many functions, including providing services within the school, the immediate community, as well as internationally. One of their main focuses is support for students who are continuing their education after graduating high school. The "Zonta Proper," as they like to call their mother organization, offers the students of this club support in their endeavors, opportunities for scholarships, and holds several banquets to introduce them into other forms of public services.

The Japanese Animation Club is now on its 2nd year and it continues to show some of the best T.V. animations and original animation videos around, thanks to club president Frank Chen. "This club is a great way to spend lunch," says Frank. "We give the opportunity for students at BHS to see a form of art and entertainment that they have not experienced," says club member Phillip Yee. Next year, the club plans to bring members to the Bay Area Animation Convention in San Jose. Japanese Animation classics like AKIRA, BUBBLEGUM CRISIS will be shown and animation - thirsty fans can enjoy the adventures of Japanese animation.

Project 10

Project 10 is a student-run gay, lesbian and bi-sexual social support group at Berkeley High School. It was founded by Mary Griffith, a fundamentalist housewife living in Walnut Creek. Her son Bobby was a homosexual, and she could not accept this. Feeling alone and hated by the world, Bobby committed suicide. In the face and world of "homophobia and ignorance" Bobby could not accept who he really was

- a gay person. From that point on, Bobby's mother, Mary, went on a crusade to educate herself and others about homosexuality. Since gay high school students are often isolated and misunderstood, Mary set out to reach these students by starting a high school support group. Thus giving birth to Project 10. The "10" refers to a study indicating that about ten percent of the world's population has homosexual tendencies. Although Los Angeles schools were the first to begin their own Project 10s and to receive national attention in the 1980's, Berkeley High had its own support group during the 1970's. San Francisco has just started a group as well in the recent years. It is Mary's hope that such a group will prevent any other "Bobbys" from taking their own lives. They are here to break the grip of shame, to support gay, lesbian and bi-sexual students so that they are not alone and may walk with pride knowing that they are in good company.

Ohmigod. It's way too late to be here. I've gotta do this quick! DEADLINES, DEADLINES. More pics to crop, more printing layouts, we need nourishment (pizza?). Still more titles to write. Aggh. Captions! Captions! I can't type. Where'd our layouts go? Stop talking to me. What? Indexing - you must be crazy. We don't even know who are in them. Co-ed Naked Debate

JSA

Junior Statesmen of America is an organization which enables high school students to express their political and social views among peers. They focus on the Fall and Spring State conferences, which have chapters from all over northern California. During the conferences, students debate and discuss controversial issues like abortion, the death penalty, and above all whether men are better than women (no). The Berkeley chapter prides itself on being an individual group of people, which many try to copy. Following BHS tradition, they made a spectacle of themselves at the last Gubernatorial Banquet by wearing 70's clothes and soul-training in "fashionably" late, while other schools wore three-piece suits and prom dresses. President Sara Eaton, secretary Shonnon Llamas and treasurer Luis Orozco have kept themselves busy with fundraisers like Valentine grams and T-shirt sales in order to cut down the costs of the overnight conferences. The biggest and best JSA chapter of them all has been a huge success this year, and hopes that in future years, BHS maintains its wacky reputation.

Nick Shenkin says to a loud-mouth in the audience, "Look, why are you trying to clown? Just shut up and sit down!"

Improv Club

AHHH...the wacky and subservient improv club. You could say these pupils of the impervious and godlike art are geniuses in their own right. Their talent has only been surpassed by the supreme, celestial performers such as SCHWARZANEGGER, MR. FURLEY, CHACHI, AND DARKMAN. One disciple and our Buddha, the one and only, homegrown stud CINNAMON ICE remarks, "Yo, chach! Get out of my face! Now that chick thinks I'm your friend." Although the ICE MAN (as his GOOD friends call him) has never been to a meeting he soon plans on attending. The improv club has no goals, aspirations, or plans for the future, although one member has already graced the modern screen. Recently, ex-member Jimmy(the spike)Shafer was arrested for a unicycle-ride-by-shooting and put on the 11 o'clock news. We are all proud of him. Well anyway, they usually meet every Wednesday and have an omniferous, laxitive-like, photosynthetically hepp time. As far as member requirments, the Improv club has only 2.1st that you know ADAM and PAUL are the eye. And 2nd that ERIC is the cosmic master debator.

Here we are - Funky Finger, rake man, Jean Claude van Bean, Dansmella, Red Farmer, Eddie Murphy, Adam's Ho and the rest of the crew.

Our fearless leaders, Adam (Watch me smirk) Affonso and Gretchen (Vikki Valoure) Liebrum.

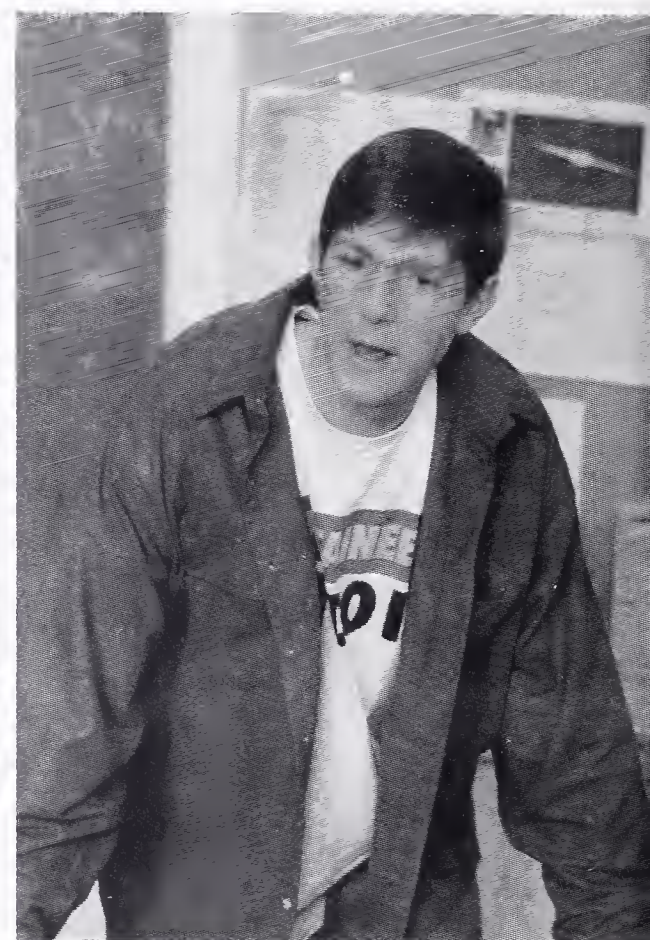

Yes another sucessfull, violent meeting of the Improv club. Hey Conal, how would you like a Nike Q-tip?

Let's Get Physical

Physics Club

The Berkeley High School Physics Club was created and initiated by seniors Elizabeth Riles, Ophira Bergman, and Jane Herr and sponsored by Physics teacher Karen Street as a study and support group for Berkeley High students. The members of the club range from freshmen in Conceptual Physics to seniors in Advanced Placement Physics, and everything else in between. The club has since branched out into discussions of other science topics and plans to aid in the selection of the Berkeley High School team to be sent to the Lawrence Hall of Science Quiz Bowl. If you ever need some help, or even are just curious, stop on by.

Dynamic Diplomats

IAC

The International Ambassador's Club is a new club at Berkeley High. The club's purpose is to help students from all over the world jump into the mainstream of Berkeley High School and help solve problems that new students are encountering. The club offers peer tutoring and counseling to help students reach their goals. The club was also formed for the recognition of international students. They have social activities that encourage the sharing of different cultures. The club discusses social, personal and racial problems. They welcome anyone, even if they are not foreign, at anytime to participate and share their ideas and culture.

Fun, friends and pasta. It's an offer that you can't possibly refuse (unless you're really kooky). It's the Italian Club. The Italian Club meets twice a month to plan pasta feeds and beach excursions, as well as brush up on their speaking skills. Sponsored by Robert E. Scofani, the Italian Club's popularity has increased due to the cancelation of the Italian language department last year. When asked why she is in the Italian Club, Kristen Loken replied, "It's the right thing to do and the tasty way to do it." A less devoted member (Rachel Lyons), when asked the same question replied, "I just wanted to be in the yearbook picture." Ciao!!

Designing Men

 "I call this 'Big Tree in Little Forest'," Chris tells Micha.

Print & Design

The guys and gals of INQ are a motley group of Berkeley High School students from all walks of life, and all grades (but only one sex, looking at the pics). They share a singular objective, a solemn vision, a fierce desire - to mass produce their art. Under the supervision of Mr. Valtr and a few knowledgeable students, they learn the process of silk screening, printing, and all sorts of other ways to spread their artistic talents. This was their first year of existence, and hopefully, the torch will continue to burn and INQ shall remain a part of Berkeley High for years and years to come.

Don't Mock Me

Mock Trial

Mock Trial is a unique experience for stressed and over-worked students who have a desire to become even more so. While preparing "The Case of the White Sombrero," they developed the talents of debating and criticizing, and, most importantly, had those invaluable group bonding sessions. The defendant faced 5 charges concerning driving under the influence and a felony hit-and-run. Pretrial lawyers Megan Lewis and Naomi Bardach faced many relentless judge one-on-one to argue the constitutionality of police profile stops. While the prosecuting attorneys Tama Weinberg, Conal Byrne, and Jacob Silverstein used their powers to convict the defendant, Hilary Matthews, defense attorneys Dania Bourkoff, Sonya Nevill and Ben Katzenellenbogen boodle proved to be a hard match. The witnesses were Abby Wilson, Sonja Mackenzie, Clair Yoder and Rebecca Bloch for the prosecution, and Hilary Matthews, Emma Cooper-Serber, Lori Schwab, and Josh Fong for the defense. Naomi Wilson and Rachel Lyons, the clerk and baliff, and the defense witnesses were the main target of strict anti-smiling rules, however no one adhered to those rules outside of court.

AFS

American Field Studies is an international exchange program for high school students. Those who are daring enough to brave such peculiarities as chicken feet for dinner or fried bananas for breakfast, can go to far-off, exotic lands like Thailand and Venezuela. While living in a foreign country one can learn more than just a new language. The student must learn to become a member of a new family and accept their custom. As an AFSer you may go to school in the morning or evening, where you discover new forms of education and find friends. Learning about a different culture provides many insights and helps you understand your own country. The benefits gained are numerous and last a lifetime. However, those who are not up to facing the challenge of fitting into a new culture can still join AFS. Volunteers and local support are the essence of the organization. Anyone can host a foreign student, and are encouraged to do so. Currently the club is trying to raise enough money to provide a scholarship for the coming year. Despite the unavoidable and expected cultural mistakes that one makes, AFS is definitely a wonderful opportunity that everyone should take advantage of.

To Read or Not to Read

Literature Club

The Literature Club is now in it's second year, with an ever dwindling number of members. Despite having only 7 people, the members have had a hard time deciding which books to read. So instead of discussing literature, they have spent their Friday lunchtimes talking about their favorite books and trying to convince other members that those books would be the best books to read all together. Among the choices are Les Miserables, A Story like the Wind, Heart of a Woman, and The Flame Trees of Thika, which they finally agreed to read. After several weeks of intense debate and heated discussions, they have now almost finished this literary classic.

Latinos Unidos

"This is just the first step," says Ms. Sanders of the club she advises - La Raza/ Latinos Unidos. Some might assume that La Raza promotes segregation, but the club members disagree. They feel that uniting together now will give them the potential to succeed later. In fact, although the club participates in activities such as the Cinco de Mayo celebration, their main focus is to support the school and to graduate from high school. This year they are fundraising a graduation celebration for the graduating Latino students. Ms. Sanders says that La Raza/ Latinos Unidos is a bridge to success, not only in high school, but hopefully also later in life.

This was supposed to be a group picture, but no one wanted to face the camera.

Movie Makers

Ever since they were young, they have strived to become makers of movies. It was the common goal and fantasy shared between the founders and members of the Movie Makers Club at BHS. The club wasn't as successful as their professional endeavors. Their greatest experience was working on Goodfellas with Martin Scorsese and Robert DeNiro. Their greatest disappointment was when their scene got cut.

We would like to thank those actors and directors for inspiring us: Helena Bonham Carter, David Lynch, Michelle Pfeiffer, Ingrid Bergman, Akira Kurosawa, Jennifer Jason Leigh, and the aforementioned Martin Scorsese and Robert DeNiro.

Now

The National Organization for Women is a women's rights activist group. Split into four sections, each focuses on a different aspect of the ideas for which N.O.W. stands for. One group works on the topic of rape and battery, another on how women are projected by the media, a third on sexism, and the fourth focuses on teen pregnancy, birth control and abortion. This year, N.O.W. took a poll of student opinions and actions to see what issues needed to be addressed. They worked on forming peer-help groups for pregnant students and helping them deal with having abortions or giving up their children for adoption.

For International Womens Day, N.O.W. had speakers talk on different topics. Many women spoke on what it was like to work in a male-dominated profession or how they are treated in their workplaces. For those teachers who could not bring their classes, a booklet about current women's issues were passed-out for class discussion. In the past, N.O.W. has not had any male members but in the '90-'91 school year there were quite a few males. N.O.W. meets in Ms. Groves' room every other Thursday and hopes to see you there next year.

KHP

"Knights of the Holy what?" inquires an infidel, who is having an extremely hard time grasping the purpose of this club. "PYTHON!" is the answer, issued loudly from the mouths of KHP's over 100 members. They are assembled yet again in Mr. Panaseko's room, this time to view the 1st episode of Monty Python's Flying Circus. Notes President & Commander In Chief Damian Hess, "I have nothing to say, but I enjoy being quoted." Prime Minister Jack Bailey concurs with an expressive "Ditto." "It's amazing," observes Designated French Taunter Gabe Caesar, "how this club took off. I thought I'd be the only one here." He's right, albeit he rarely makes it to the meetings: the response, in terms of membership, is unrivaled in the history of new clubs. "Yeah, wow," chips in Minister of Silly Walks Dave Hedges "they were turning 'em away at the door. Only so many people can watch one TV." Whatever, Dave. Future plans of the Knights include an all-night marathon of Monty Python and Terry Gilliam films, a plan which "may have to be canceled," explains Upper Class Twit Dominic Mah, "because we haven't actually got any money." Good luck, Pythonites.

 All hail the Knights (and their umbrellas).

Black Power

ASA

The African-American Student Association (A.S.A.) is a group of students who have come together to teach others about Black culture and raise social consciousness. Headed by president Drummond Threat and co-vicepresidents Joseph Stoltz, Stacy Graggs, and Alli Phelps and secretary Daisy Coleman, they have made many accomplishments this year.

A.S.A. held a beautiful, well organized Quanza assembly in the Little Theater and ran a bone marrow drive for Mr. Navies. They also officiated the Marathon for Blood at Lake Marrit. The African-American Student Association also organized and held a protest to bring the benches back to the slopes. In addition they ran the "Back to Black" week festivities and presentations.

"I joined the African-American Student Association at the end of my tenth grade year. I think it is a really strong organization," said A.S.A Seargent of Arms, Monique Woods, "I love my own people. The truth has to be taught to African-Americans. Also, because I am a senior, I hope I could be a positive role model to other African- American students."

Over the River and Through the Woods

Hiking Club

The Hiking Club was conceived by a group of outdoor enthusiasts bent on breaking their bones against the hard tarp of mother nature. "It's been the most painful, bloody, and wonderful experience of my life!" said Joanna Sapir, as she removed the ice pack from her swollen eye. "I learned so much in the wild - how to sew muscle tissue together, how to climb a mountain with multiple injuries - and I loved every bit of it!" Avi Hesterman concurs through the mouth slit in his body cast. "This may be a new club, but we've done more than some (like the Pythonites) ever will. How many of them have lived off raw cabbage, rutabegas and rainwater for a weekend?" The rapidly expanding group soon hopes to hold its first annual Outdoorsperson of the year contest, in which contestants will race across the Rockies toward Berkeley, armed only with a pocketknife. "The wilderness is not just a place to see nature," concluded Hilary Grubb, "it is a place where the human race confronts its worst, most alluring nemesis and proves that only their bones will crack under pressure. The spirit endures like a flag whipping in an immense storm of chaos." Come and join the fun - if you dare.

Blood, Sweat, and... Bears?

Rugby Club

For years, the Berkeley Rugby Club (the B-town Hit Squad) has made a celebration of violence. Clad only in shorts, cleats, and jerseys, thirty men whole-heartedly attempt to decapitate their opponents. Protected only by their pride, the players of this sport must sacrifice their bodies, keeping safe one sacred essential. Contrary to popular belief, Rugby is more than a suicide free-for-all. A strict set of rules and advanced strategy are integral to the game. Still, Rugby is a haven for real men, big drinkers, and, of course, the criminally insane.

The forward pack consists of Max Proctor and Giacomo Damonte at props, Chuck Hill at hooker, Patrick Harvey and Ezra Evans locking, Yarrow Dunham at 8 man, and Mark Van Veenendaal and T Lopez switching at loose forward. In the back field we have the masked man playing scrum half, Zack Zeights and Sasha Bissell switching off at stand off, the hooded one at inside center and Derick Harrimen on the outside. Dan Levi plays fullback with Miles Hyman and Matt Estes playing the wing positions.

With its brute strength and blinding speed Berkeley is hungry for a title, and knows what has to be done to win one.

Najuma

The Najuma Dance Troupe, formerly known as the Najuma Dance Club, performs to a variety of music including Jazz and hip-hop. Under President Pearl Whitmore, a senior who is behind the transformation from club to troop, Najuma has grown from ten to nineteen members. Pearl says that she was thinking about starting her own troop when she found out that no one was in charge of Najuma. Now she is in charge of choreographing all the dances, picking the costumes and arranging performance dates. So far this year they have performed twice - at the Back to Black week celebration, and at a dance festival in Oakland. Pearl said that both performances were very well received. Anyone who enjoys dancing and is willing to spend some spare time several days a week is welcome to join in on the fun.

PROBE

Was it because of a sudden and burning desire to merge with the age of environmentalism? Au contraire, the PReservers Of Bio Environments was created a month before the Alar scare that touched off the world's greatest ecological movement. In 1989, America turned its eyes to the apples of Washington and the oil of Alaska, and consciousness was ignited. An explosion of protests and demonstrations and boycotts rocked the Bay. Not that PROBE was a part of this; no, PROBE began its stuff earlier in August with a superb whale watch to the Farallone Islands.

Since then, PROBE has taken trips and collaborated in events around Berkeley. This year they adopted Muir Beach for cleanups and initiated aluminum can recycling. The club's dependence on its flaky president Sylvester Wong is its only stumbling block, as PROBE activities waxed and waned with the president's schedule.

Next year, the club will be without its first generation members, and it will go into a whirling tornado of chaos and confusion, until one (or two) leader(s) emerge from the fight for control and introduce much needed pizzazz.

Yes, it's the members of PROBE, doing their own thing (cleaning their newly adopted beach).

STOP

Berkeley is well known for its politically-conscious, let's bring-about-change philosophy. One of many examples of this at Berkeley High is Students Together Opposing Prejudice. STOP was founded a few years ago by a Berkeley High student after several incidents of racial tension at BHS. This year, the co-presidents, seniors Sean Smukler and Peter Coffin continued to work toward improving race relations at BHS. STOP works closely with the three ethnic clubs here, the African Student Association (ASA), the Asian Student Union (ASU), and La Raza/ Latinos Unidos. This past year they also reviewed proposed textbooks for the World History courses. In their research, STOP found the books were biased and favored some races over others. STOP also helped and initiated the Ethnic Studies Program. Under this program, a mandatory ethnic history course replaces study hall for freshmen. STOP initiated this program last year and has followed it through to its establishment, an accomplishment that took dedication and hard work - two qualities that will continue to make S.T.O.P. an active, fun, and successful club.

ideas came pouring in, and we decided on the obvious. So Shonnon "Editor" and Mary "Chief" thought, "Well, there may be a lot of goobs, but we can make a great yearbook." And so they began.

Things were going fine until Kratz fell ill and the publisher's representative retired and Ethan the computer man left and our files were erased and our layouts were all an $\frac{1}{8}$ of an inch off and the photographers were non-existent. But we managed.

We didn't get a publisher's representative until February and then he told us the instructions the other one had told us were wrong. Nancy Ross became our new advisor. Nathan became our new computer man. We got back some files, and those we didn't we started from scratch. And the photographers were still nowhere to be found.

To make this long story short, things cleared up, and our mistakes were fixed, and everything turned out a-okay.

Most of us agree that what makes yearbook most memorable is the people. Long, tedious and tiresome hours were spent within the walls of yearbook with a lot of weird and wacky people. And it was even fun.

MEN'S VARSITY POLO

LOCKER TALK

This year's men's Water Polo Team had an exceptionally strong season, "beating the crap out of all the Valley schools," according to senior Scott Demai, and playing 'Polo the way it really ought to be played.

The team was especially powerful at their home pool, Willard Jr. High, winning all three of their home games against Encinel, Alameda, and Antioch. Spectator turnout was surprisingly large for all the home games. "Actually," says one anonymous freshman, "we just came to see the guys in their little Speedos." Whatever the reason, the men's team rewarded their avid fans with a season record of seven wins, three losses, and a respectable tournament record of 5-6.

Six of the seven starters will graduate this year. They are goalie Eric Ariyoshi, sprinter Scott Demai, All North Coast players Craig Gruber and Sean Smuckler, N.C. Honorable mention Aaron Schweitzer, and designated hitman Evan Wagner. The only non-senior starter is junior Josh Palmquist, who will be the base for next year's team along with junior Ben Galloway, junior Mike Wong, sophomore Sam Veloz, sophomore Scott Von Knopka, sophomore Wyath Pierce, sophomore Jordan Gatto, and freshman Ben Schnayerson.

Leading scorers this season were Craig Gruber and Sean Smuckler, who combined to make half of all the goals scored.

WOMEN'S VAR. POLO

LOCKER TALK

This year's Varsity Women's Water Polo Team truly exemplified what good Polo can be. When opposing teams heard their rallying cheers and saw their bulging muscles they knew they were already defeated. It was an awesome spectacle. Seniors Leah Schwartz and Shoshanna Marks led the team's scoring machine, helped out by the rest of the starters: junior Kerry Sheffner, senior Ellen Sanok, senior Amanda Cromwell, and senior Yetunde Ramsey. Senior goalie Jenny "don't call me muppet" Calder kept the Valley scoring to a minimum. Key factors in the Varsity Women's spirited attack on anything wearing waterproof green eyeshadow were their creative cheers:

- 1) "Bon Jovi rocks it!"
- 2) "Jenny's got a gun"
- 3) "In the midnight hour, we cried 'score score score!'"
- 4) "You've got to want it to win it, and you may want it more, but you can't always get what you want."
- 5) "Do it for Gonzo!"

"So what if our statistics weren't all that great," said senior Ellen Sanok, "the team really supported each other. It was lots of fun."

J.V. WATER POLO

LOCKER TALK

The J.V. water polo teams, awesome though they may be, spent much of their time contemplating other things— like what a sexual sport Polo is.

From “screw” shots to “pop” shots, “pumping” to “clogging the hole”, the J.V. women developed a new angle to the previously conservative (not) sport of Water Polo.

Although similar thoughts probably crossed the J.V. boys’ minds, they were not so readily voiced. However, smiles were abundant the days they scrimmaged the Womens’ teams. What’s on your minds guys?

Okay, so neither team had an exactly ideal record. The point is to have fun, right? Both teams had that one in the bag.

“When it really came down to it, we proved to (coach) Cherie that we could win,” said sophomore Jenny Gibney, “Especially against Downey.”

Aside from being talented Water Polo players, the J.V. Boys have a wonderful talent for avoiding Yearbook Sports Editors, and therefore are not exactly well-represented. Sorry guys, you have no one to blame but yourselves.

The Women’s starters were senior Kim Ganeles, junior Terri Irwin, junior goalie Fatimah Gilliam, sophomore Rachel Rice, sophomore Jenny Wolan, sophomore Jessica Shera, and freshman Felice Botts. The boy’s starters were Jacob Feeley, Jordan Gatto, Nathaniel Gildersleeve, Wyath Pierce, Sam Veloz, and Scott Von Knopka. Their goalies were Mehrdad Valiyee and Ryan Smukler.

FIELD HOCKEY

LOCKER TALK

"Field hockey? We have a field hockey team?" This is the response of many Berkeley High students when asked about the team. However, to twenty Berkeley High women, field hockey is more than just an overlooked page in the yearbook.

Though this year was not exactly a season of endless wins, it was not a total loss either. All of the players, with the exception of Heather Pond, were novices to the sport and with superb coaching soon learned to master their stick skills. According to one team member, "There was a lot of enthusiasm on the team this year. Considering we had very few experienced players, we played well, and we had fun." The team's improvement throughout the season was apparent.

The BHS field hockey team competed with University High in San Francisco, Davis High, and several San Jose teams. This year's team included seniors Maia "hi ya" Hightower and Erika "fox" Trott; juniors Liz "my best" Friend, Elana "do you wanna" Kelman, Cybele "ring 'em" Lerman, Jenafer "taught me" Lindh, Kerry "is so very" Mar, Hilary Mathews, Rachael Olson, Heather "-ola" Pond, and Nina "New" York; and sophomores Robin Alper, Clair Chesson, Leah "look I gotta" Hickey, Kristen Loken, Vasey "Spacey" McClory, Nicole Marsh, Jill "Sneezus" Vizas, Chloe "let's wait a" Weil, and Katie "just wait a" Wyle.

WOMEN'S TENNIS

LOCKER TALK

Coached by Wendy Guinn, this year's Women's Tennis team had a remarkable 14-0 season, won the Bay Valley Athletic League Tournament, and came close to taking the North Coast Section.

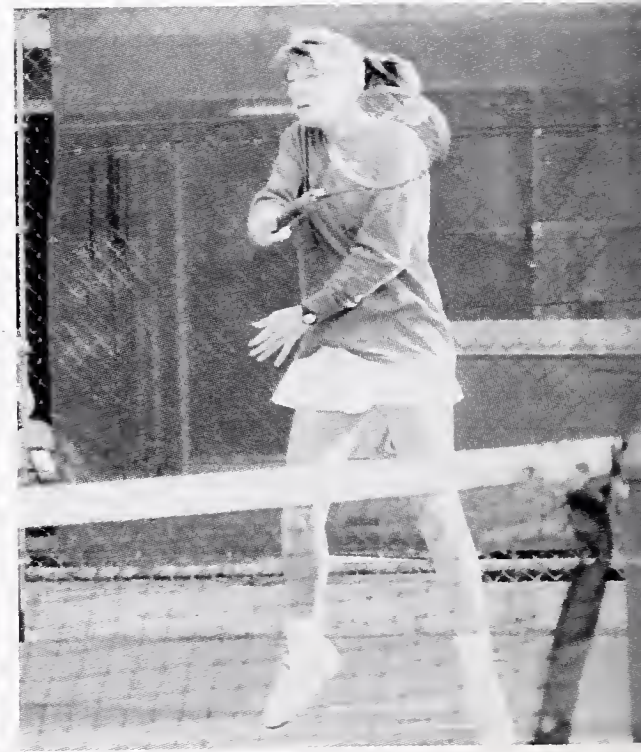

In the BVAL singles event, Junior Dixie Ching took first place, while Senior Emily Becker went as far as the semi-finals. The Dynamic Duo Alexis Hunter and Nicola McClung finished first in the doubles matches. In the North Coast Section singles, Ching went as far as the finals, while Hunter-McClung went into the second round. Other team members included Suzannah Booth, Diva McKenney, Alison Taylor, Marcela Taylor, Katherine Petit, Maia Hightower, Jenna Donatelli, Nada Novakovich, Kate Lydon, Rachel Garlin, Jessica Grunwald, Polly Meyer, Kirsten Drake, and Nona Zicherman. Aside from technique training, the athletes also did a lot of overall body conditioning to improve on-court performance and endurance which resulted in an extremely successful season. "We had lots and lots of fun. Tennis is so cool!" Said junior Jessica Grunwald. Many live by the words of junior Heather Chandler of Westerborg High who says "Tennis is so 'very.'" Former teammate Alia Ibrahim says: "like—Oh, my god—I just can never decide what sport to do, tennis or water polo...or—neither!!" Yearbook staff thanks Nick Shenkin for supplying the quotes.

J.V./FROSH F-BALL

LOCKER TALK

"For those who thought we were weak because we only won one game, we're coming back." said Ted Wesley (punter). That summed up the season for the junior varsity and freshman football teams, who both had extremely difficult seasons. They had to play all varieties of teams, including many tough varsity teams. A scary thought... our innocent little freshmen at the hands of some huge senior brutes from the Valley. But that's often the way it was. The one game the Freshmen won this year was Berkeley High vs. Clayton Valley. This game was not an amazing comeback as in the Varsity Homecoming game, but rather an intense perseverance by the strong men on the team. It took courage for Doug Anthrop, quarterback, to say this on the ability of his team: "Major disorganization, dude. Only us freshmen against Juniors and Seniors teams. It's so unfair. Totally." The freshmen played hard all season, and had many exciting games, but feel that they are not supported as much as they would like to be. The freshmen need athletic supporters, BHS!!!! (hee hee) Said one anonymous Junior, "I would go to the freshmen games if I knew anyone on the team. You know, like people in my class who I could cheer for." Juniors? On a freshman team?? That'd be a first. But remember, these are the people who will be on Varsity in one or two years, so let's all remember to show them the respect they deserve, or one day they will grow up and beat the living manure out of all of us who doubted them. Their coach summed up the season with these words: "We have progressed a whole lot. If we keep up the intensity, I'm sure we will have a successful season next year."

VAR FOOTBALL

LOCKER TALK

"The Homecoming game was great, because we stopped five years of losing. Now we will be able to put our names in the trophy room for beating one of the best teams in the Bay Area," said Jonathan D. Russ (offensive guard, nose tackle) of the Berkeley High Varsity Football team. The most memorable thing about this year's season was the stunning football victory over the Pinole Valley Spartans at the Homecoming game. The team, which had been counted out by many in the school, won Berkeley High's first league victory in over five years. Senior Jerod Cherry (#30), had a strong season as he led the team to victory with three touchdowns in the Homecoming game alone. Senior Moji Earl (#7) and sophomore Wayne Morgan (#8) also had strong seasons as running backs. Berkeley's defense was extremely effective all season. At one point, Berkeley had the number two rated defense in a with one of the highest ranked teams in the nation, De La Salle. Seniors Joe Dominguez (#23), Matt Estes (#82), Matt Bissell (#65), Brandon Delp (#50) and their defensive captain Jerod Cherry had a great final year on defense. Senior Kenny Pitts (#80) also had a fine year as both tight end and defensive end. "I wish more people would have come to the games and supported us throughout the whole year," said Junior Mike Ehrenfish after the Homecoming game. Although the team didn't have a total winning season, they were successful nonetheless. "We have a good team this year. What we are proud of is that all of our players are academically eligible," said head coach Willie Crittendon. The Yearbook Staff congratulates the Football Jackets on a wonderful season and fantastic Homecoming game.

WOMEN'S X-COUNTRY

LOCKER TALK

This year's cross-country team deserves a round of applause for a job well done. They did an outstanding job this year. Their incredible efforts, performances, and spirit made it possible for them to squash the competition. You gotta love them.

Once again, the team was coached by Mr. Conning and Mr. Ward, who did a commendable job. The Varsity Team was led by Sunny Sturges, Krista Malmstrom, Kelda Malmstrom, Megan Lindow, Claire Johnston, Elena Martysh, Ona Stiles, Leslie Charlson, and Sheri Teale. The J.V. team was Beatrice Wikander, Jenny Berrien, Kehinde Adeagbo, and Renee Johnson. The team did more than just run this year, however; some of their other activities were beach runs, barbeques and tie-dying parties. The team's record this year was exceptional. They placed third in North Coast, and sent runners Sunny Sturges and Krista Malmstrom to the State Meet. The Varsity Team achieved victories over Pinole, El Cerrito, Clayton Valley, Carondelet, Ygnacio Valley, and Pittsburg (forfeit). The only loss the Varsity suffered this year was a upset to Antioch; a team which they defeated earlier at the San Ramon Invitational. Although about half of the girls on both J.V. and Varsity are graduating this year, returning members Sunny Sturges, Megan Lindow, Claire Johnston, and Elena Martysh should keep the team kicking dust and taking names.

Star runner Sunny Sturges seems to be focused on something else in this team picture.

WOMEN'S VOLIBÓL

LOCKER TALK

The Women's Varsity volleyball team ended their season this year with a kill, beating Pinole Valley three games to one. For seniors Elisa Gray(middle blocker), Leah Keleman(middle blocker),Talya Ebel, Jeannie Lee, and Katie McDavid(outside hitter), it was the last game of their career as superstar athletes at Berkeley High. Junior Tammy Holmes, voted "most valuable player", transferred into Berkeley High just in time to assist the seniors in dazzling the opponents with their awesome skill as well as blowing them away with their powerful hitting. Second year coach Ed Cohen worked hard at making his team the best they could be with tough practice workouts and strict discipline at every game. A lot of the team's strength this year came also from Sophomores Ellie Everet and Sierra Gribble, and Juniors Freda Vaugman and Rochelle Rasmussen, who will keep the intensity within the team in games to come. Setters Carla Healy-London, Lauren Gerber, and Clair Yoder increased the team's ability to win. Because all the team members insist that they hate the tight shorts that they have to wear, a suggestion for next year is bikini bottoms or maybe even G-strings. This is intended not only for a more comfortable fit, but also to increase spectator support. For all those sports fans that prefer the "tighty-whitey" look, not to worry; rumor has it that its the proposed 1991-92 Berkeley High P.E. uniform. Sports editor Kim Ganeles says, "Hmm...sounds like a good idea. Maybe the crew team needs to rethink the Henley and trou get-up." Sports editor Misha MacLaird says, "Remember, its not how many games you win, its how many hoots you get from the spectators." Words to live by.

GYMNASTICS

LOCKER TALK

The best term to describe the 1991 Berkeley High Women's Gymnastics program is "short and sweet." In the three month season, only two meets were held, of which only one was judged. In their first meet, although the BHS Varsity team performed the best, they lacked an Elite team and could not compete in those events which required one, and therefore lost the entire meet. Throughout the season though, the girls described their experiences as "memorable". In the past, the BHS Gymnastics team has not gotten much recognition or support, but this is something that members are trying to change. "I hope we have more support next year," says Sophomore Devin Lindow, adding "That's a hint for all you gymnasts out there." It goes without saying that Coach Don Allin was the most important member of the team. "I'm really glad that he was there for us, especially with this being his last year," says Junior Arisa Pecot, "We'll miss him a lot." The team was made up of eight women. Sara Trott, Susannah Blumenstock, Devin Lindow, and Colleen Richey were Varsity, while Aresa Pecot, Leslie Charlson, and Eveline Sequin were JV.

Have you ever tried to bake something? You followed the directions, but it just didn't seem to turn out right? You had all the right ingredients but you just couldn't put the whole thing together.

Under coach Ward, this years Varsity team (Matt Calvert, John Schaar, Justin Pritchard, David Benedetto, Dan Goheen, Daniel Packard and Stefan Hack) did manage a 2-5 record, beating Pinole and Pittsburg. They also placed eighth in the Ramone Invitational and fifth in North Coast. Two runners that had a very good season were Matt Calvert and John Schaar. Calvert showed the league who was boss and finished first or second in many of the league meets.

Schaar had a superb season as well. Matt and John are graduating this year, but with upcoming J.V. runners like Andre Sequin, Kenji Hughes, Avi Hesterman, Matt Hartman, Peter Lagaay and Jeremy Wright, they'll have both recipe and direction; making victory as easy as pie.

Overall this year's Varsity Men's Basketball team had an impressive season finishing second in their league with a league record of 10-4 and an overall record of 16-11. Their last game was especially exciting, although the hardworking Jackets ended up losing to Bishop O'Dowd 65-61 in double overtime. There is never any doubt that the team proves their strength each time they step onto the court. The season started out slow, with the first three games being losses, which put our Jackets in last place. As Coach Mitchell said: "They really came together in the end," Mitchell attributed much of the success of the team to the defense. The Jackets were led by Senior guard Winsor Alston III who had one hundred and twenty-seven FGs, the highest on the team. Senior Antonio Scott, who had the most assists, junior forward Eric Saibel, who had the most FGAs, forward Terrence Garrett and junior center Kevin Johnson, who had the highest percent of field goals made, they also led the Jackets through their successful season. Coach Mitchell best sums up the men's season with the word "fantastic".

WOMEN'S HOOP

LOCKER TALK

The 1990-91 Women's Varsity Basketball Team had yet another amazing season, going undefeated in league play and advancing to North Coast Sectionals. The team is ranked Number one in the state, thanks to the help of powerful All-American players such as Senior Tanda Rucker and Junior Lynda Robinson. Another strong player, Senior Alexandra Kay, was signed early to the University of California at Berkeley.

The Lady 'Jackets were coached by Gene Nakamura, who is also the Vice Principal of Willard Jr. High School. "He's a great coach," said one player, "He's well respected and has a good knowledge of the game." Nakamura has been coaching for eight years.

In addition to their post-season tournaments, the team participated in the Santa Barbara Tournament of Champions over Winter vacation, the best tournament in the state and the second best in the nation. The Lady 'Jackets finished second to Morningside High School, their arch-rivals of the previous season.

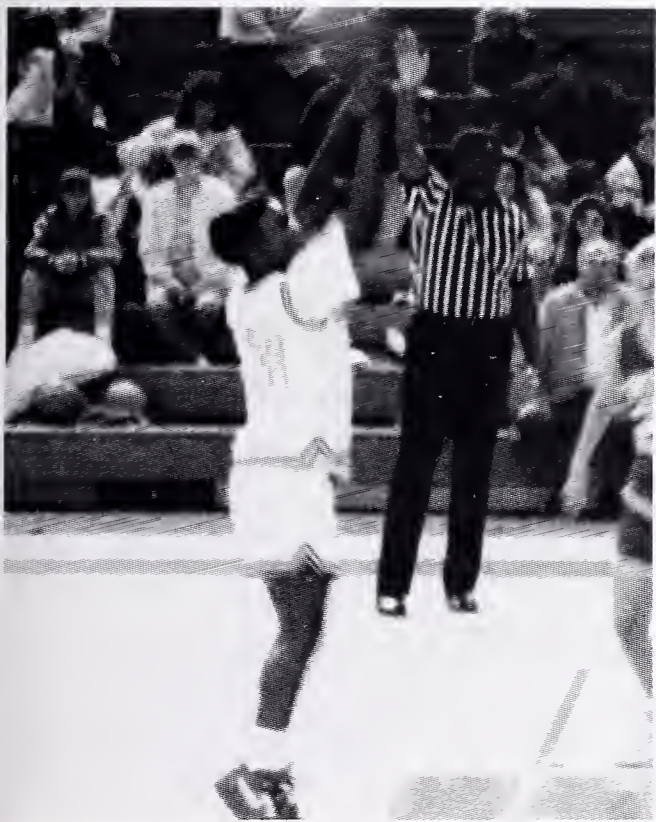

This year's team is basically a young team, and shows a lot of potential for next season, bringing up a lot of promising Junior Varsity and Freshmen players. "I feel really good about next year," said Junior hoopster Rachel Garlin, "I think we're destined to have another really great season." Graduating players include Tanda Rucker, Alexandra Kay, Katy McDavid, Julie Kono, and Saphronia Johnson.

J.V. HOOP

LOCKER TALK

Berkeley High Junior Varsity Women's basketball team had an impressive season, they won many more games than last year's junior varsity squad, that's not saying much, considering that last year's team won one game! The Lady Jacket's had an impressive team as one player said: "Most of our wins we credit to our coach." Teammate Monique "Lady M" Thiry wrote these def-dope funky rhymes for all y'all:

"Now here's a little story I've got to tell, About a sport called Hoop that you know so well, It started way back in history, with a basket... a ball... and me- Monique T.!!"

Junior Varsity Basketball is often overlooked because their Varsity counterparts are such a dominating force at Berkeley High. However, both the men's and women's J.V. and Frosh teams can hold their own against any opponence the Valley has to offer us. Strong players such as Kenyatta Rowe and Cecil Sterns led the Boy's Junior Varsity team to an astonishing league record that almost rivaled their Varsity's. Hmmm... now that would be an interesting game!! Varsity Team member Rachel Garlin had this to say about this season's Junior Varsity teams: "I'm really excited for next year's team, I believe there is much talent waiting to be released. Their shooting ability only needs meager development, I'm anticipating a productive and succesful team next season." We, the yearbook staff, wish next season's team the best of luck, and that they continue to succeed on and off the court.

WOMEN'S SOCCER

LOCKER TALK

The 1990-1991 Women's Varsity Soccer team had an impressive season, unfortunately it ended in the league play-offs. The Lady Jackets lost to Clayton "Like, oh my god we're from the " Valley with a final score of 2-3 in overtime. It was a questionable call that infuriated many of the players. B-Girl Amy Brenneman was so upset by the loss that she actually showed up to an afternoon workout with her crew team.

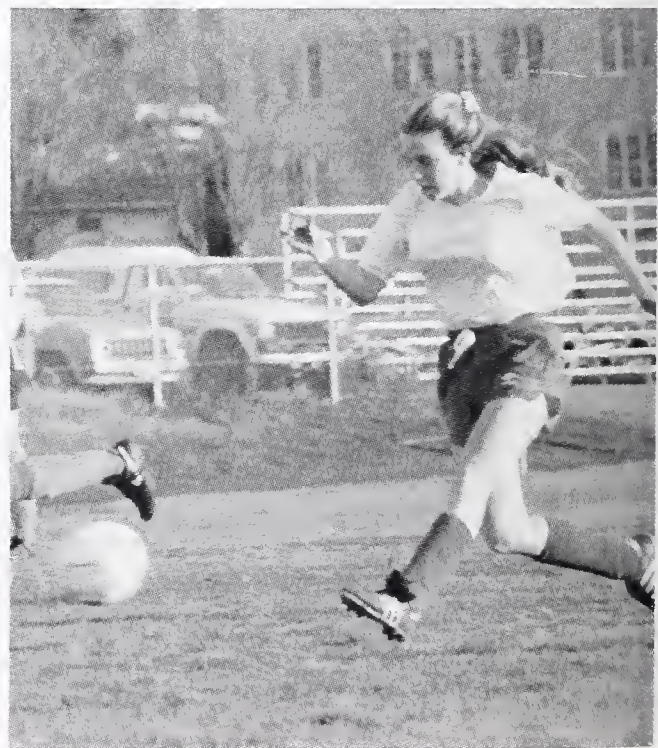

The team's record was 4-4-5, with most of the ties being 0-0 games. The two most impressive games were against Pittsburg and Pinole where they slaughtered those biker-short-wearing, feathered-hair-having, neon-fanny-pack-sporting, '79-El Camino-driving, road-kill-barbequeing, pit-bull-breeding, BMX-biking, truck-stop-working (S.R.M.!! that's you!!), tobacco-chewing, beefjerky-belching, cow-tipping, cousin-marrying, UFO-sighting, bingo-playing, Great America season pass-holding, blue eyeshadow-pink lipstick wearing, dark roots-showing, "KMEL JAMS" bumper-sticker-sticking, Wet Seal and Clothestime-shopping, L.A. Gear hightop-clunking, acid-wash-tight bootie-ripped on purpose-jean-wearing, valley girls, with a final score of 12-0. The incredibly strong players included Savia Baron (who was named all-league later in the season) - halfback, Courtney "Twiggy" Smith - halfback, Jenny Ott - sweeper, Co-captain Eva Hughes - (gate)keeper, Amy Brenneman - keymaster, and co-captain Caroline Schreiber. We would like to take this space to wish next season's team good luck because they have lots of potential and will continue to be yet another successful Berkeley High team.

MEN'S SOCCER

LOCKER TALK

This year's Varsity Men's Soccer team has by far had the most successful season in the history of Berkeley High athletics. They started out the season by slaughtering all the local saps and placing first in the Bay-Valley Athletic League championships. They then moved on to take the North Coast Section. After winning that game with an amazing score of 26-1, they decided to keep going and continued to the state championships. Because five of the star players were out of the game for various injuries and illnesses, the competition was a little tougher, but the fighting Yellowjackets managed to win by one point in overtime. Greedy for more, they traveled to the national level and kicked the hell out of some east-coast fools. The team was invited to Argentina to participate in an international competition, but they declined the offer because the Berkeley High School Athletic Department would not fund the excursion and the administration would not clear the absence as a field trip. On an individual level, five of the team members were invited to train with the US Olympic team and try out for the 1992 games in Barcelona, Spain. Three other team members made All-American, while several of the seniors received full athletic scholarships to the colleges of their choice...and then they woke up!

In reality, the team was led by team captain Terry Nickerson, and included numerous other strong players who will have to remain nameless because they just couldn't seem to get their butts to the yearbook office to give us the true story. In conclusion, all characters and events in the above paragraph are fictional and any similarities are purely coincidence.

WRESTLING

LOCKER TALK

Wrestling is one of the lesser known sports at Berkeley High, "I didn't even know we had a wrestling team" said senior Siri Skelton. The sport of wrestling is one of the most physically taxing and painful sports played at the high school level. It is also a game of skill, balance, and quick thinking. The team usually begins the season with thirty to thirty-five wrestlers but at the end of the season only about ten survive. Despite this, the Berkeley High School men's Wrestling Team posted an impressive winning record this season with five wins and three losses. The Yellowjackets slammed El Cerrito, Ygnatio Valley, Clayton Valley, and Pinole Valley to finish Fourth in the Bay Valley Athletic League. This year the grapplers were lead by senior captain Chris "Elwood" Larsen. Larsen posted a successful record of forty-two wins, ten losses, with twenty-one pins. He placed first at the BVAL, defeating the number one ranked wrestler Matt Purdue from Antioch and won team MVP. When the season was over Chris was quoted as saying, "I got more moves than Ex-Lax." Other wrestlers also did considerably well this season. Freshman sensation Greg "Saddam" Bolds posted a twenty-five win, twelve loss record and placed first in the 130 pound Junior Varsity weight class. Sophomore Chris Unno went 21-8, took second at BVAL, and recieved the most improved wrestler award. George Hoguland, wrestling in the 135 pound weight class posted a four win and two loss record before he suffered a devastating groin injury. Other outstanding wrestlers included Josh "Calvin" Cline, John Palmer, David "Mad Man" Callahan, Seth Clark, Mike Shavers, and Seth "Sylvester" Melamed.

LOCKER TALK

The 1991 Lacrosse team, lead by third year coach Geoff Wynton, and assistant coach Rob Gillies had an extremely impressive season, despite the loss of some of last year's great players. Team captains Juniors Patrick Meggysey, defense, Tamir Monsour, attack, and Seniors Ian Cook, midfield, Dave Pakter, midfield. The 1990 Varsity team lost in the state semi-finals to St. Ignatius, who later went on to win state. With the strength of Juniors Alexander Disston and Alex Swetchinski proved an extremely successful season next year as well. Along with these players, Seniors Stephan Cohen and Josh Kemp worked hard to make their last season at Berkeley High pay off. Last year's Junior Varsity members Travis Blanchette and Jacob Brownlow also put much effort into winning as many games as they did. Goalie Daniel Cuckierman came from J.V., surprising BHS as well as other league teams. Earlier this season the Jackets played in a tournament in San Rafael, if the second day of the tournament had not been rained out the team was predicted to come in second behind the Maryland State Champions. As one player said about the 1991 season: "Winning games this season was no easy task, each team fielded equally as talented players, they are all as good as we are. We just have to push ourselves further than they can be pushed." In order to make that extra "push" at the end, these guys had to train really hard in their pre-season, doing such greuling things as "stairs." "The class of 1992 will always dominate lacrosse at Berkeley High," said one proud member of the team.

GOLF

LOCKER TALK

The BHS golf team is gearing up for another successful year. Allright, maybe their record won't show it (so far an abyssimal 0-4 in matches) but the men in plaid are poised for the future. The rear is brought up by senior Jason "Diver" Brand. "Nine is my favorite number: it's my best club, my rank on the team (there are only ten members who play), and the minimum number of shots I take on each hole. Close behind Brand is Adee "the only thing I'm good for is peeing on the green" Wada, also a senior. Wada specializes in keeping the ambiance on the team loose, "Put in a fatty of KD and hit the links swinging freely." The senior arsenal would not be complete without returning star Justin "Top Flite" Pritchard. With one year under his belt, opposing teams cringe when they have to tee off against this legend. Tilden Golf Course is where these wild party animals sojourn three times a week. Nestled in the Berkeley Hills, the quiet air of these links is often disturbed by coach Carol Martin and her band of merry golfers. Although most of the team members aren't old enough to drive yet (in a car that is), Coach Martin provides them the unlimited use of her 1991 Gold Wing golf cart. This luxurious beauty comes fully equipped with a wet bar, live entertainment and a completely furnished pro shop. It is clear that the seniors dominate this team, but in all fairness there are some underclassmen too. Getting back to the "Big Three" of Pritchard, Brand and Wada, they would like to extend a special thanks to the women's softball team. Brand perhaps summed up the season most accurately, "Some try to copy, but boy they look sloppy."

MEN'S CREW

LOCKER TALK

The Men's Crew team is the most successful unrecognized sport at Berkeley High. Crew is the oldest and most prestigious sport in Olympic history dating back to the 1800's. The mechanics and rules of the sport are simple: "Jump in a boat, bring your balls, and hack those waves" quoted by Pete Mains. The boat consists of eight huge, mammoth like rowers (all having hair) and a short yet vicious coxwain utilizing the massive amounts of force that is applied. As the team started out with ample amounts of people needed to fulfill two boats, many people couldn't cope with the 5 o'clock awakenings and quit like sucker punks. The Veterans of the team, Andre "Bone" Schmitz, Pete "Ears" Mains, Tony "Biceps" Feist, and Nate "Tree Trunk Legs" McPhail, withstood the 10 grueling workouts a week, and led the team to their best season yet. "Coach, I got to have Sunday's off, what about church?" stated the religious Dre Bone. For all you Baseball heroes and Lax stars who try to cap on this sport, we got nothing to say except "We'll see you at the Firetrail". Nice picture Nate, but the infamous Bone and Pete wrote this article, cause were outta here. "Chillin"

WOMEN'S CREW

LOCKER TALK

Berkeley Women's Crew had it goin on 'till da break of dawn. They were then forced to get out of bed, at the ungodly hour of 5:15 for those of us who drove all over creation to pick up your breath-stinkin, no license having selves, and 6:05 for those of you who kicked back, hitched a ride, and didn't pay your gas money (you guys know that really upset Scary Gregg!). Crew is about as exciting as it sounds. C'mon who couldn't love rowing a boat? A big old long one! (Whoooo! Phallic symbol!!) Crew is so "very," as our Goddess Heather Chandler would say. [NEW KIDS RULE!] Lake Merritt, the locale in which we partake of this illustrious sport, is renowned for its pleasant aroma, slippery bird droppings and the colorful characters whom we encounter daily, especially the Hula-Hoopin'-Mamma and the naked runner (who, by the way, is Sarana's prom date). Aside from the morning workouts, these "fly" tendas (term from the "ole schoo" {-that was for you Erin!}) also did excruciating land workouts. Including ergs (Jacket Staff- that's with an "e"!), weights (big old heavy ones) and stairs (thick, wooden ones). [I LOVE JORDAN KNIGHT!] For all y'all perpetrators and half-steppers who think crew is for rich girls and boys, you're sadly mistaken, it's for stupid, rich girls and boys who have no other way to get into college. So while y'all are getting your refusals from Cal, even though you did have a 3.9, we'll be chillin' with our letters of acceptance from the Ivy's (yes, with our 2.4's). NOVICE CREW

LOCKER TALK

"Uh could you hand me a paddle?, oh I mean an oar!" As a novice crew member one must learn a whole new vocabulary. The command "Stop" becomes "Way Enough", "Stroke" is the name of a seat in the boat, and the "cox" is the person who yells at you. Not only do the team members improve their verbal skills, they also work up endurance, technique, and a big appetite.

Stadiums, ergs, the fire trail...unknown, rumored death trials ready and waiting for the novice rowers. The Men's Novice began practice in September, while the women's team began spring semester. Yet both teams were prepared to race in March. The experiences of Novice crew can be painful... like learning to carry a 6.02×10^{23} lb. boat with out dropping it. At other times the work is very tedious, like when the newcomers are struggling to simply balance the boat and Varsity flies by...then they think "someday". (Nope, We don't think so...Love, The 3 Varsity Editors)

The Men's (whoops, I mean Boys) Novice coaches, Jean-Marc Something-or-other, and Tim Who-is-that-guy had this to say about their crew: "We hope one day that our crew will have flawless physiques just like Tony, Peter, and Bone."

The Women's Novice Coach, Trianna "The Tree-Ster" had this to say about the New Kids on The Block: "I LOVE JORDAN KNIGHT!!"

But eventually all the early mornings, the nasty showers, and the after school practices pay off. Eight people rowing together, moving legs backs and arms as one, living the thrill of speeding through the water like flying fish. Crew is worth it.

The Burl-girls raise their "Spirit".

BASEBALL

LOCKER TALK

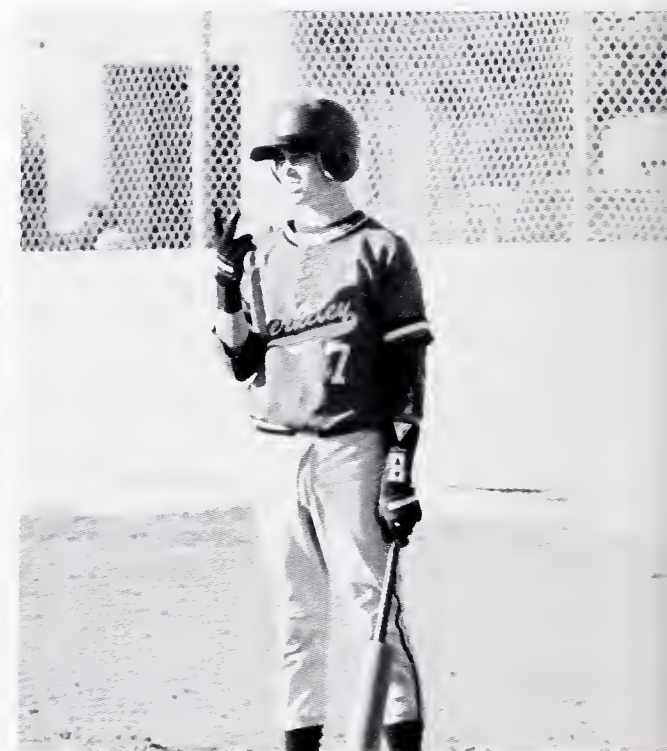

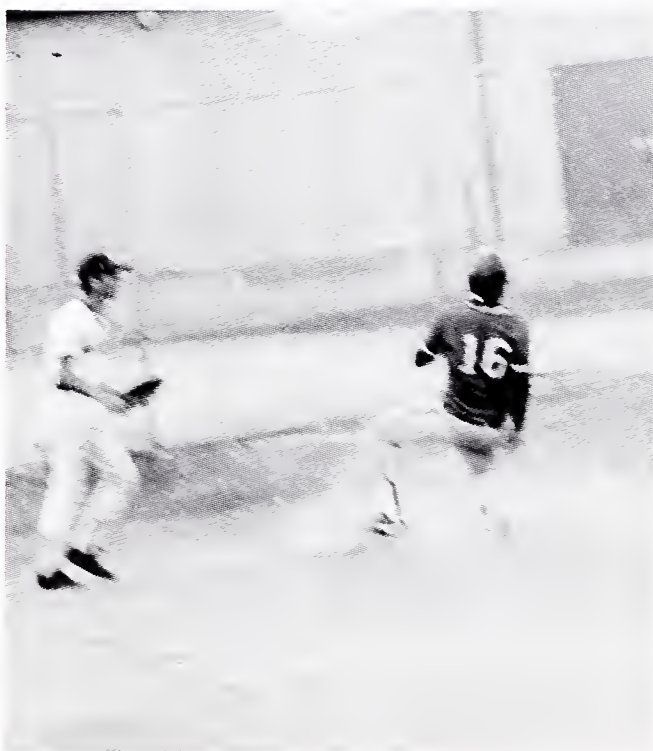

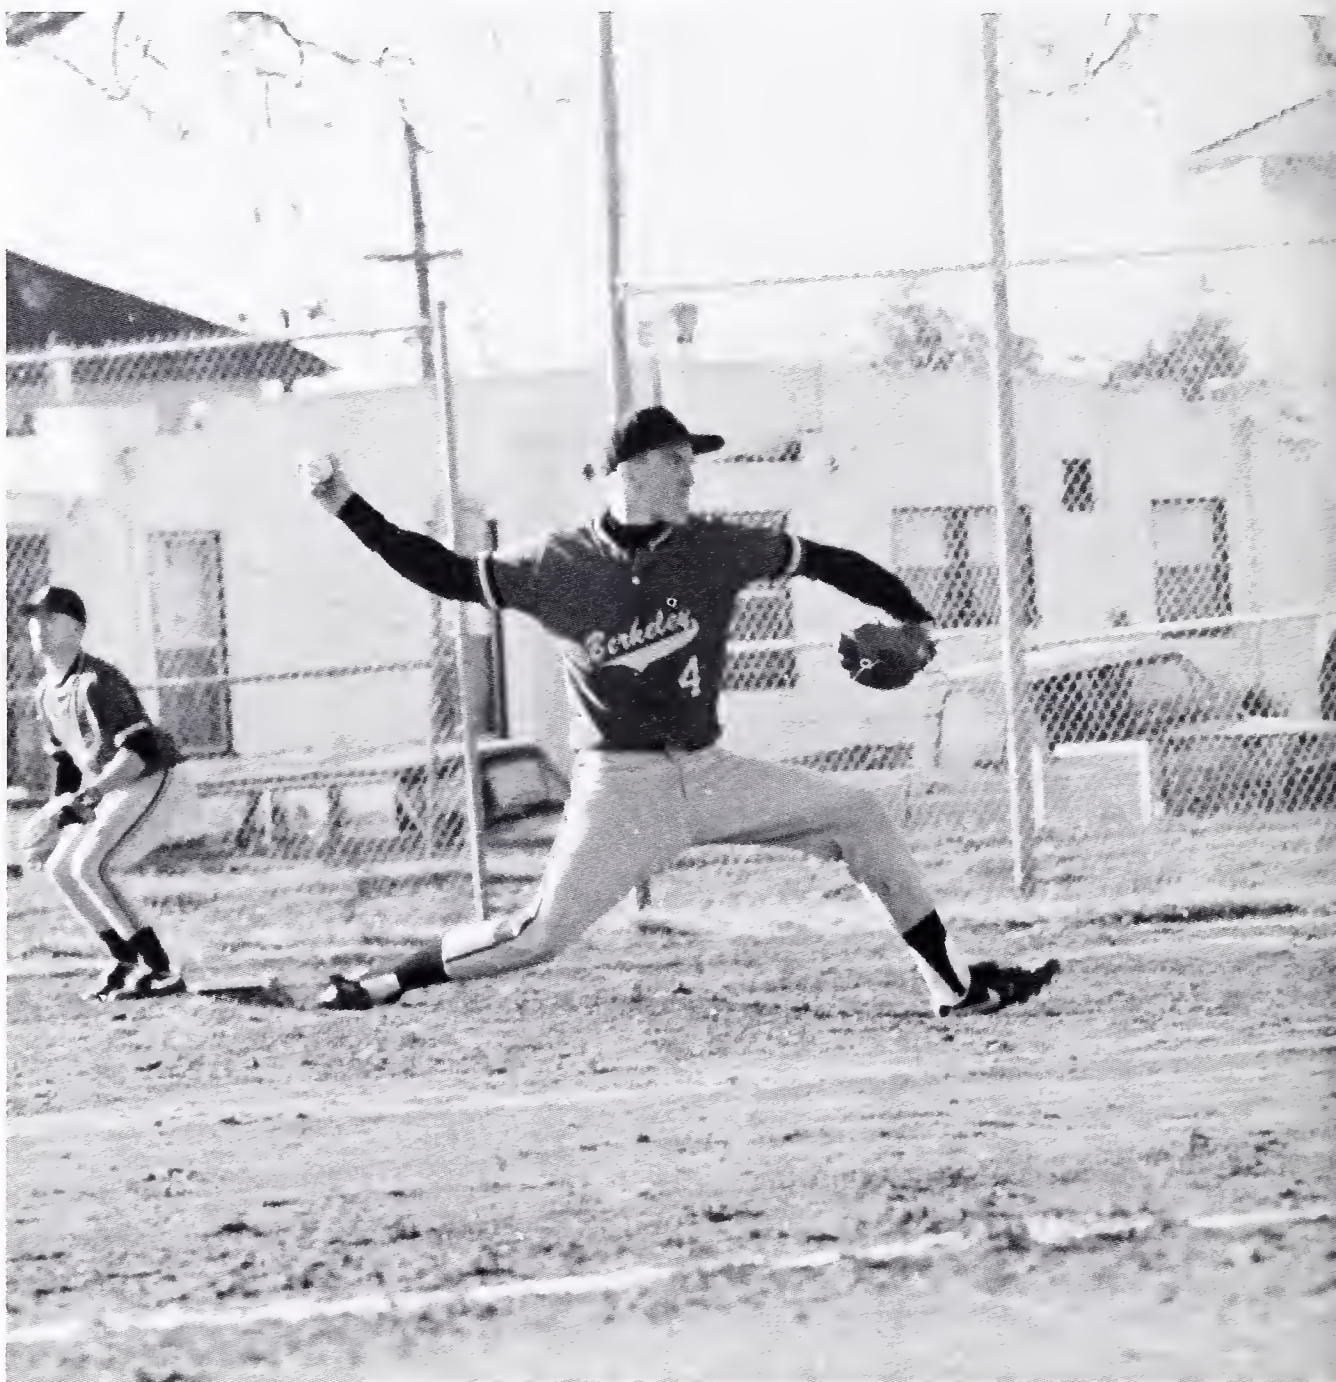

Many Berkeley High students who didn't think too highly about our Varsity Baseball team got an exciting surprise this season as the Jackets won their share of league games under the direction of new coach Ray Luce. Luce, a former major league scout for such teams as the Pirates and the Astros, has been coaching for over thirty-five years. Unlike the Jackets previous coaches, he actually worked his team, producing winning results. Most uneducated outsiders see Coach Luce as a heartless slavedriver, but any Varsity ballplayer will be only too eager to tell you otherwise. "He's a fair, understanding guy," said junior co-captain Joe Kemper.

The Jackets have a strong starting lineup this year anchored by six foot two inch junior catcher Cody McCormick and including leftfielder co-captain Matt Allen, center fielder Mike Lewis, rightfielder Hassim Robinson, third baseman David Catlett, shortstop co-captain Joe Kemper, second baseman Nick Fox and first baseman Jason Badgley. Pitching for the Jackets are Jot Splenda, Zack Chun, Carlos Reed, Dan Hennen, Cliff Coleman, and Matt King.

Not only is the team strong in the field; they also have several excellent power hitters such as junior Cody McCormick, senior Hassim Robinson, junior Jason Badgley, and junior Joe Kemper.

The Yearbook Sports Staff congratulates the Varsity Yellowjackets on a wonderfully improved 1991 season. For all those underclassmen who will be playing again next year. We wish you the best of luck, may your success continue into the seasons to come. For all those in the reigning class of 1991: Congratulations! We outta here!

SOFTBALL

LOCKER TALK

The 1991 Varsity Softball team suffered the loss of many strong players, but still managed to prove to be a strong and successful team. Ellen Sanok, the only returning senior from last year's Varsity had this to say about the 1991 season, "With the loss of so many strong players, no one really expected much of us for this season, but we proved to them our determination and desire to win. Our coach has also proven to us that we can be successful, after all, from last season we had nowhere to go but up!"

Third baseman, junior Corrine Kennedy, who has been Varsity since her freshman year can really get busy. Aside from being a fantastic first baseman, she is a great hitter! Her average is a .409, can you believe it? We can't!

Catcher Jenny Ott is also another great addition to the team. She had this to say about the team, "The team is more like a second family to all of us! If anyone has a problem, we can always count on each other to work through it."

First baseman Caroline McCulloch, this being her first year on Varsity, played a great season. When asked about her experiences in Softball, she replied, "I really love to play softball. During one game I pulled a muscle in my groin, I just love playing too much, I can never quit! Just kidding I never pulled a muscle in my groin, but I really do love playing!" Sophomore Megan Stelmach, aside from being a Soccer star is also a Softball star, she was one of the few freshmen on the Varsity team last year. With many new additions to the team this year, the women of Berkeley High Softball showed how motivated they were to be as good as possible.

J.V. BASE/SOFTBALL

LOCKER TALK

Including coaches Kristen Glencher and Cynthia Way-Lough, the 1991 Junior Varsity Softball team consisted of Jenny "snag anything thrown" Wolan, Nicola "you'd be our star pitcher even if you weren't our only pitcher" McClung, Vale Stipovich, and outfield captain Bonnie Jones, as well as many other "valiant souls."

The 1991 Junior Varsity Baseball team had a strong starting line-up. Coached by Tom Fairchild, the team includes shortstop Sam Farnsworth, secondbaseman Asa Gifford, catcher Abe Spilsbury, first/thirdbaseman and rightfielder Robbie Allen, third/firstbaseman Andres Cidiel, catcher and right fielder Trigg Splenda, centerfielder Dexter Daniels, pitcher and left fielder Brant Wiwi, right/left/center fielder Gian Allen-Piccolo, right fielder Chris Arnett and thirdbaseman Reggie Santa Cruz. According sophomore Brant Wiwi, "Every sport at Berkeley High thinks that they have to work the hardest, especially crew, who just paddle around their little rowboats down the stream...well, you haven't done s--t until you've tried out for Berkeley High baseball." The Yearbook sports staff, all being members of the rowing team, would like to congratulate the teams on their success this season, and would like to challenge Brant to a 3.9 mile race on the Oakland Estuary, a 6000 meter erg, or a timed run on the fire trail anytime he's ready. Not that we don't respect baseball, its just that real athletes don't need to put anyone else down just to pump themselves up. (Just kidding Brant...we really do love you.)

MEN'S SWIMMING

LOCKER TALK

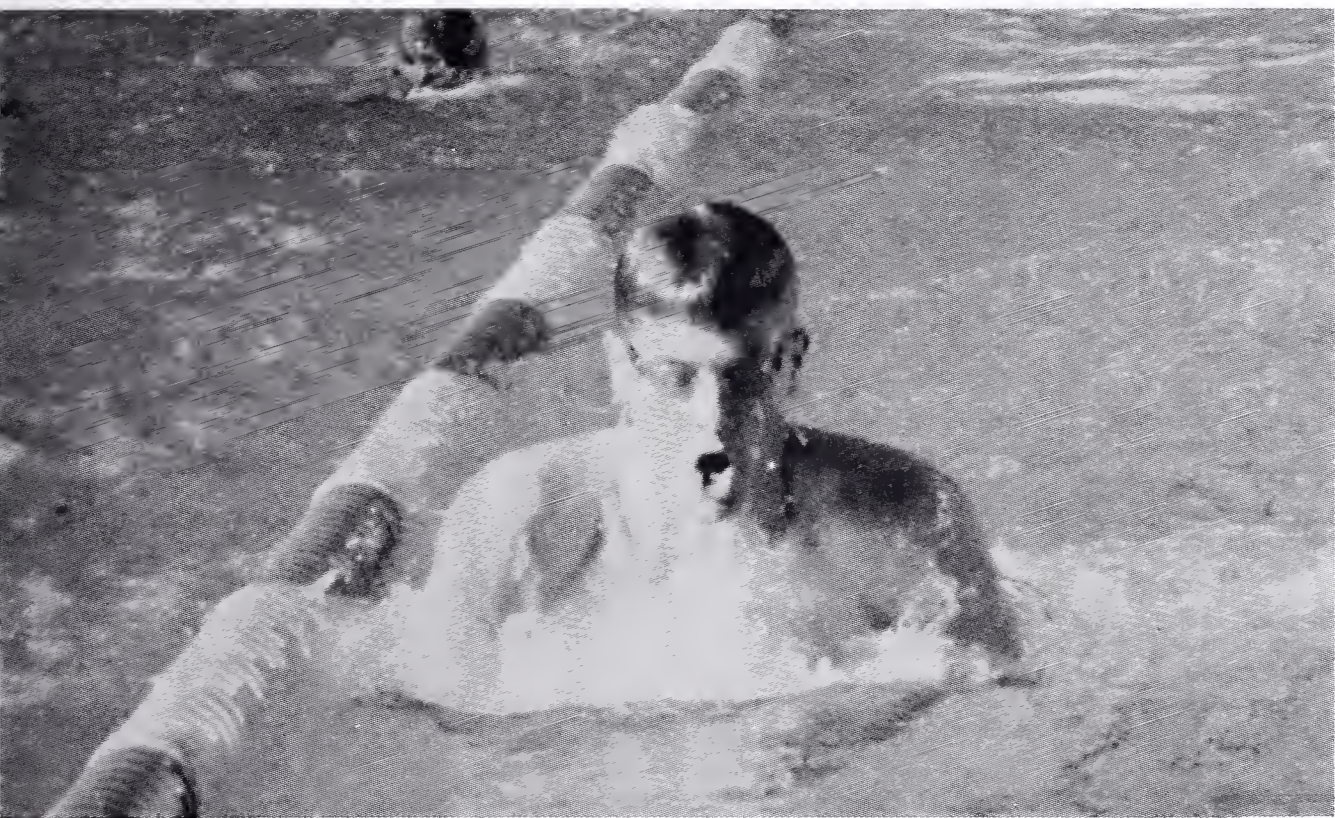

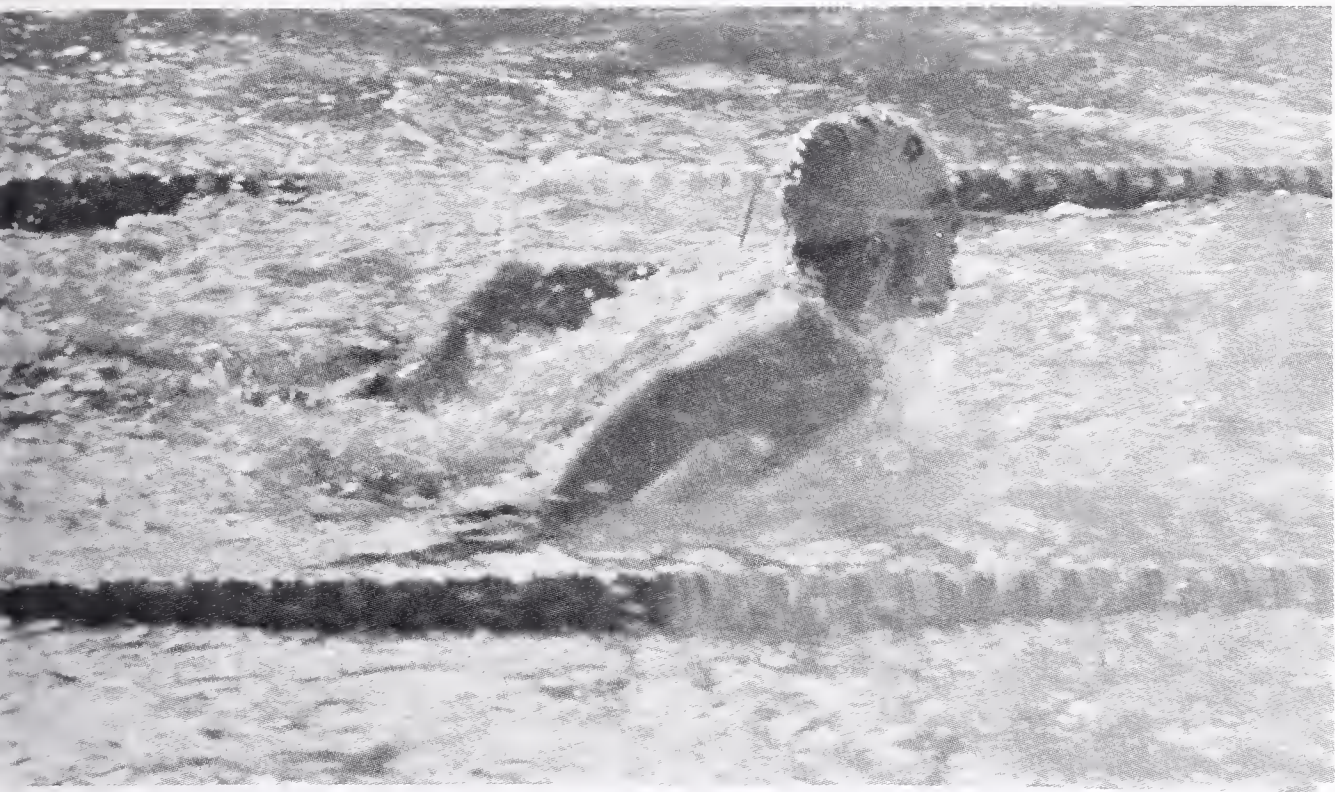

The Berkeley Men's Swim Team had only one goal this year: winning the League Championship. With tough workouts given by Head Coach Greg "Mr. Triathlon" Grunwald, and assistant coach Jason "Fresh Swimmer Dude from Cal" Callahan, the swimmers were in top shape for league. The small, yet extremely talented Jacket Squad was led by Scott "Fly" Demai. Seniors Sean "Gomer" Smuckler and junior Josh Palmquist provide the raw speed for the sprints. Team Captain Craig Gruber and Seniors Aaron "Meat" Schweitzer and Evan "Faceman" Wagner were an unstoppable force in Breaststroke. Junior standout Mike Wong took control of all Back stroke races, with sophomore sensation Sam Veloz leading the distance events. Although swimming may look like an extremely serious sport, the men's team has developed a reputation for breathing life into meets and practices. Big parties in Reno, along with many traditions helped ease the pressure brought about by the daily seven-to-eight thousand yard workouts. Okay, they may be partiers, but they do deserve a lot of respect. Principal Ken Sherer was quoted as saying, "The Men's Swim team is, by far my most favorite athletic group at Berkeley High. They are such a fine, upstanding, clean-cut bunch of young men... I feel that they will all go far in life." I guess he hasn't been around any time after the Team has left multiple crushed cans and even more crushed Reno women in their wake. BHS Sports Staff Congratulates Men's Swimming on a job well done.

Swimming, swimming, in the swimming hole...Imagine this: swimming at 5:00 in the morning in the 20 degrees below zero, fungi infested marsh land BHS pool, Phillipe Henri yelling at you to kick, breathe, turn, flip, stroke and glide, swallowing gallons of heavily chlorinated water, leaky goggles (the water sloshes around your eyeballs and turns them a lovely shade of red).... When days are hot and when days are cold, in the swimming hole...

Imagine this: someone in the other lane, kicking you in the shin or smacking you in the face, reaching the wall (finally) only to realize you missed the interval a million years ago...Breast stroke, side stroke, fancy diving too...

Imagine this: workout is finally over so you grab your stuff and sprint to the showers (half of them are broken, or taken). When you finally get a shower, it's lukewarm, and it takes forever to try to get all the chlorine out of your hair. Getting ready in five minutes, this includes getting dressed, doing your hair, putting on your make-up, deodorant, brushing your teeth... EVERYTHING (people who start second period have more time- luck dogs!) Wolfing down the food you've stored in a bag this morning (breakfast), nodding off in your classes, reeking of chlorine, getting home, eating and going to sleep! Then the very next morning, before the crack of dawn, it all starts over...(hummm, sounds a bit like crew!) Don't you wish you never had anything else to do?!

MEN'S TENNIS

LOCKER TALK

Men's Tennis, like most Berkeley High sports had a successful season. They entered the season not feeling very strong about their position in the league. As one spectator had to say last season, "So, who's winning?" Well, it sure was Berkeley High! These men have taken league for the last seven years. Now that's impressive! Sports editor Kimberly Ganeles commented on the game of tennis, "Tennis is so cool! I love to watch sports that use a ball and a thick stick. The way they manipulate their raquets just really does something for me!!" She also really loves to watch Baseball.

After hours of hitting, stepping into and serving that little yellow ball these men probably could get sick and tired of looking at it, but....NO! These men want more! Tennis is actually a fun sport, we like it!

Team captain Dave Kim, an extremely talented player, "has a cute butt," as Yearbook editor Mary Hershendorfer said. It saddens us to hear such smut like this, especially from such a respectable young woman. We like to recognize athletes for their playing ability, not their sex appeal (Mary!).

But on the serious tip....tennis at Berkeley High School is no joke! We are very proud of these fine young gentlemen. They have worked very hard to acheive the recognition that they deserve, now let's give it up for them. Whooooooooo, tennis!

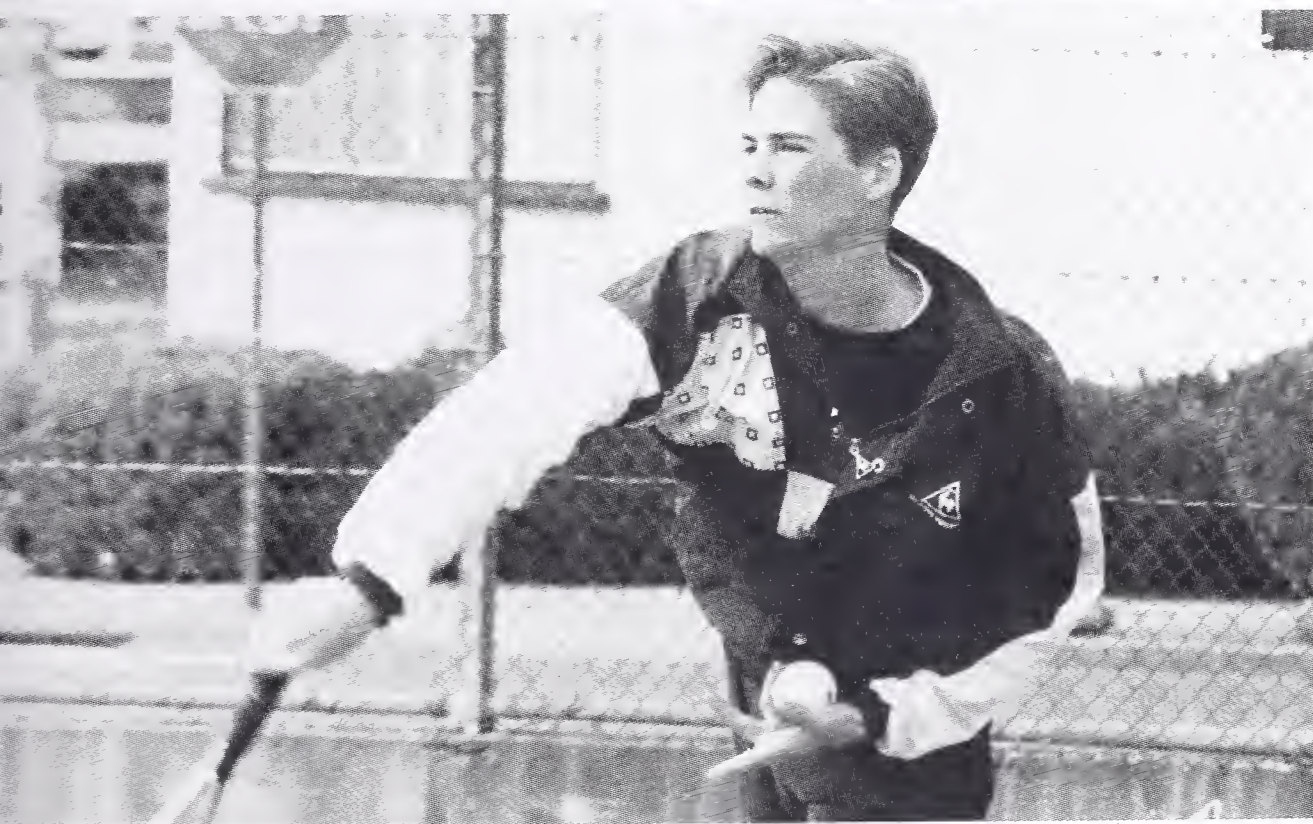

As one anonymous team member said, "Tennis is like life, when you hit a ball up, it's bound to come down. Unless you are in an anti gravity area, like out of the earth's atmosphere or something..." Yeah, tennis is just an all around philosophical sport, huh?

Don't look so stressed, it's only tennis!

BADMINTON

LOCKER TALK

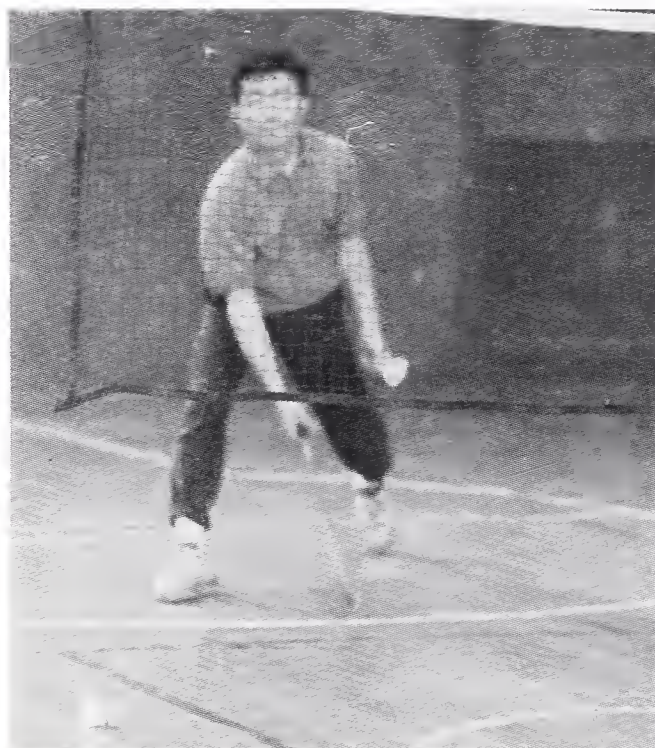

As research for the following article, many personalities were asked what they thought of that illustrious sport: BADMINTON. Immediately the reporters ran to Kelly Bundy; her profound words were, "Urethra! I've found it! Badminton takes more brains to play one game than I use in a year! Wow!" Madonna had this to say about Badminton, "Justify my love with your birdies." The cardiovascular training that these athletes had to endure was excruciating. They were seen running with the track team while the gym was occupied. Richard Simmons commented on their training, "Whooooo! Alright girls and boys, give it up for the Badminton team! whoooooooooooo!" This sport is an unusual sport to our school, like few, this is a coed sport. We should all play sports together and sweat together, like the animals we are! Meetpaul Singh summed up the season with, "The pivotal relations in which we are all amalgamated is so cool." Poet Frobert Bost favored us with these immortal words about Badminton, the sport of birdies.

B is for the cute little Birdies,
A is for their Awesome strength,
D is for their Dedication,
M is for the supportive Mommies,
I is for their Inertia,
N is for Never losing,
T is for Terrible opponents,
O is for Oat bran muffins (staple diet)

TRACK

LOCKER TALK

This year's team took some new steps in the right direction and overcame a few hurdles for the better. Last year's coach, Mr. Ward, was replaced by Head Coach Derrick Robinson and Assistant Coach Adrian Rogers (an Olympic Class 400m sprinter). While Mr. Robinson and Mr. Rogers coached the sprinters and hurdlers, Mr. Conning trained the mile and two mile runners for upcoming meets. This year's schedule was as busy as ever, consisting of fifteen regular-season and six post-season meets. The men's team ripped off the track in relays and distance events. David Benedetto, David Oden, Sam Balooch, Kenji Hughes, and Conrado Jackson made up the 4x100 and 4x400 teams while John Schaar, Jeremy, Mark, and Matt Calvert heightened Berkeley's reputation in the mile and two mile. For the women, returning sprinters like Ester Rachmaan (100m and 400m hurdles), Andrea Holms (100m and 400m hurdles), Femi Johnson (100m, 200m, and 400m), Tara Taylor (100m, 200m, and 400m), Jenire Sanford (100m and 200m), and Abdul Rahman (400m), along with distance stars Krista Malmstrom, Megan Lindow and Beatrice Wilkander, took charge in the mile and two mile races. What helped make this season even more spirited and enjoyable were the welcomed home meets, at Cal stadium. The team welcomed all those ready to take on the challenge. It's showtime!

LOCKER TALK

Men's Volleyball at Berkeley was as good as expected.....Led by veteran, Senior Patrick Hearne, these guys proved their ability to play, and be played. Seniors Lev Nason and Matt Calvert showed their skills while starting each and every game, like the studs they are! Coach Ed Cohen, aside from coaching the Berkeley High Women of Volleyball, was a great asset to the team. With many hours of "setting", "spiking", "serving" and "digging" these men demonstrated their incredible talents during games.

Junior David Almaguer is also an incredible addition to the team. With his incredible serve, he really puts the points on the board. Junior Sam Roberts also really racks 'em up, with his immaculate "sets." His is the biggest stud in the world, no joke! Along with playing for Berkeley High, these two can often be seen playing for the club team A.C. Express, or in their free time, playing on the sand courts on Bancroft Avenue.

The Berkeley men also have many young men on their team, such as freshman stud Kim Magraw. After years of playing for the Golden Bears, he has improved sooooo much. Maybe next year he will be starting! Class of 1994 girls you better keep your eyes on this little cutie!

One fan said, after sadly seeing few fans at one game, "It's really too bad that not many people attend the men's games because I think they sure could use some more fan support." So all of you students please support these guys by attending their games!

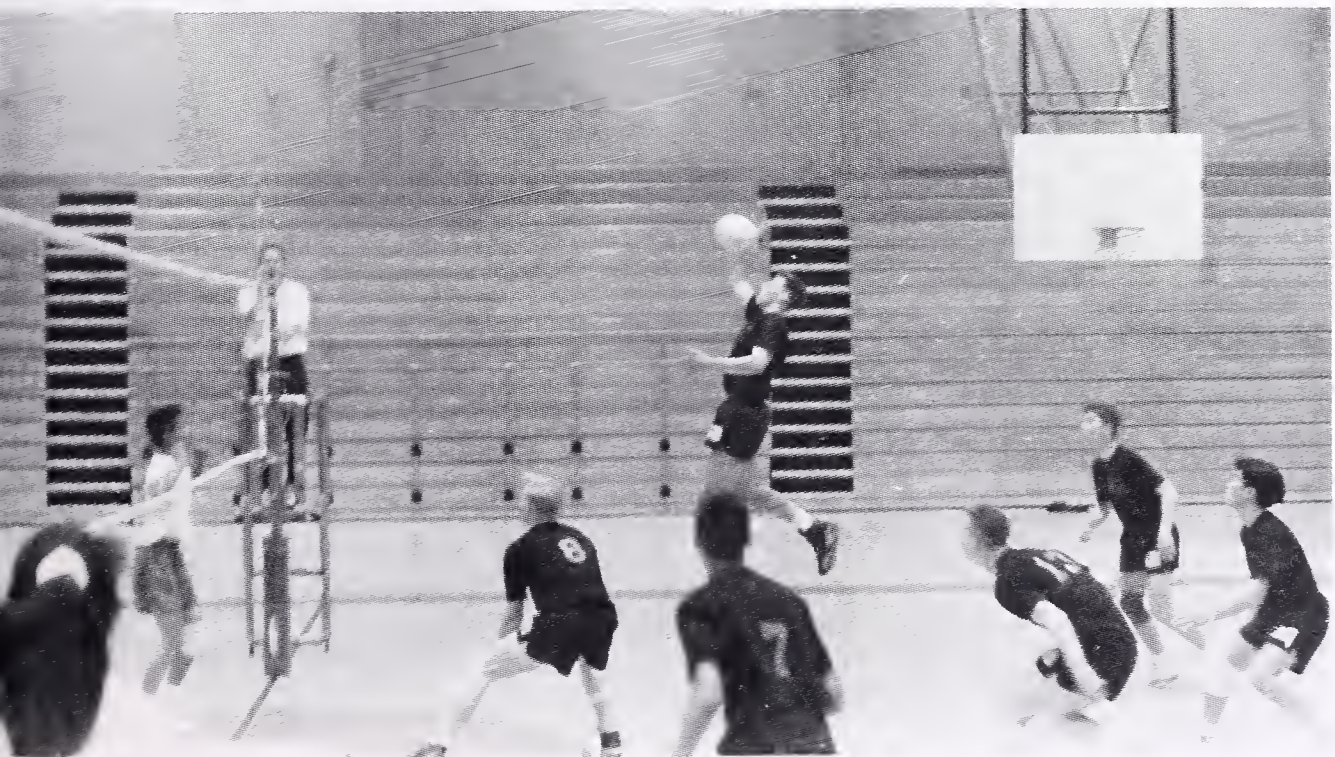

Good luck guys for the season to come. (Watch for Juniors David Almageur and Sam Roberts to really turn things out next year!)

MAXIMUS

LADY FROM MAXIM'S

"Sexual!" "Bizarre!" "Wild!" "Horrible!" "Tittilating!"

These are only some of the words used by our critics in praise of the fall play "The Lady From Maxim's" Assembling a talented cast has never been an easy task, but our P.A.D. department has proven this to be one of it's many abilities. This play's hilarious and bizarre plot showcases the versatility of many of our best actors and actresses including Jessica Neighhbor in the role of "The Shrimp," a sly and silly prostitute and Elijah Brillow who plays a married man who simply cannot rid himself of her. When a devoted wife, a ghost, and a chair that puts people to sleep become mixed into the plot this play explodes into a truly comical experience.

"Isn't he cute !?"

"Oh! Kindly keep yor hands to yourself!"

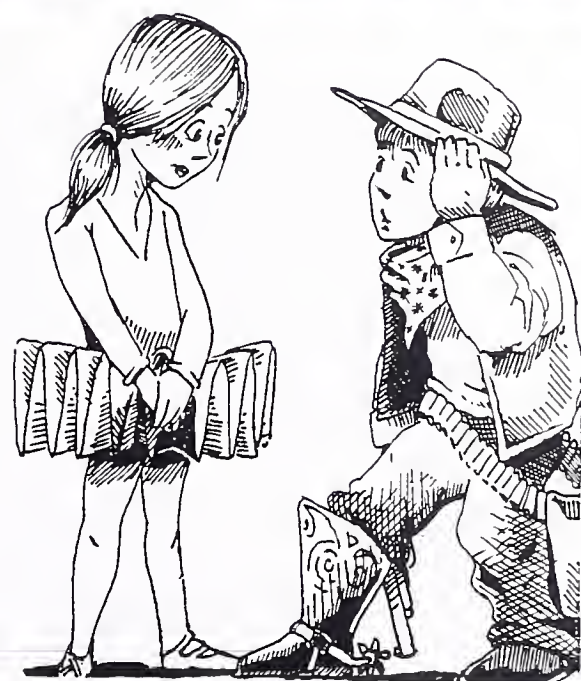

"Oooohhh say can you see . . ."

"Help me, help me. There's a bird on my head."

Conal and Gabe get intellectual.

ELVIS LIVES!

"BYE, BYE BIRDIE!"

ELVIS LIVES!! At least that's what audiences thought after watching the spring musical, "Bye Bye Birdie!," The play was a comical look at an Elvis-type rock-star. Sweet Apple, Ohio, is a city uproar when Adam Alfonso as Conrad Birdie comes to visit and give "One Last Kiss" to Kim MacAfee (Rebecca Hicks). The plot thickens with Rosie (Rebecca Bauman) and Albert, Conrad's manager (Jimmy Schaffer) a confused couple trying to deal with a nagging mom. The varied cast consisted of travelers, New Yorkers, teenyboppers, parents, kids, dirty old men, sluts, shriners, a tough bartender, a train conductor, reporters, many people with multiple personalities and jobs costume people, a stage manager, football players, a guitar man, a tap dancing secretary, a partridge in a pear tree, and of course a rock star on his way to the army!

LET'S DANCE

DANCE PRODUCTION 1991

This year's Dance Production performance was excellent. Along with the Dance Production troupe, the performance also included many students from Ms. Singman's Dance Advanced class. The concert combined themes and costumes from many different eras and places. They had an broad choice of music, ranging from humorous, to dramatic, from folk to contemporary top 40. Two numbers were accompanied by live vocalists, Isa Hicks, Rebecca Bauman, and Jessica Neighbor and live instrumental by Gaby Cosman-Alter. A third dance was accompanied by poetry written by Eyana Spencer-Perry and read by Becca Hicks. The costuming was selected by the choreographers to represent the themes being portrayed. Many numbers included special effects such as glow-in-the-dark costumes, hula hoops, a beach ball, flash lights, and strobe lighting. The performance also featured several non-dance numbers including one portraying the melting of wax statues. The Performance was excellent.

DANCE PROJECTS

Sometimes called the little Dance Production, but in fact, Dance Projects is actually a different program, while Dance Production just performs, Dance Projects helps students prepare for a career in dance and find what areas of dance interests them. Marcia Singman brings in guests from dance therapists, to college dance troupes. Through the class, students teach at Washington Elementary once a week, which one student describes as, "a hellish experience, but definitely worth it." At the end of the year, Dance Projects Performs two free concerts. At these concerts, all the music must be live for the dancers, but in the past, they've always been very original and extremely successful. This class is the ultimate preparation for your dance career.

A TOUCH OF CULTURE

AFRO-HAITIAN DANCE

Afro-Haitian Dance class is wonderfully taught by Anisa Rasheed. In the Afro-Haitian dance program, they do more than strictly African or Haitian dance, as in the African History Month assembly in February. Along with its traditional numbers, they performed a dance to the Spiritual "Wade in the Water". This dance troupe also prepares performances for Back to Black week in the winter and Malcolm X week in the late spring. Berkeley High School is lucky to have an Afro-Haitian dance program. We are one of the few schools in the nation to have an African Studies department and grant credit for such classes as Afro-Haitian dance and Swahili. If you love to perform and want a taste of African culture, Afro-Haitian dance may be the class for you.

Everyone follow the leader.

MAKEUP CREW

When sitting back to enjoy your favorite Berkeley High School musical or play, have you ever paused to wonder what your favorite characters would look like without makeup? Just think about it and you'll realize that makeup can do wonders.

BHS performing art make up crews give lipstick and rouge a whole new meaning. Just slap a brown eyebrow pencil into your favorite makeup artist's hand and watch her give you a fabulous set of wrinkles, including crows feet or smile lines. If your tastes differ, they can also fit you with a rubber nose, or fix you up with that snazzy bald look by snapping a rubber cap over your hair. Let these dedicated people focus their talents and watch that guy who sits next to you in English appear in a new light (thanx to the techies) as he assumes the guise of a shaggy rock star or distinguished doctor.

LET'S PLAY DRESS UP.

COSTUME CREW

The Berkeley High School Costume Crew is a group of wonderfully talented seamstresses who play a major role in the production of every BHS play. Without Anne Tal and her group of seamstresses, our actors would be appearing on stage in the buff, or even worse, in their street clothes. "You don't need much experience, if you are willing to put in the hours and put up with the actors, then you're in!" comments costumer, Theo Pappas. When asked what the best thing about the crew was, she explained, "Watching actors stress out on opening night." A costumer's job varies with each play. They must work with materials as diverse as silk, burlap, bubble packing material, and Juvateen™. They have to put up with a lot of ironing, sewing, and ripping out seams. Although it is hard work, it is incredibly rewarding to see your handiwork appear on stage.

PRODUCERS

"Who are the producers?" you ask. Well, if you are a fan of BHS Performing Arts department this is something you should definately know because the producers are included in that wonderful group of people who make productions possible. In addition to working the box office, they prepare the delicious delicacies that are sold during intermission. Perhaps the most important contributions that they make are their additions to the "piggy banks" of the Performing Arts Department through their fund raising and stewardship efforts. If the producers ever stepped up for a bow, were sure they'd deserve a standing ovation.

SHAVE & A HAIRCUT...

BARBERSHOP QUARTET

As you eat your lunch on a typical, boring day, have you ever noticed four guys singing cheesy, "old fashioned" songs? Then you've heard Berkeley High's Barbershop quartet. Their current line up has the Robert Mann singing tenor, Jack Bailey singing lead, Jimmy Shafer singing baritone and Iain Mann singing Bass. The group was started by Jack Bailey in the Spring of 1990. The original group split up at year's end, but the missing two members were replaced by Iain and Robert. They will face this problem again when Jimmy Shafer graduates.

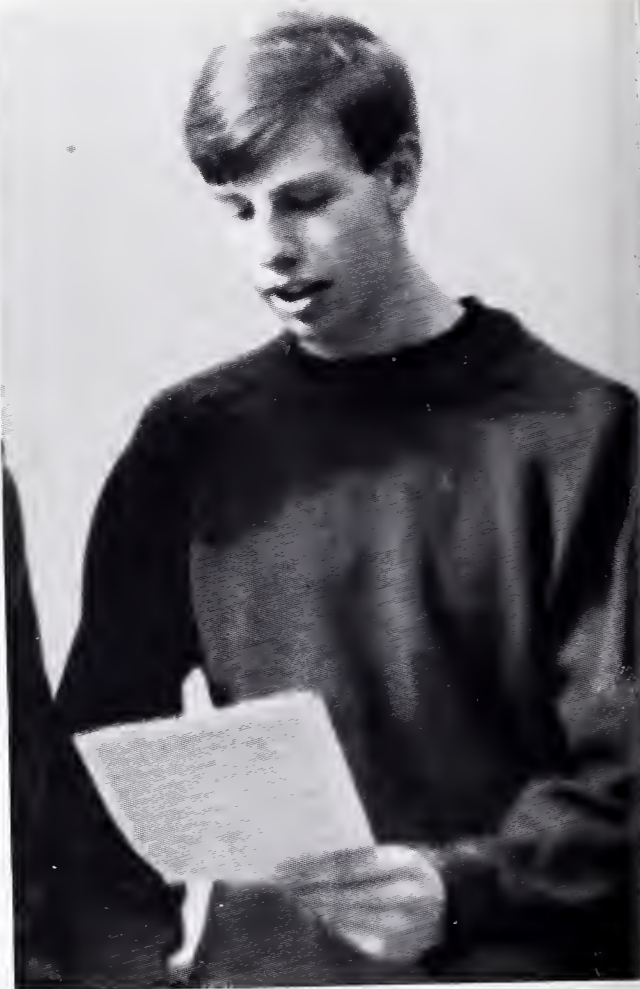

The group rehearses on the courtyard, in the Chorale room, at the park, at Jack's house, and everywhere. They have experimented with simultaneous singing and juggling, but they won't give you a shave and a haircut.

ADVANCED THEATRE PROJECTS

Every year, the most outstanding seniors in the realm of performing arts are chosen for the prestigious honor and painstaking challenge of directing a one-act play that is performed three times before a paying audience in the tiny but intimate Icehouse Theatre. The first one-act to greet the audience was "Juvie" directed by Tess Brigham. It is a story of a group of teenagers who are imprisoned in a juvenile detention center. Each character was movingly portrayed by one of its eleven cast members, including a memorable performance by Isa Hicks. Next came, "Here We Are" directed by Gretchen Leibrum. This parody featured Danielle O'Hare and Adam Alfonso as newlyweds. The last one-act to go on was "Terminal Bar", directed by Marin Van Young, a scary future-schock piece. It took place in the year 1995 against a brick wall, and plague stricken New York and starred Rebecca Bauman, Kirsten Darrow, and Ian Mann concluded the performances. These performances were supported by the small technical staff of Ben Brooks and Xenia Freter.

JAZZ

JAZZ ENSEMBLE

The musicians slowly file in, revealing their instruments, they add to the sound waves that soon become music. The BHS Jazz Ensemble, one of the nation's best, gathers to practice everyday in the A-building band room at eighth period. Order is called by their enthusiastic conductor, Charles Hamilton, who also conducts several other instrumental groups at BHS. After a few criticisms, and a small debate on the arrangement of solos, they begin. The subtle music is powerful and the ensemble expresses that energy and transforms it into a delightful interlude of sounds and feelings. It is this energy that has carried the ensemble through competitions and won them national recognition. "When we go to (jazz) festivals, people want to hear Berkeley play." said Daniel Schlessinger, one of five saxophone players in the ensemble. If you have ever been to a Berkeley High Jazz Ensemble concert, you would understand why they do.

WIND

WIND ENSEMBLE

The Berkeley High School's Wind Ensemble is a group of musicians of all calibers, from novices to experienced amateurs, from freshmen, to seniors. All of these people contribute to making the Wind Ensemble a success. Their December concert, the first of three concerts in their 1990-1991 season, was marked by their fine selection of classical pieces. The audiences gave fabulous comments about the performances. Said one concert goer, "It was fantastic." The remaining shows flourished under the direction of Mr. Charles Hamilton, a man who was described by one of his students, James Daniels, as "an excellent music instructor". When asked about his experiences in Wind Ensemble, Daniels described it as "a fun and challenginfg class. I've been in it for four years and I am really going to miss it." This trully expresses the enthusiasm and love that these performers have for the Wind Ensemble.

CONCERT CHORALE

Down, Down, deep in the A building you can hear Berkeley High's Concert Chorale. This group has been compared to the Vienna Boys Choir and great singers across the world. The group maintains this level of greatness even though they must practice in the dark basement of the A building. They also get to enjoy the philosophical monologues and humor of the group's leader, Mr. Brooks, a man who has literally held Concert Choral together. They practiced thier hearts out to prepare for thier traditional winter concert. If you spot a group of singing teenagers and an adult roaming the hallways of this school, it's a good bet, that you've witnessed the fabulous Concert Choral.

COMMUNITY THEATRE STAFF

BERKELEY COMMUNITY THEATRE STAGE CREW

The stage crew at the Berkeley Community Theatre is responsible for all backstage aspects at the theatre. We provide services for things such as assemblies, concerts and other productions. We also help out with building maintenance. (Remember all that painted-over graffiti?) In addition to working after school, the crew is sometimes required to work long hours, often as late as six a.m. The crew has been known to have their differences, but theoretically, we work as a team. Our heroic boss and mentor is Lance "girly-man" James. The Theatre Manager, Jud Owens, needs no description, we just call him Jud. Our senior crew member is Randy Johnson, and the wanna-be almost white boy in charge is Ben Brooks. Third in command, but always grounded (not really, he's just flying low) is Rodney Rapp. The rest of the crew consists of: Shane Owens, Titus Cross, Daniel Johnson, Delbert Lathan, Don Maszewski, Harlan Leath, Dierdre Smith, Morgan Cohn, Erik Raven, Shunii Johnson, Jose' Garcia, Jeff Bean, and Malachi West.

IN MEMORY

"God gives and God takes for reasons unknown"

The members of the Community Theatre staff and members of the Yearbook Staff would like to dedicate this Performing Arts Department section to the memory of David Wiggins. Mr. Wiggins was born in Mobile, Alabama, on March 11, 1939 and graduated from Mobile High School in 1957. His last eleven years were spent in service of the Community Theatre in which he passed away on December 12, 1990.

"David's smile, willingness to please, and compassionate personality will be missed by all whom had the pleasure of making his acquaintance." said Theatre Manager, Judson Owens.

A Desert Storm

War is "Apocalypse Now" or "Platoon," not the topic of the six o'clock news. But on the night of January 17, everybody's eyes were glued to the T.V. set as the world watched Baghdad go up in a flood of green lights from allied bombing raids. Is this how our parents felt about Vietnam, that sickening, empty feeling in the pit of the stomach, and shock to the point of laughter? Could our friends be dying right now? People took to the streets; some expressing their outrage, chanting the familiar phrase, "No blood for oil!" while others waved flags with huge smiles in support of the troops. The Allies had kept their promise of complete force if Saddam Hussein did not pull out of Kuwait. Thousands of sorties flew off aircraft carriers in the Persian Gulf, bombarding Baghdad. The question was, what next? When would the ground troops go into action? How long would the war last? Would there be a draft? Many turned to the media for the answers. Wolf Blitzer became a household name, and we watched the "battle of the commentators" as reporters in Israel tried to talk through gas masks. The first news suggested widespread victory. But then, as many had feared, Saddam retaliated by bombing Israel with Scud Missiles, forcing the entire country to live under the gas mask. As our Patriot Missiles knocked Saddam's Scuds heading for Saudi Arabia and Israel out of the air, we bit our fingernails in anticipation as we watched the news during dinner. Victories were reported on both sides; the Allies captured thousands of Iraqis, but allied POW's were reported as well. Then, with the go ahead from George Bush, thousands of troops stationed in Saudi Arabia advanced on the enemy in a ground offensive. In 100 hours, the Allies gained control of Kuwait and they were sure of victory, with few casualties reported. In forty two days, the Allied Forces crushed Sadaam Hussein's troops in Kuwait. So the war will be forgotten, right? Get only a paragraph in history books because it wasn't as long as World War II? Wrong. The future of the Middle East is uncertain, and the U.S. is far from being out of there.

 2 Live Crew's Luther Campbell fought for his First Amendment rights.

 Guess who this is? Robert Van Winkle. And guess who that is? Vanilla Ice!

Is it real— Or is it Memorex?

The music industry has had a very bizarre year. There has been one scandal after another, with such controversies as banning, lipsynching and sampling.

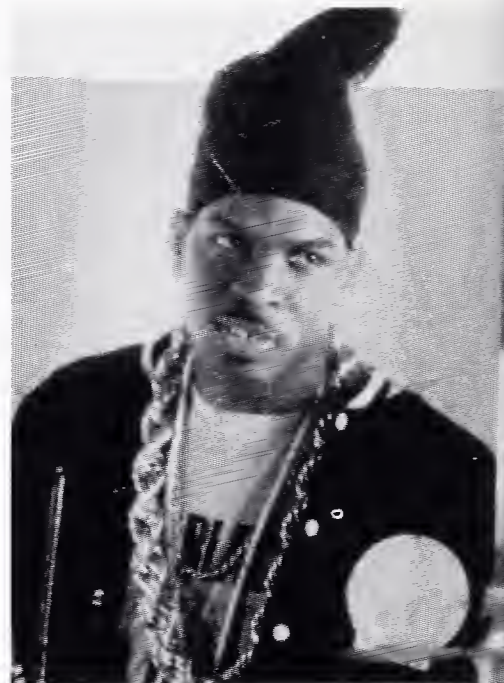

Banning was first to hit the newsstands when rap group 2 Live Crew, known for their sexually explicit lyrics, were brought to court with obscenity charges.

But, they were acquitted and continued to be "As Nasty as They Wanna Be," following the title of their infamous album. Madonna's sexy "Justify My Love" video was also banned, from most TV shows, including MTV.

Vanilla Ice, M.C. Hammer, Father M.C., and numerous other artists have used significant passages and/or lyrics from songs of the 60's, 70's and early 80's. Questions arose over whether they had permission to use the songs or not. Perhaps the most notorious of them all was our 'ol friend Vanilla Ice, who did not have the permission, who illegally rewrote old songs and put them on his album, "To the Extreme." Avid music listeners began to question whether or not there are any original musicians anymore. After all, this year, almost every new song sampled some ancient song in order for it to be popular!

Janet Jackson. Madonna. Milli Vanilli. All of these artists were doin' their own thing, but they all had something in common...lipsynching. Suprised? Both Janet Jackson and Madonna were caught lipsynching during their concerts, and we all know about the Vanilli duo. When it came out that they didn't sing a single note on their "Girl You Know It's True" album, they had to give up their Best New Artist Grammy. Hopefully things will clear up soon: First Amendment rights won't be violated and there will be more originality out there. Just follow such original artists as Teddy Riley with the New Jack Swing music and Sting, but don't mix them together.

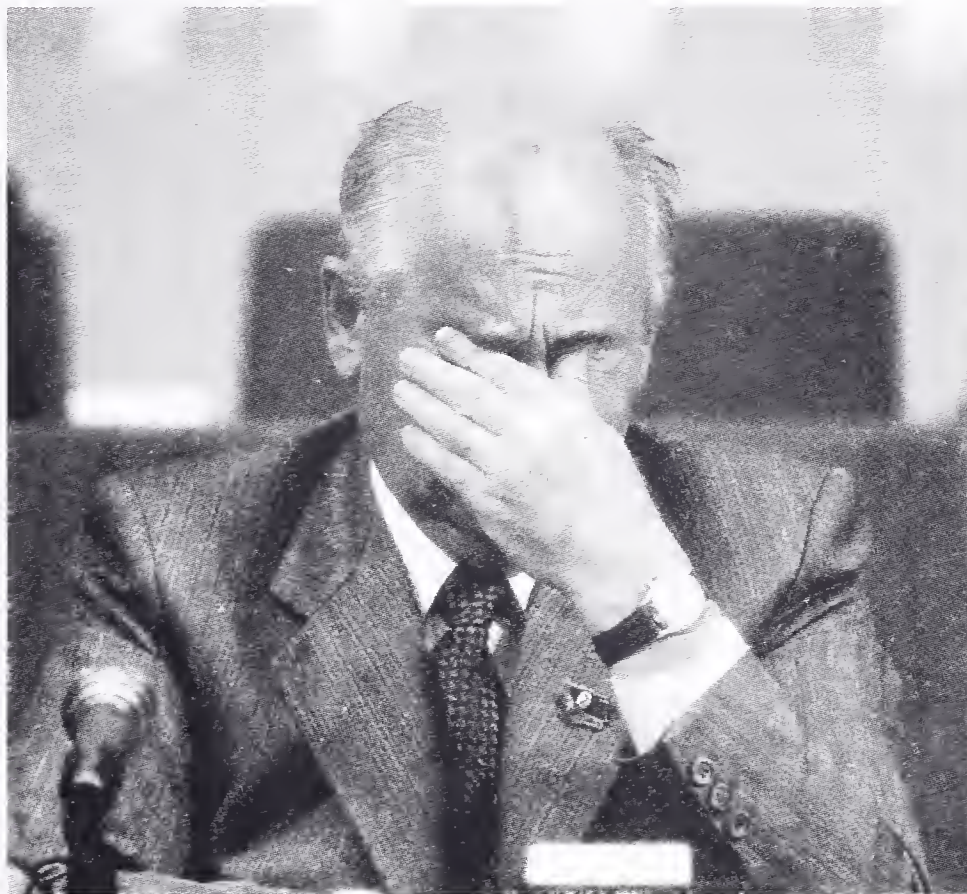

WORLD OUTSIDE...

The wall came tumbling...

On November 9, 1989, the Wall separating East and West Berlin came down. Thousands of Berliners celebrated into the early morning, no longer divided by the prefix of East or West. Then, on July 1, 1990, the two deutschmarks became one, throwing the German money markets into chaos. The markets survived, and three months later, East and West Germany became united under the colors of red, yellow, and black. The border isolating East from West vanished officially on the midnight of October 2, 1990. This time, the Berliners were not alone in their jubilation. The intricate game of international politics was raised to the nth degree. Democracy's struggle to make the part in the Iron Curtain was coming to an end. The U.S.S.R., led by the Glasnost of Gorbachev, began to accept western ideas and policies. The era of the Cold War is over, and fear of Communist aggression is dissipating. Hope for a secure German nation is on everybody's mind. Only time will tell the consequences of the turmoil around the world, and we can but wait.

Terror at Henry's

September 27 was definitely not your usual night at Henry's Bar in the Durant Hotel. A strange man sat at the bar with a suitcase, staring at people. Even with this eccentric behavior no one paid too much attention to him; in Berkeley, odd people are more of the norm than the exception. However, around midnight, this man did something to change the general opinion that he was harmless. He whipped out an automatic and started firing into the crowd, wounding many of the customers. These people, along with all the other customers, were kept as hostages into the night and the next day. One victim died, and the others were detained, unable to get help to treat their wounds. He also forced the blonde women to strip and perform sexual acts with the men. The police had the whole place surrounded, but it was being televised, and there was a television in the hotel. Every time the police were about to make a move the man would see it on the T.V. and send someone out to tell the police that if the bar was attacked he would kill someone else. So, finally, the police stormed the hotel in a surprise attack and killed him, ending the night of terror.

Gorbachev mourns his lost popularity.

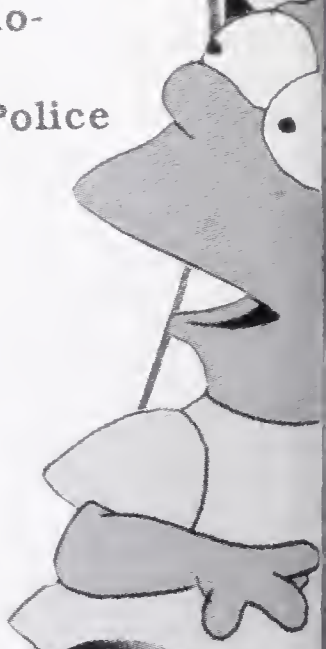

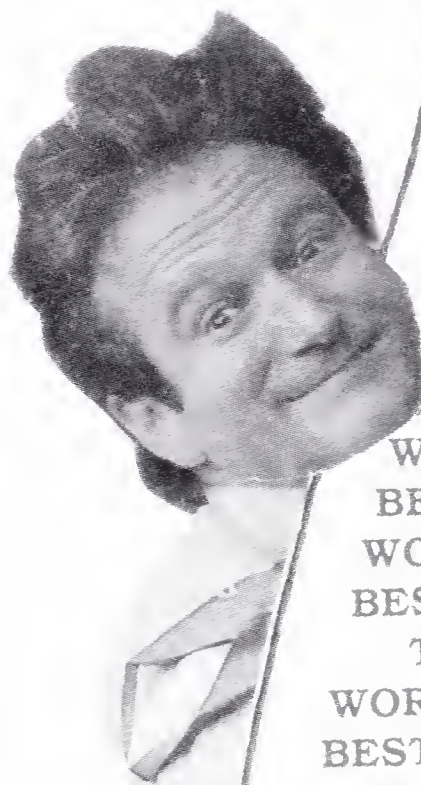

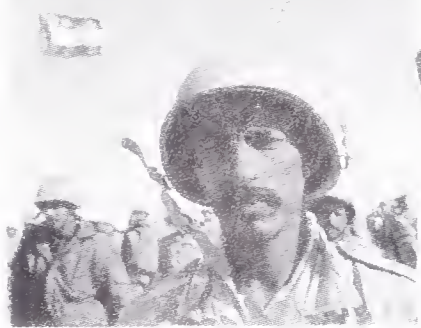

Perestroika?

While the rest of the world rejoiced over the changes in the Soviet Union, the USSR itself was finding the going a bit tough. The two Germanys became one, dominated by the West German government, Hungary was enjoying its new freedom under its playwright/president, the Romanians were at least free enough to demonstrate publicly their disfavor at the slow progress their new government was making toward democracy, Lech Walesa was leading Poland into a new age, and so on. Only Bulgaria and the Asian communist states and Cuba were resisting the movement toward freedom allowed by Gorbachev's glasnost (liberation).

In the USSR, however, glasnost was proceeding too slowly for some, particularly the Baltic states, Latvia, Lithuania, and Estonia, all of which seemed to want complete independence instead of the gradual federation promised by Gorby. Georgia, Armenia and Azerbaijan were using the reluctance of the national government to flex its muscles to indulge in ethnic violence. And Perestroika (economic restructuring) was causing its own problems, particularly in the distribution of food. In Moscow and other cities there were charges of hoarding at a time of shortages.

Gorbachev's critics were attacking him from both directions; the conservatives for moving too fast, the liberals for not moving fast enough. Continued violence and defiance of Moscow forced him to instigate atrocious acts of repression such as the January 13th incident in Lithuania when fourteen protestors were killed by Soviet troops while fighting for freedom. While the West criticized him for these acts, most outside the Soviet Union desperately hoped he would stay in control and maintain glasnost and Perestroika.

FRESHMAN ADVICE TO FRESHMEN

They're new, they're small, they're young and they're lost. They're the Freshman class. They could have used a little advice coming into this school. Here's what some of them would have liked to have been told:

"Get a map of the school."

"Don't be overly self conscious."

"Watch for eggs!"

"Don't do it! (go to BHS, that is)"

"It's not as scary as it seems at first."

"C building? What C buiding? Oh, I think you mean the Q building. They got rid of the C building a couple of years ago, and moved it over behind the gym. Go over thataway."

"Get older. Quick."

FACULTY

A little boy came home one day, disturbed and distraught.

Wanted: Administrator; able to handle unruly students, personal secretary provided, large working environment, refreshments nearby, sports facilities, free arcade time. Warning note: Must be able to handle unruly students, be granted no respect, be able satisfy over 2500 requests at same time, deal with racial tension, ornery teachers, filthy environment, clogged bureaucracy, aggressive bird population.

The job described above is, what else? Principal of Berkeley High. The Peace Corps aside, principal of Berkeley High is probably one of the toughest jobs you'll ever love, or at least call "gratifying," as Kenneth Sherer does. Sherer came to Berkeley High in the fall of 1988 with the hope that he could make it "a fair and equitable school...where each and every student can have self dignity." He leaves at the close of this year, and has left his mark on Berkeley High despite the short time he's been here. Among his more successful measures are new math programs, the Computer Academy, and a beefed-up athletic program. He has also played a part in increasing unity at Berkeley High.

Sherer encourages the next principal to continue to, "pursue and offer programs allowing each student to work to their full capacity and achieve their own individual goals." He feels he has learned a lot and seen a new kind of style and diversity here. The Berkeley High student body has impressed him as, "a wonderful group; [that] tend to be accepting of each other." Sherer gained the respect of students for attending many of Berkeley High's sports events. Contrary to some accounts, he's a "really open and nice person, and..he does want the best for the school," one student commented.

Least original: "My dog ate it"

Best improvement on "Least Original": "My dog had puppies on my homework."

Best doctor-related excuse: "My Dad has me taking these pills for my allergy. They cause me to sleep in period 1."

Best excuse from flunking students: "I did these problems last semester."

Best second-semester senior excuse: "I'm eighteen- I am my parent- I'll write you a note to excuse my "cut"."

Best "don't you wish" excuse: "I was abducted by King Kong."

Best improvement on the "My bus was late" excuse: "I got on Bart but didn't have enough money on my Bart ticket to get off."

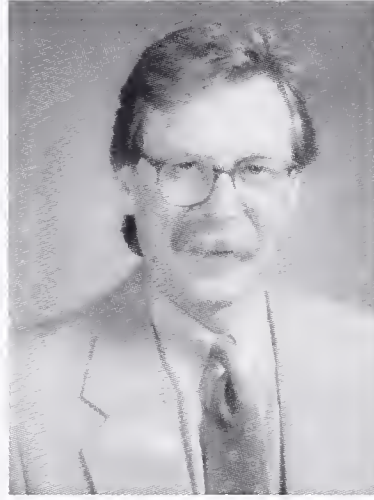

Best Berkeley excuse: "I was talking to a woman at the bus stop who said she was Jesus Christ."

She added, "it'll be hard to find each and every feature," that's included in the recipe for a BHS teacher."

What would your reaction be, if, instead of going to Hawaii, you were sent to the tiny, Persian Gulf island nation of Bahrain? "Total surprise," was biology teacher and science department chair Stuart Warren's response. Warren, a Navy Reservist, normally goes to Hawaii for his two weeks of active training a year. However, this past summer, he was shipped to the Middle East with the mobilization of Desert Shield (Storm). Warren, who was there during August and September, remembers the feeling of the troops during the early stages of the crisis as uncertain and changeable. "Either war would break out real fast," they thought, or at other times, "diplomatic stuff" would succeed. Personally, he believed the Middle East situation would be resolved peacefully, but later, back in the U.S., realized that events were escalating to the point that neither side could back away.

Warren juggles teaching Biology 1 to A.P. Biology. He enjoys being able to see the great improvement that takes place in the Biology 1 classes, and the intellectual challenge of A.P. Biology. Warren tries to instill an understanding of science broader than the proverbial image of little bald nerds in white coats with Coke bottle-thick glasses, the complete opposite of his own personality. One of the reasons he became a science teacher is that he wanted to help change the misconception that science is only done by scientists. (The other reason being that he hated English too much.) To Warren, science is, "a natural human endeavor...everybody does and can do science," and he successfully conveys this idea to his students.

In their unforgiving students eyes, teachers have always been seen as unfair and tyrannical. But the Faculty Senate at Berkeley high presents a different picture: of teachers cooperating, different departments working together; the teachers behaving in an altogether democratic manner! There are representatives from the administration, each department, staff, and twelve seats that teachers rotate for. Berkeley High's faculty senate, currently chaired by history teacher Thomasine Wilson, is a parallel to the Student Senate, only it's where teachers can air their views about Berkeley High's problems and how to improve it. This past year it dealt with the effects of the Gulf War, changing the finals schedule, and worked in conjunction with the Student Senate in getting a Teacher Handbook out, to help students in selecting teachers at self scheduling. One of the most important issues it tackled this year was next year's expected budget cuts. So next time you think of your teachers as dictatorial and unjust, think of them in the Faculty Senate participating in the epitome of democracy, structure, and organization at Berkeley High.

Site Committee

The purpose of the School Site Committee is to "fund new and enriching projects" for Berkeley High. The program, which has been in operation here for about 56 years, derives its budget from the voter-approved Measure B. The way the program works is quite simple: propositions are submitted to it from anybody with ideas on how the money should be spent in our school. The committee (five teachers, parents, and students) then decides which propositions deserve the money the most, and spend its budget of about $364,000 accordingly. This year's projects included: getting tutors for the english, history, and math departments, starting an intramural sports program, and funding the publication of the Ujamaa paper. When asked why he participates in the committee, senior Peter Coffin replied, "It's important to have student representation in decisions normally made by the administration; after all, these decisions concern us [students] the most." The School Site Committee makes a lot of extra unique programs possible at Berkeley High.

He's Got the Power

It's hard to imagine teachers doing anything but correcting; they're here when we arrive and when we leave. Students are surprised when they see teachers leaving school...even for lunch. If seeing a teacher shopping for food is surprising, what about bumping into your psych teacher in the Himalayas (which is pretty likely if you have Mr. Powers for psych and you happen to be in the Himalayas)? History teacher Doug Powers has traveled all over the world, from India to Europe. During one leave of absence he was the director of a Refugee Resettlement program under the State Department, overseeing offices in Asia and the U.S. He is also the chancellor of a Buddhist university and is working to build another, large Buddhist university in southern California.

Powers has been teaching at Berkeley High since 1969. "I believe in the school. Many students are being well served but [it] fails some students and needs to meet their needs. The way to do this is to improve and build on what's already here." Powers says the quality of Berkeley High students is like no other school, and that we should emphasize the good qualities of B.H.S. and expand and build on them. "We need to give some thought to where we want to go and how we are going to get there. We should spend more time bringing other people into the educational process. We need to involve the communities of Berkeley in the school." Mr. Powers believes we are starting with something unique and different (B.H.S.), and that, "if someone tries to make [B.H.S.] different [they] will destroy it." According to Powers, we need a positive attitude and we must concentrate on working out the problems. We have the basic building blocks.. the students." One of his students commented, "You can tell that he loves to teach and enjoys it. He makes whatever he is talking about interesting, even if it is economics."

The Berkeley High Family

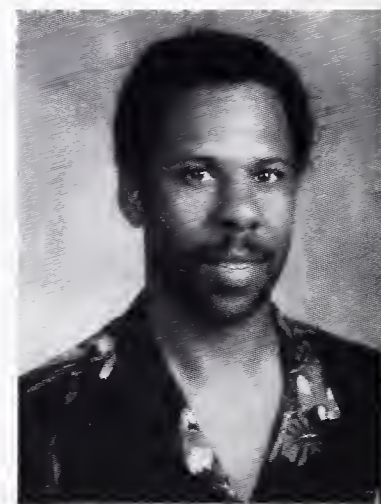

She's outgoing, gregarious and loves to go to the movies. He's an introvert, one who prefers to cook a meal himself and spend the evening at home. History brought them together. Ms. Groves and Mr. Anderson met twenty years ago within the walls of Berkeley High. He teaches Psychology and European History among other things, while in the classroom next door Ms. Groves discusses U.S. and World History with her students. In the halls their daughter walks and talks with her friends. The Nuclear Berkeley High Family. "We talk about school too much", says Ms. Groves. Yet it is school that binds this family together. Both teachers are dedicated to their work and strive for an improved student/instructor relationship. Their mutual respect overpowers any differences Ms. Groves and Mr. Anderson have. They work side by side teaching and creating history.

GOOD NIGHT

So long, farewell, it's time to say goodbye... Goodnight, Berkeley High—its been another year. As each childhood memory slips by, long lost nursery-school playmates are left behind on the first few pages. We, students, have moved on, from playdough to ceramics. "Ring Around the Rosy" developed into Dance Production and Afro-Haitian Dance. Childrens' voices singing "Twinkle Twinkle Little Star" have reached higher notes in Concert Chorale and Gospel Choir; argumentative kindergartners grew into J.S.A. debaters.

We remember our childhoods, yet we no longer belong to the social system of the sandbox. We are just trying out freedom from carpools and brown-bag lunches, yet are tied to the future, and forced to make decisions on our own. We are caught between the safe kiddieworld and the self-assured world of adulthood. We form the Berkeley High student body: diverse, dynamic, and distinctive. Whether a freshman or a senior, we have ended the year by looking ahead with high hopes. It's summer at last!!!! No more pencils, no more books, no more teachers' dirty looks!

BERKELEY HIGH

Simon says 1...2...3...walk with me.

Yo, yo baby, can I get wit choo?

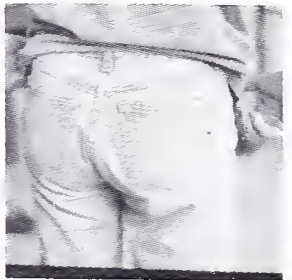

Just put that away, I'm not impressed.

GOOD NIGHT

BERKELEY BUTTS WINNERS

David Benedetto gets sworn into the nerd posse.

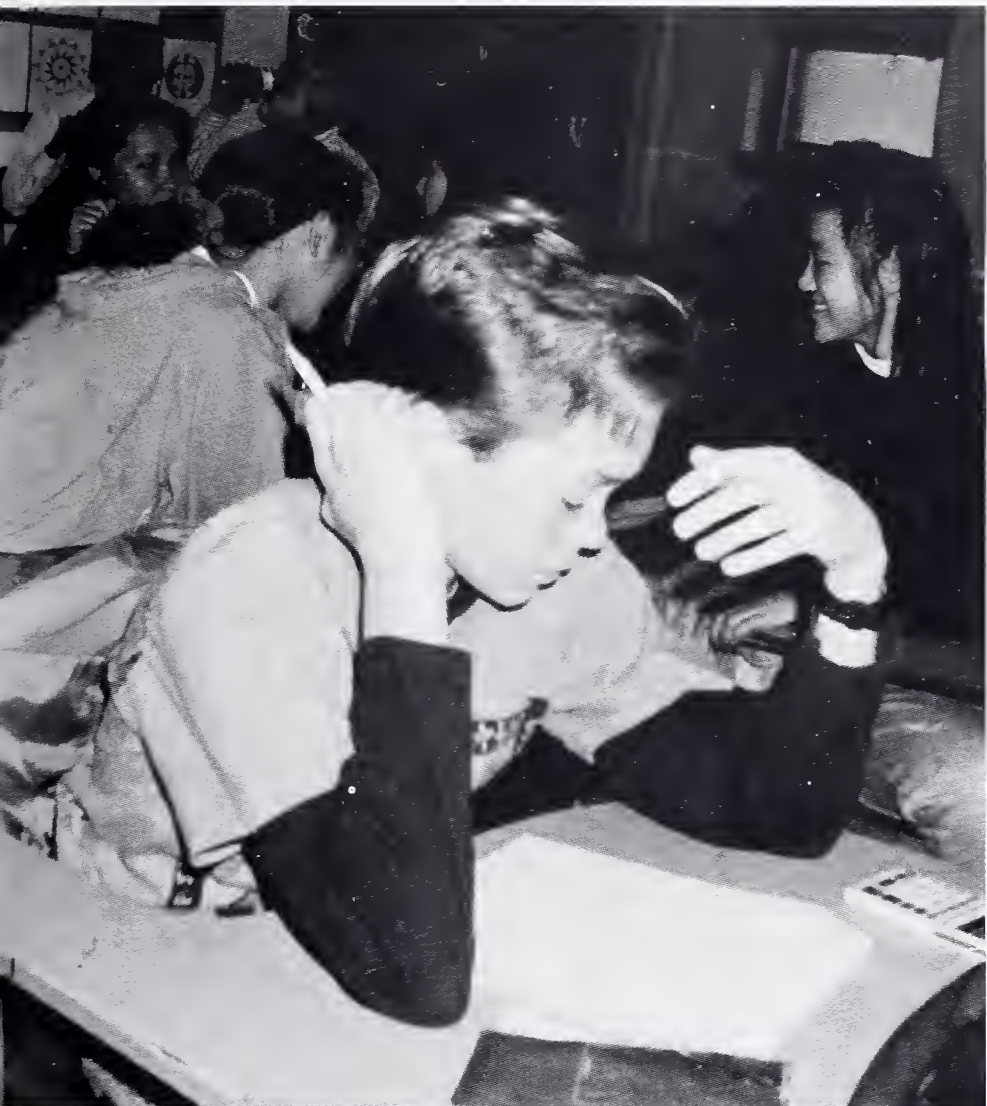

Oh no! I don't want to look at your gross knee scab again!

Look! Boys and Girls are streaking together!

KEN DOLL

How big? "THI-IS BIG!!"-Sifronia

Why can't I think of the answer? Are they laughing at me?

Sunny Days...can you tell me how to get to Sesame Street?

Watch Fatima do her impersonation of a stretch mark.

GOOD NIGHT

Do the bunny hop, hop...hop...hop...

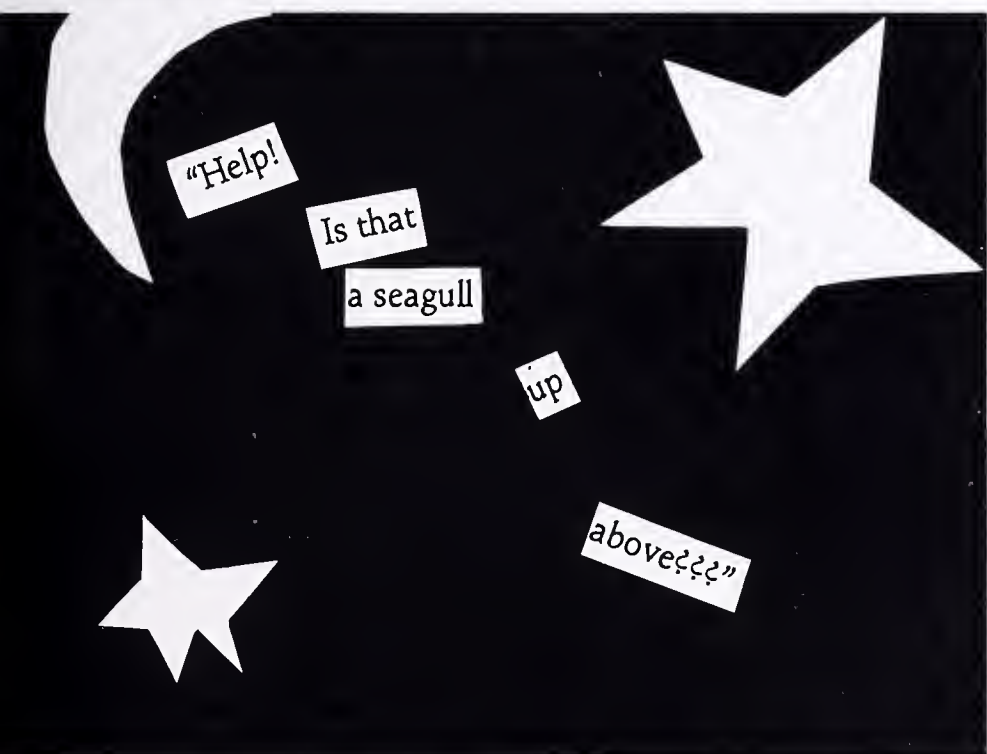

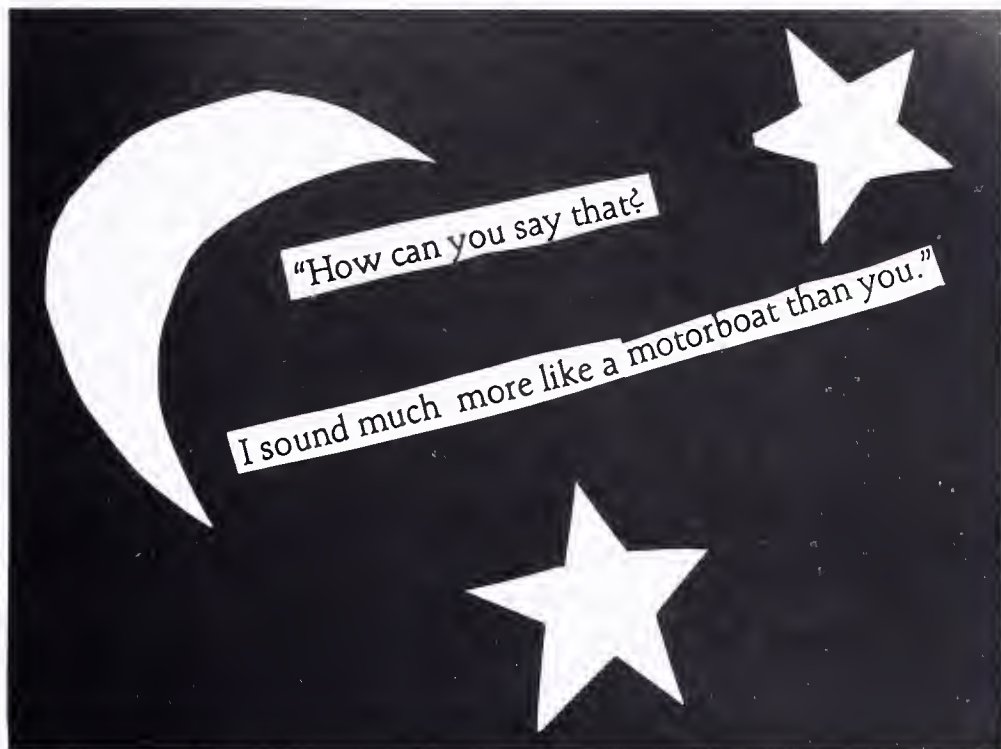

"Yeah, sure, a mohawk would be flattering."

"Ooh...right where it counts!"

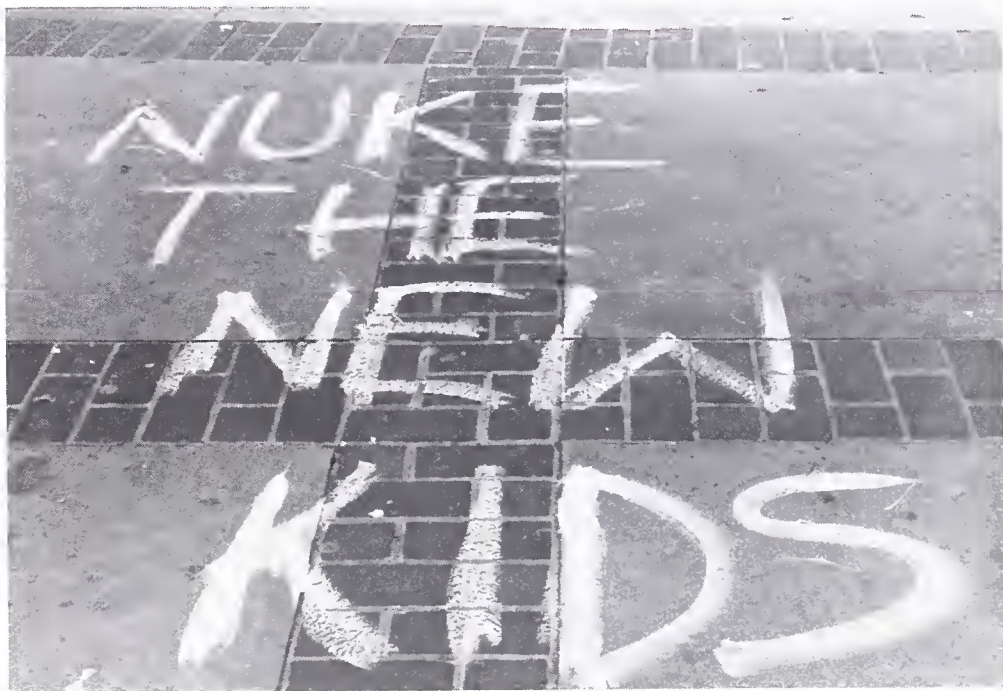

PEACH COBBLER

GOOD NIGHT

What's on your hand? "That's my little secret."

The Berkeley High chapter of the N.K.O.T.B. Fan Club exhibits it's slogan.

"Hunh?...Chemistry?...ZZZZZZZZZZ"

Juwara gives his friend a lift...away from the science department.

BIRD DOOKY

Tamar Todd quietly contemplates the anonymous love letter she recieved last period.

Love is too perfect for words.

"Hello?...Mr. Sherer? are you there?"

Masaye Harrison designs the plans for her future home.

GOOD NIGHT

John thinks Chris needs his ear washed out.

Cheating? Be discreet about it why don't you!

Gabrielle frantically calls Coffee Drinkers Anonymous.

UGLY UNIFORMS

Circle, square, circle, circle.

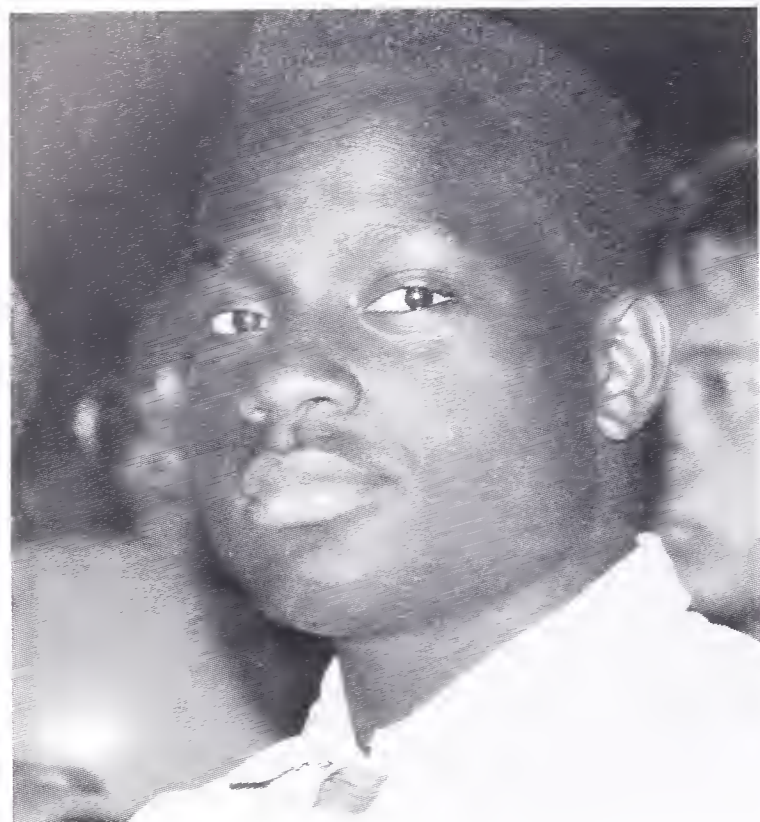

"That zit! It just popped up an hour ago."

"...She was ill..." does it look like my mom's signature?

GOOD NIGHT

"G.Q. here I come."

"Hey! School's out... what are you doing with that camera?"

Which one do YOU think got the most Valentine's grams?

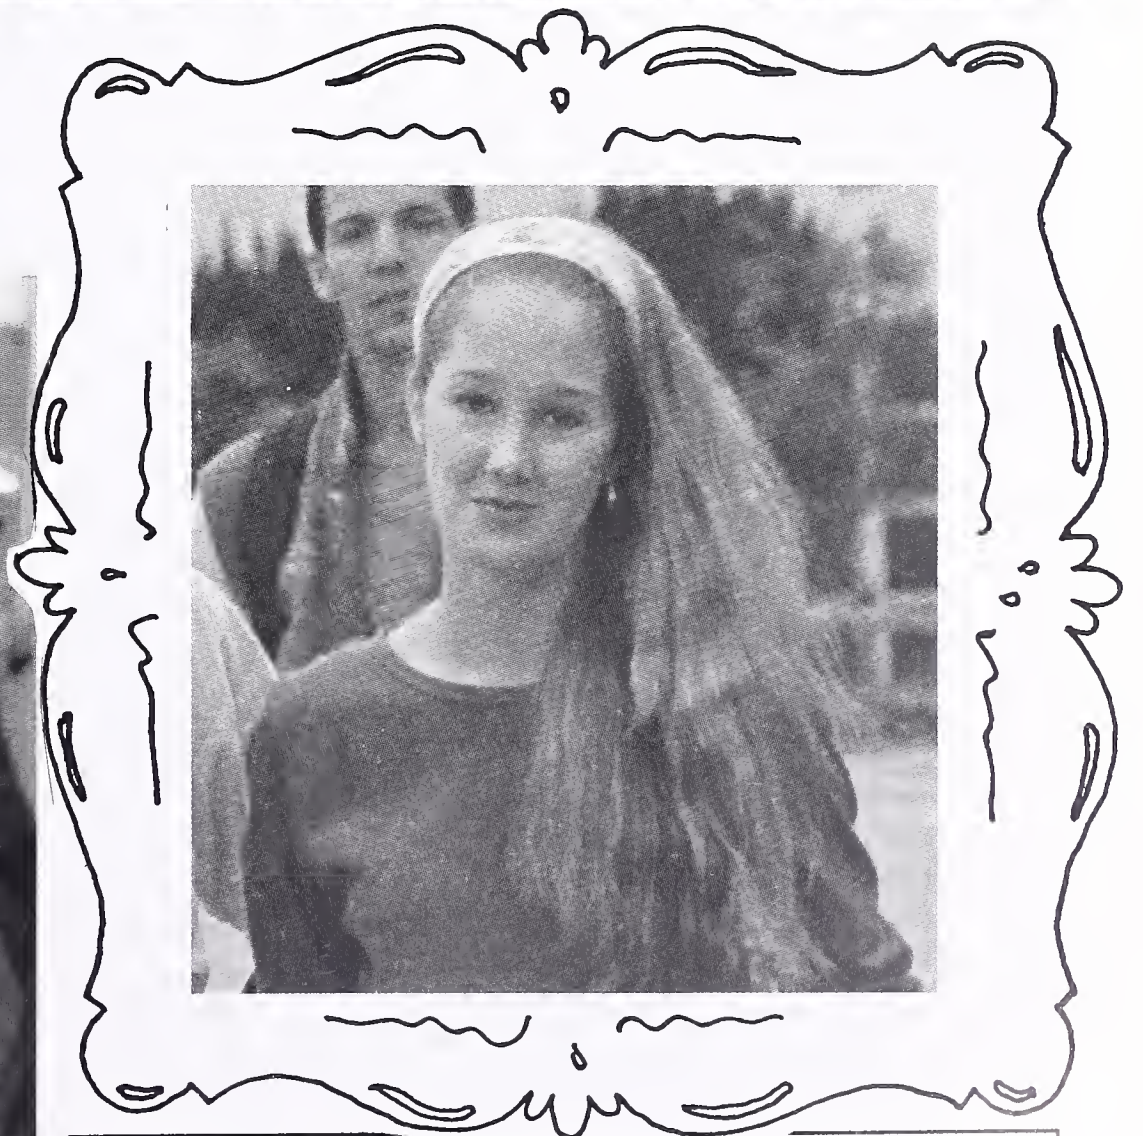

CLASS OF '91

"Well, when I was two, my pinky got stuck in an electric socket, so now that's why..."

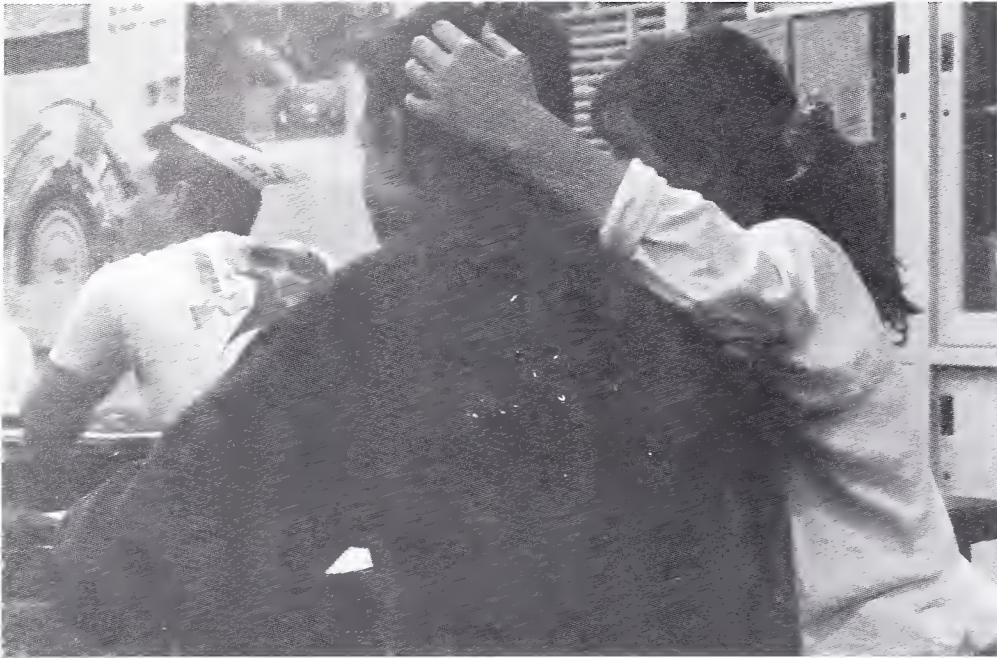

"Awwwww, girl, that just ain't the story"-Alan Wilson.

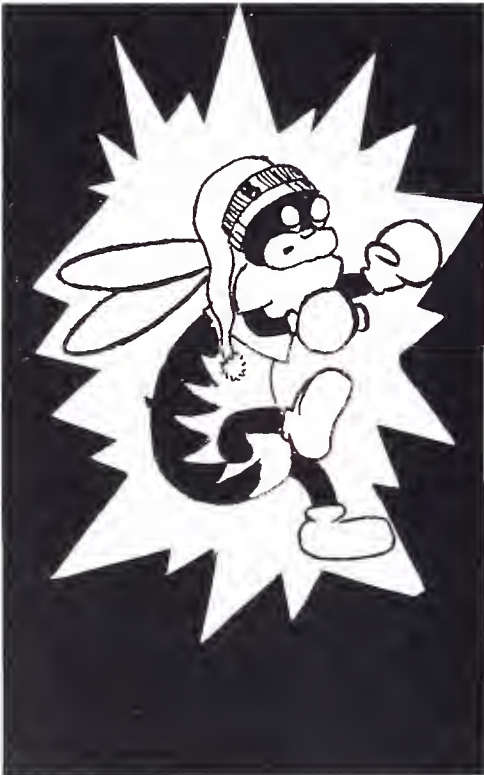

What's your best excuse? "Not now honey - have a Certs first." -Kita Baldock

GOOD NIGHT

 Ooh! Caught in the act!... Seniors Kerry Gregg and Sean Smukler learn first hand the cause and effect of physics.

 Who do you think you're looking at?

 You're not going to get any...(crunchy tators, that is)

 What do you think? Is it a boy or girl fish?

MILVIA STREET

Now let me tell you why the Giants rule.

What's the proper response to a granola?
"Excuuuse me! fine I'll recycle."

Life in the fast, middle, and slow lanes.

Do you think her face will fit in this net?

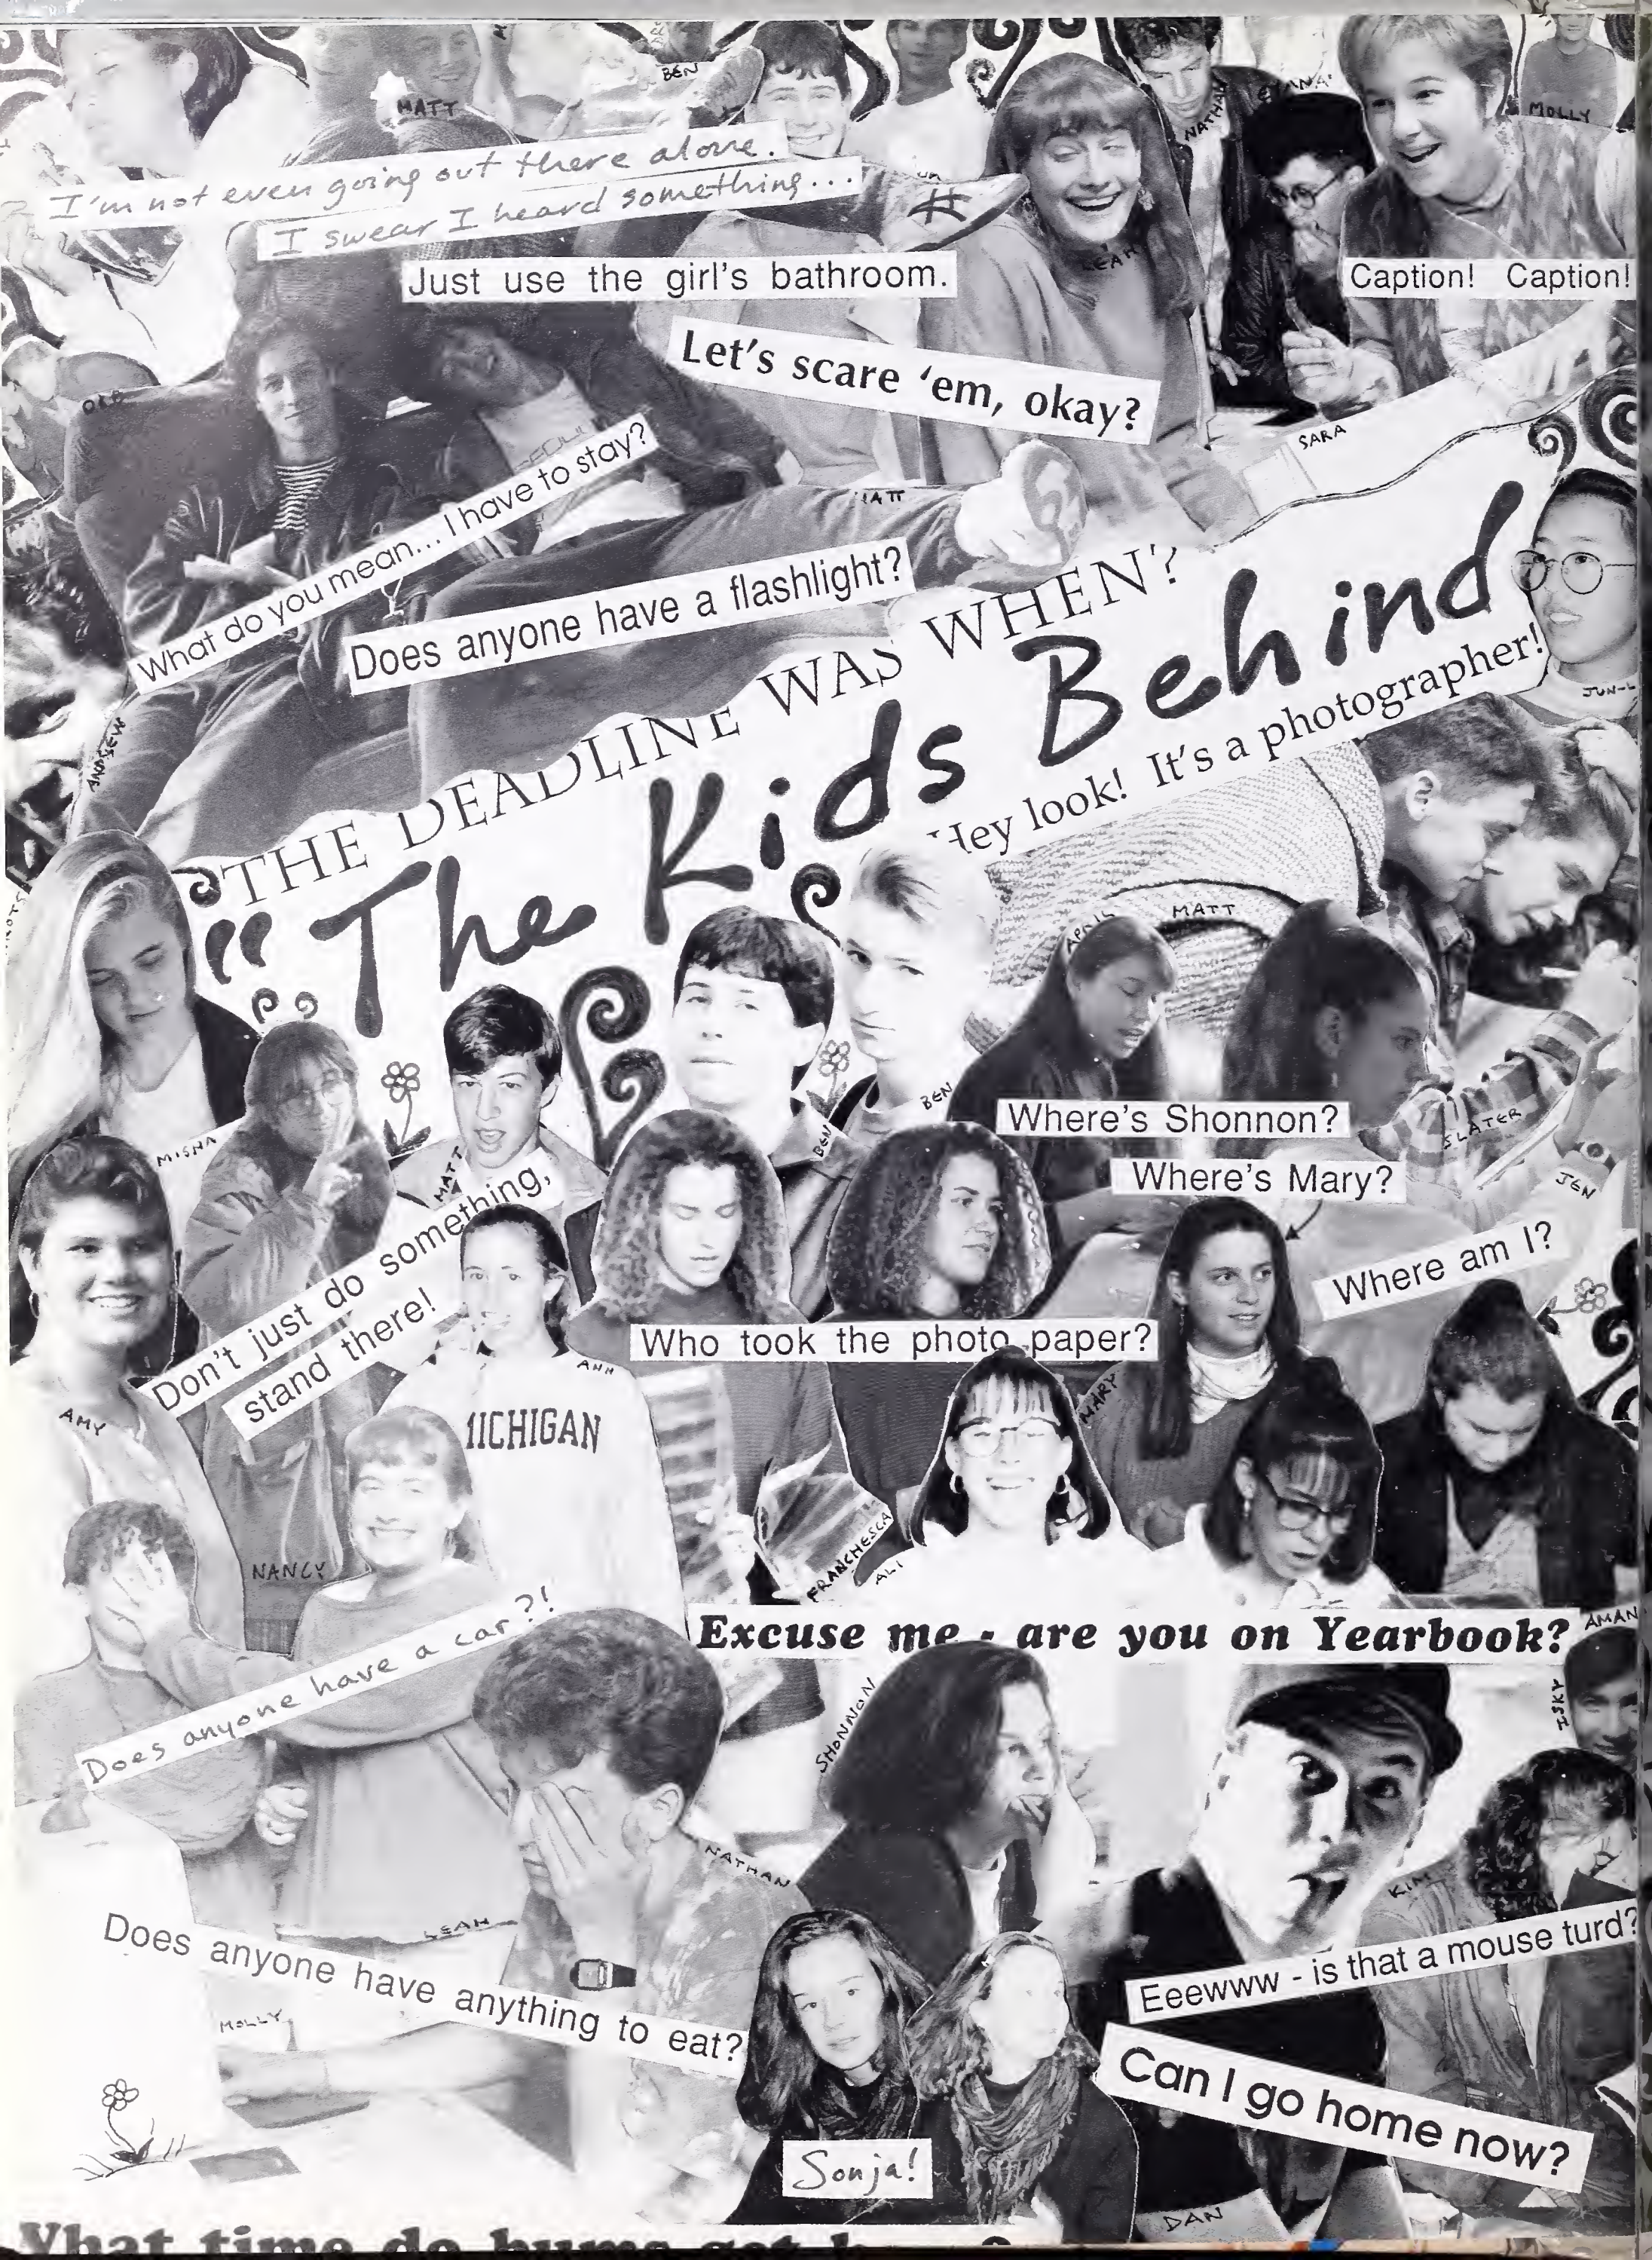

Lunch...if ya think it's sexy, come on baby let me know!

Nike.. the official sponsor of the Corner Clan.

I'm not even going out there alone.
I swear I heard something...

Just use the girl's bathroom.

Caption! Caption!

Let's scare 'em, okay?

What do you mean... I have to stay?

Does anyone have a flashlight?

THE DEADLINE WAS WHEN? "The Kids Behind"

Hey look! It's a photographer!

Where's Shonnon?

Where's Mary?

Where am I?

Who took the photo paper?

Don't just do something,
stand there!

Does anyone have a car?!

Excuse me - are you on Yearbook?

Does anyone have anything to eat?

Eewwww - is that a mouse turd?

Can I go home now?

Sonja!

What time do buses get here?

Esther "E" Abdul-Rahmaan

When I first moved to this country I did not know any english. Soon after I moved to Berkeley, most of you accepted me with kindness, and for that I thank you. I also thank you (you know who you are) for making this senior year the best. We the class of 1991 have proven to everyone that we can put our differences aside and unite to form a large powerful class. High School with you all has been fun, I hope to keep in touch with most of you, and to see you all at our reunion. TO ALL THOSE UNDERCLASSMEN that I know, ha ha I am out of here and I just wanted to wish you all the best of luck for your next year here in good old Berkeley High School.

Wandering about the streets, attempting to find in motion what was lost in space. Everything swept about me like dead leaves, leaves that were brightly colored but torn away from the branches.
I would have stopped, but I was pursued by something.
It always came upon me unawares, taken me altogether by surprise. Perhaps it was a familiar bit of music. Perhaps it was only a piece of transparent glass... like a bit of a shattered rainbow.

- Tennessee Williams

Finally, I am out of here! Mike, thanks for a lot for bailing me out from getting "F" in psyc. class. Frank, owe you a lot for letting me copy your homework in German. Nick, you will never beat me in badminton. I am still blaming you for losing NCS in sophomore year.

TOP3 MOST ENJOYED ACTITIES IN HIGH SCHOOL:

1. Stay until really late at friend's house and did @#$%*!
 2. Beating every single game against every single player in the badminton team and made them feel miserable about how weak they are.
 3. Sleep

1991 my senior year, my chillin year, the one I've always been looking forward to, is over and It's time to say goodbye. But first I just want to say "thanks" to all my friends who made BHS the high school it was. But Hey!, it's not over yet(I mean the good times, O'course school's over!) So to all you out there (you know who you are) Keep in touch or, if not, good luck. Just remember it's easy to win when your winnng but it takes a real winner to win when your losing. (don't ask me, didn't make sense there and it desen't make sense now) Oszgo there! That's the last time! Gosh these forms are nice.

Well, I guess it's goodbye Berkeley High. To all those who bought loolypops- never forget they were nutritious too. (you know how I am about health) As for me, I'll be somewhere- aerobics, or homework. (We're talking college this time) Maybe even psychology, if I can handle it. Then again, english sounds cool also. Both? Hmm...Anyways. To certain just-plain-all-around-terrific people, don't change (You know who you are.) You've made me very happy. I mean it. I may be gone now (time to get sentimental) but I know the classes of '92 and '93 will keep BHS alive. As for you freshman, ya need a little help. There's a lot to be said, but guess what? I ran out of room.

Gots ta go. See Ya!

This section is dedicated to those students who have decided to look back at their yearbooks and have begun to feel a certain amount of nostalgia. Nostalgia, remember, has no foundation, in reality of the past. But don't worry about that, the feeling is natural. All the tests and teachers become obscured in a multitude of happy memories and I guess, that's how it should be.

Why did we win spirit week, because you can't stop the unstoppable. Good luck to the juniors who will rule this school after we leave. Now it's time to address the old school from way back. Here we go. The five young brothers were too good to be true. Putab- ball in our hands and we'll make many fans. To Reg with the big head. To young Pink. To Ace in the place. Finally this goes out to Mr.
Ric Flair. The days of stairball was some of the best. Wrist be burning because a brother dunk so hard. Anyway I just want to tell you guys that I will never have Patners like you, because we five go back way too far. To the

Shonnon "Editor" Llamas

I remember lots of good and bad times at BHS. For those friends who made my four years here special, I thank you: K.M. and M.S.

- Ouija and treks in the rain. Sara E. and Geoff D. - Germany was so much fun! There are lots of memories that will never be forgotten. Tschüß! Julie K. - I think K.F.C. and Coke (the real R.C.) go together real well. Remember 7-11, Du-pont and problems with J.J. Thanks for all your help! The Lyon's Crew-J.K., J.O., N.N., and M.S. (Bugs Bunny!). Watch out for Vern the Margarita man! "Chief" - Well, it's finally over. It's been a stressful time editorizing with you, but I'd do it anytime! The Indigo Girls Posse- S.E., A.I., J.W., and C.B.: "I wish I were a trinity, so if I lost a part of me I'd still have two of the same to live." My confidant Josh K. - Thanks for listening to me babble. Cocolat Posse- Jenny C. and Jennie Y.- "Clock 'em with a Stölen!" Thanks to- The Light Inhibitor, Ethan J. (make great movies), Taya, Ebobop (life sucks when you can't fit a Roman pillar in your scrapbook), Karl S. (sorry about Freshman year), Sean and the Boley Crew, C.M. and D.W. cause I promised them I would, Stud, Frau Rowland and Mrs. Boley. To the class of 1991: I'm glad we all made it together.

"See ya at the Greek!"

Liam "Milkie" Maher

Chillen as a young freshmn with the P.B.C. and wrestling a match varsity. Whatup to my old school homies: NB, JE, KE, CQ, and all the rest of my patna's. Then Momz booted me out of the scene for a minute. A sophmore at E.C. trying hard to put the yolks on but still smokin fat dank and tearin shit up with some ruthless fools. Back to the high N 90 but not all my troubles behind me. Squabblin with a sucka in Tifs parking lot, with a bumper he'll get a fat knot. Mustang, Iroc, high speed chase. When I'm called off I had a sawed off, what da ya know Milk is gettin hauled off. Can't nobody say I didn't pay dues. In 91 I'm on the sober tip, but I'm still chillen hard and benching 275. Peace to all my homez who stood behind me, cause I'm on da incline.

Peter "Ears" Mains

9th grade I was Geekin, 12th I was Greekin. 10-12 got my yolks on. Kickin it with the Coop Crew. Thanks Drew for the guidance. Met up with Dre scootin on the Bone Express. I crashed it so he would get the celi. Down the road got hooked by a 5 ft 1 coxswain with a body to kill. Thank you Kim for being there for the last two years. Penn is a long ways away, but my love for you can reach there. To my new found brothers Scott and Sil, you'll see me shackin at the Greek. Let's end the year with a bang! U date people who actually studied, Mr. 2.0's off to Cal. Thanks mom for the love, but I'm gone. 5000, see ya assed out at the frat baby.

Cross Country 11-12
the shoes, the fun- Sea Ranch. Good luck next year CJ. ML, KA, BW, and all.

Track 11-12
Long nights and sand dune sprints. Charlie Coon and speed bumps. Redrum, maximum occupancy two. Can we stop at Diekmans? Who said yum? Let's do it forever, Bodega. Ona-LA, Sea Ranch, removing bike track from the lawn. Uh Oh there's banana on the calendar. Quick spill perfume. Leslie- the evil cloud god has been killed. Foreigners at Strawberry, but the sun was there. Maria- let's still do Hawaii. Ouija with Shonnon's grandmother. Boblo-Zen- where's the trip wire? Too late-we're outta here! Grady- I love you with all my heart. In a few years? "Eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow we die." PEACE.

How did I spend these 4 years of agony? Well for the most part, I did absolutely nothing. But when I wash't twidling my thumbs, I:blew my sax, chilled at the Cafe Fascia Lata, did that Kung-Fu thing, bought slicks from the NY grease-pit, cut up cats (& less savory creatures), thought I was a metal head (a trip to Capwell's soon fixed that), wrestled Var(5 or 4 of!?), sold Chia-pets on the ave for college $, discovered Nirvana among the ruins of Greece, fell down & couldn't get up, reanimated the not-so-living, got hooked on formalde-fumes, & discovered the meaning of life (bet you'd like to know huh?). But what's it all mean anyway? After all [Censored by the CIA & Ken Sherer] . . and thus the scalpel is your friend!

Junior year: Weird clown- bad academic year, very bad.
Senior year: Almost mature but still a clown.
Best academic year- due to easy classes- met the love of my life Clarena Orozco, whom I love very much! I'll miss all my friends who go to the 4 year colleges while I chill in JC. But wil keep in touch, and I'll catch up! It's been

Darnell "Don- Don" Pierre

To the class of '91 thanks for being the best class in school. Stay spirited in every way possible, never let anyone or anything get you down. Remember me Pierre- class flirt, the class most determined athlete, take care. Don't be square. See you in the social world. And to me you're the best, and great success in the future. To all you underclassmen if you could you would, you can't cause your penniants. Kiss the ass you underclass. Broke as a joke in 91. All you suckas that dissed. The class of 91 and Pierre says your dismissed. Ha, ha suckas. Slob on my fat —, nob's. If you don't like what we've said run-up or shut-up, cause 91 is feed-up. And to my classmates see you at the Greek. Remember long dong silver.

Especially Robyn- U R Xtra cool! Note to all the 93ers (Becca, Jessica, Nikki and Robin) you'd better kick some 92 ass!! Well, that's about it. I am off to WA, OR, IN, IA, OH or NY. Mom and Dad- Thanx 4 18 yrs of love, allowance, and gas money! I owe you a big 1!! '91 kicked some really big time game- WORD! Now it's on to 95. GOODBYE BHS- IT WAS FUN! LATER!!!

Julian Prindle

Keeping in mind that for every action there is an inevitable reaction, it would be ludicrous to insist that this should end on a happy note. What a joke. Thousands of people within one minute vicinity, and they all want the dignity of individuals. A guy called Julian has gone through the motions of being an individual among a large expanse of time and space (Berkeley High School, everything, etc.). He was a man of science, however, and was relieved of the pain of being a man upon the discovery that this is actually heaven... and you are all angels.

Fine.

Love, Julian.

There's nnnnothing like being young. Youth is all about getting testosterone rushes every five minutes, it's about immortality, conquering the world. AND we still have many years of this to come, our futures will be nothing less than spectacular! I've had an unforgettable time here, but we've only just begun. I want to thank all my friends, I was really lucky to have known you, you're the best!!!! I would also like to thank a handful of teachers, I owe you. Check out what Jesse O. wrote about being a winner. He's right, and of course we al are, I am. I love all of you gorgeous ladies out there- 'specially Liz Ep, you're unstoppable babe. I'll see you in ten years and remember, WE ARE THE CHOSEN ONES!!!! Peace.

Ah, too sum it all up.

In Conrad's Heart of Darkness, the chosen phrase was "the horror, the horror". Well, BHS was sometimes bad, but not quite that bad (I mean no one was beheaded) (except in Anatomy, of course). Questing for adventure with Sir Pal: come forth and we shall meet fearsome foes, do much battle, and return with our coffers full and the love of many maidens. Well not quite, but it does sound good. Heh Paul, when will we begin our crime spree? I'm ready when you are. Just don't ask me to split a conoly. I enjoyed testing Tamari's sanity while trading nauseating notions with Cameron. Want to know how to make a Junior flinch? Quietly whisper to him or her, during SAT season..... 050290

Education is our passport to the future for tomorrow belongs to the people who prepare for it today.
We have grown and prepared, contemplated, worried, anxiously awaited what is yet to come. Many miles lay ahead, there is much growing yet to be done. There comes a time to know thyself "How I wish I could pigeon-hole myself and neatly fix a label on! But self-knowledge comes too late and by the time I've known myself I am no longer what

I was." We realize that our future lies chiefly in our own hands. We know that neither friends nor institutions can make one stand unless there is strength in one's own foundation. Individuals must stand or fall by their own merit. Peace to the flag. Love ya Chrissy, MS, DT, JC. Missed you RS. SP.

Marin "Minnow" Van Young

To all my friends, even the ones I never see anymore: I loved you, despite all the tearful "group talks" in our past! G and T: "But wait a minute, is there a part for me in this play? Why yes, there is!" Bec: "Sometimes you win, sometimes you lose, sometime...it rains! To PEZ forever!" AD: U, You, U, You, U, I love you! BHS is a strange place. That about sums it up.

"Well, it was nice while it lasted."

In my 9th grade year it was so cool. The class of "88" was live. The thenth grade was a;right I realized I didn't have friends, just associates. I found a guy who is very caring and loving. Damond I will always love you. The 11th grade was the best. C/O 91 had everything happening. C/O 90 couldn't help but be in competition with us were just #1. C/O 90 tried to fuck it up for us cool seniors but hey we still got it goin on. The 12th grade was cool. Spirit week was so fun. MY life changed ina big way during this year my grandmother actually Great Lutherine passed away R.I.P. Well underclassmen I love ya and miss ya all but it's time, time to make a change. We are the people who can do it. Good luck Kwa heri tutuonana baadaye Ndugu Ni DaDa.

Letter From the Editor

There are so many people to thank for helping us get this yearbook out, because everything that could have gone wrong with this book did...and then some. We think it was all worth it. Thank you Mr. Kratz for giving us the opportunity to see what managing thirty crazy people was like; too bad it was at the cost of your health! Thanks, Nancy, for taking over Kratz's job and for giving us your life by staying here till all hours of the night. We thank you, Nathan, for your computer knowledge-what would this book look like without you? Thanks, Francesca, for your beautiful photographs and your time spent way back in the darkroom producing them. Thank you, Dans, for your incredible cover! We thank Peter and Adam for adding excitement to the yearbook and making Cinnamon Ice a legend (yes, he is hip!). Jun-Li, every project you worked on turned into a masterpiece (all the bunches of them)... thanks for being so reliable. Hi-eeeeeee to the "lezzies" (a.k.a. Kim, Misha, Ali and her step-auntie Mildred); you guys actually came through for us! You brightened up the sports section with your late-night humor writing. Sara (aaa-chooo!) and Kate (hee hee), thanks for all your hard work. The Closing section is rad, man! Eyana...your boisterousness added pizazz to our dark hole in the wall. To our disgruntled Matty-boy, plus or minus Jane, thanks for producing a hilarious Fun Book that the whole family can enjoy. Thanks to everyone who contributed each in his/her/its own way to make this the bestest yearbook in the whole world!

And especially, thanks to us, because without us Olla Podrida Volume 96 would be 400 signing pages (well, not really). Say, is anyone up for a game of operator?

Sweet Dreams...
